U.S. PROTESTING BRITISH CHARGE FOR USING SUEZ

Pays Tolls to Send Men to Pacific

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The United States is pressing Britain anew to absorb under reverse lend-lease Suez canal tolls on American ships redeploying fighting men and equipment to the Pacific.

This was learned today along with the fact that while this country lend-leases all Panama canal charges on British ships, the United States paid $11,345,390 on Suez tolls from the start of the war to last Jan. 1.

As troops pour eastward from now silent European battlefields to speed victory against Japan, shipping going thru the vital Suez gateway will mount.

Britain Demands Cash

United States-British negotiations on the Suez charges were revealed in an exchange of letters between Rep. Robertson [R., N. D.] and the foreign economic administration.

FEA told Robertson this government first asked Britain to lend-lease the canal charges in the fall of 1942. After formal talks in London and Washington, however, Britain refused.

The matter was brought up several times since then. The latest request was made last May 22 and new discussions are under way in London.

Use Panama Canal Free

The letters showed that the United States paid out about $5,000,000 in tolls on British war and merchant ships going thru the Panama canal from the start of lend-lease to Jan. 1, 1945.

Therefore, Washington is arguing again with London, Britain should pay the Suez costs.

The Suez canal is owned by a corporation organized under French law. The British government, as the major shareholder, holds 44 per cent of the stock. This was cited as a reason why Britain should bear the burden of getting American shipping thru.

The British, however, replied that the tolls have to be paid in Egyptian pounds, recalling that lend-lease arrangements require that countries lend-lease only goods made from their own resources or services which mean spending their own currency.

Britain Can't Afford It

The British said they already owed Egypt too much for the things bought there during the war and could not afford to incur any further debts to Egypt.

With the dispute still going on, considerable congressional annoyance has been shown.

Meanwhile Rep. Ellis [R., W. Va.] asserted in the house yesterday that lend-lease should be stopped immediately. Among Ellis' contentions was that the United States was paying Britain $1 a head for American soldiers going to fight Japan by way of Suez.

FEA, however, said a per soldier breakdown cannot be determined because tolls are based on ship tonnages.

LEND-LEASE FOR ITALY

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The United States has begun allocating lend-lease goods to Italy and present plans are to send 100 million dollars worth.

Nation Faces Drastic Cut in HomeFuelUse

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes announced plans today to send 6,000,000 tons of bituminous coal to Europe by Jan. 1, confronting the nation with the probability of the most drastic home heating fuel cuts of the war.

"The shipment of coal to the devastated countries of Europe is imperative in order to forestall disaster which the people of Europe would not accept supinely and without disorder," the solid fuels administrator said.

The 6,000,000 ton figure was qualified by the phrase "if possible," but no doubt was left that great quantities are to go, with 6,000,000 tons as the goal. Roughly, that amount of coal represents a year's supply for 1,000,000 American homes and shipment to Europe would cost the taxpayers about $21.40 a ton, or 129 million dollars.

Costs $15 a Ton to Ship It

The average freight, considering the coal would be taken from mines in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, and Alabama, would be about $2.75.

Rates established by the maritime commission for shipment of coal to Mediterranean ports — probably slightly higher than prices to western Europe—would put the trans-Atlantic toll at about $15 a ton.

The shipment of 6,000,000 tons presumably would add that 6,000,000 to the 25,000,000 ton deficit in bituminous coal. The anthracite coal deficit is 12,000,000 tons.

Industry to Be Cut

No definite allotments have been made. How coal will be shipped—whether thru lend-lease or under some other arrangement—has not been decided.

The worsening coal situation both at home and abroad presented these probabilities:

1. Industry, with the probable exception of utilities and railroads, will be cut back an undetermined amount from previous allotments.

2. Home consumers who have been getting along on 80 per cent of normal pre-war needs—much of it in substitute fuels—may have to get along on less. Recently the solid fuel administration said the 80 per cent was the minimum for safe health standards.

Army Help Sought

3. Rail carriers, already heavily burdened with emergency freight, will be called upon for greater exertions to move coal to east coast shipping points.

4. The army must act, one way or another, on a pending plea by Ickes to release at least 30,000 of the 130,000 miners now in uniform in order to increase our own domestic output. Ickes said today that increasing production thru the employment of more miners is the "only sure way to avoid disaster in Europe and further distress at home." He added that the only source of additional miners is the army.

That service has received coldly other recent requests for the release of men to industry, tho some were furloughed for emergency jobs earlier in the war.

"Coal or Anarchy"

Ickes said in a statement on the European coal situation that his decision is based on reports received within the last few days.

"The race in Europe is one between coal and anarchy," he said. "Europe must have coal without loss of time if serious political and social upheavals are to be prevented. Cold and hunger can be expected to kill thousands and the children of Europe will surely carry the marks of the coming winter to their graves."

His announcement today followed a request to conservation directors of 25 states, including Illinois, to launch local drives to get the people to "prepare for winter" this summer. The programs would emphasize the need for winter-proofing homes, repairing heating plants, and using alternative fuels.

BRICKS FOR EUROPE'S HOUSE

STRONG, SILENT HERO SAVES BOY

Only Jimmy Knew It Was Fight with Death

Of the hundreds of bathers who crowded the Clark st. beach in Evanston yesterday only one, Jimmy Wait, 13, of 1311 Oak av., Evanston, saw a small boy floating face downward in water six feet deep about 60 feet from shore.

Jimmy, sitting on the beach, watched idly, then realized the child had not raised his head.

Without asking for help he dashed thru the shallow water, half running and half swimming, until he came to a drop off about 45 or 50 feet from the shore, where the water was over his head. A few strokes brought him to the side of the floating boy.

Remembers His Training

Remembering his elementary training in life saving, Jimmy turned the unconscious lad face upward, grabbed him by and arm, and swam shoreward until he reached shallower water. Then he waded, carrying the slight form of the boy in his arms.

As he neared the beach a woman came splashing out toward him. She was Mrs. James Marsh of 2125 Noyes st. wife of the head of the Marsh Electric company of Evanston, and the boy's mother.

Jimmy, panting from exertion, waved her back. "I'll take care of him," he said. "He'll be all right."

He carried the boy, Leland Marsh, 6, onto the beach, turned him on his face, and began applying artificial respiration. Water gushed from the victim's mouth.

Lifeguards Take Over

Several women screamed. The outcries brought two lifeguards, David Hawkinson of 7848 Karlov av., Skokie, and Alfonse du Mont, 744 Dobson st., Evanston. They took over the labors of resuscitation from Jimmy, who was so tired he was ready to drop.

The lifeguards worked over the unconscious boy for nine minutes, until a police department inhalator squad arrived. Six minutes after the inhalator was applied, Leland began to show signs of life. Three minutes later he was pronounced out of danger.

At the Evanston hospital Leland was told his life had been saved by Jimmy, whose father, James Sr., is division manager for the Continental Oil company, and that Jimmy was only 13. Leland grinned weakly.

"Gee, I'll bet he's a Boy Scout," he said.

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

REIMS, France, July 20—To the children, wives, sweethearts, relatives, friends, and former employers of the 3,000,000 American soldiers still in the European theater, the following arithmetic is pertinent to the question, "When will he come home?"

This ancient city, scarred by two World wars, is headquarters of the assembly area command assigned to process most of the three millions for redeployment. It is designed to receive and to ship an average of 9,000 daily. At this rate it will take 277 days to process 2½ millions.

The bottleneck is not here. It is in the shipping. The Pacific war hereafter, will get the priority. Nine thousand daily will overload the present number of ships available for European calls. The demands for water transportation will increase. Because it is twice as far from San Francisco to Manila as it is from New York to Antwerp it will take twice as much cargo space to supply a soldier in the Pacific as it did to supply one in the European theater.

Likely to Last

So the new assembly area command is about as permanent as any war time establishment in war time. The quartermaster dump in a boulevard near the center of the business district includes long rows of cottage sized piles tightly packed in tar paper and labeled, "Overcoats." They will be used in this theater by many who are not in the army of occupation but who are merely waiting for a boat home.

This camp, established early last month, is the new rear base, 13,000 miles in the rear, for Gen. MacArthur's attack on Japan. Here Gen. Eisenhower's veterans are checked for movement directly to the Pacific or to redeployment centers in the United States. Here, too, come combat veterans with dependents, candidates for discharge under the point system.

From June 10 to July 15 107,000 persons in 312 units were moved from this camp to ports, most of them to Le Havre, headed for America. There are now 164,000 soldiers from 910 units being processed here. Their average stay is from 15 to 25 days.

Gives Up Guns

In this stay the soldier turns in his small arms and his vehicles. He receives a physical check-up. His clothing requirements are filled. He answers dozens of questions for the voluminous records the army keeps on every man—about his family, finances, insurance, occupational abilities, education, and so forth.

To maintain his morale while confined to camp waiting for a ship, army special services plans 51 movies and the same number of live talent show theaters; 85 libraries, and 85 recreational centers with pingpong tables, radios, and pianos. Baseball and volley ball fields cover many acres of these rolling prairies of northern France.

The men are living in 17 camps with a capacity of 15,000 to 17,000 persons in each. The camps are in four groups, one at Suippe and the others at Mourmelon, Mailly, and Sissonne, all villages near Reims. They live in tents, sleep on cots, eat good food, and appear to be enjoying their leisure. They have all been in the army long enough to develop patience.

German prisoners are doing kitchen police, digging drainage ditches, clearing new baseball diamonds, building cement walks, laying old steel mats to pave the dusty streets, and even some of the clerical work. The GIs enjoy this evidence that the war is not over for the former Nazis, either.

TAMMANY BACKS COMMUNIST FOR ALDERMAN IN N.Y.

New York, July 20 [Special] — Tammany Hall, New York's Democratic machine, which has had a record of graft, corruption, and political despotism for more than a century, went Communist today for the first time in its history when it indorsed an avowed Red for public office.

Tammany Leader Edward V. Loughlin reported his organization would back Benjamin J. Davis Jr., Negro alderman and communist leader, for reelection. Davis is technically an enrolled Democrat, having so signed himself when he was elected in 1943 because the Communists did not have a political party that year. He also is supported by the New York CIO.

Davis has been an active Communist for many years. On June 5 he was reported to have voted with William Z. Foster and others for a more militant Communist party at a meeting of the board of the Communist Political association. He writes frequently for the Daily Worker, official communist paper.

Tammany's choice of Davis is regarded as the final step in the Democratic machine's alliance with the left wing American Labor party, which is expected to back Tammany candidates for other offices.

NAVY PLANNING POINT SYSTEM OF DISCHARGES

Younger Men Will Replace Old

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The navy today disclosed it is considering a point formula for release of older navy personnel, under which 11,600 commissioned and warrant officers and 19,000 enlisted men would be released by December.

The navy emphasized that the formula under study will be in no way a demobilization measure, since the navy's strength will not be cut below the present authorized maximum of 3,389,000, which was reached June 30.

The formula gives no weight to such factors as dependency and combat service which might be a part of a demobilization plan. The navy called the proposal a "computed service age formula."

The navy said the purpose of the new policy will be to increase the service's over-all efficiency by releasing older men and men not fully qualified for general duty, thereby permitting the navy thru voluntary enlistments and selective service to increase the number of younger men qualified to meet future needs.

Open to Applications

Under the formula the navy would release upon individual application, or upon resignation, certain enlisted personnel and reserve officers who meet requirements.

Service age of officers and enlisted men would be computed by allowing one point for each year of age figured to the nearest birthday and one for each four months of active duty in the navy since Sept. 1, 1939.

The minimum computed service age required for release, resignation or discharge, would vary for different categories of the service as follows:

Reserve line officers, enlisted reservists, navy inductees, and enlisted regulars serving during the war under expired enlistments, 53; reserve officers of the supply corps, 55 points, and reserve officers of the civil engineers corps, 57.

Points Subject to Change

Higher requirements are established for the supply and civil engineer corps, the navy said, because these corps have fewer officers whose services can be spared.

The navy said the minimum points are subject to future change governed by experience.

Reserve officers of the medical department, dental, and chaplain corps are not eligible under the formula because of existing shortages in these branches. If and when the shortages are overcome the formula will be made applicable to them.

Eligibility of Men

The formula will not apply to regular navy officers except temporary officers whose permanent status is that of enlisted men serving under expired enlistments. Neither will it apply to enlisted personnel of the regular navy except those serving unexpired enlistments, to retired enlisted personnel on active duty, or to fleet reservists. Fleet reservists are former regular navy men who draw retainer pay.

Provision is made for retaining, during training of a replacement or longer, specially qualified officers for whom replacements are not available at once.

Enlisted personnel 42 years of age or older will continue to be eligible for discharge as heretofore.

'At Long Last' Wallie Given Her Passport

[Copyright: 1945; By Washington Times Herald]

Washington, D. C., July 20—Edward Windsor, who gave up a throne to marry "the woman I love" at long last has won his fight to go home and take his wife with him.

This was revealed tonight when the state department disclosed that, for the first time since this century's most famous lovers went into royal exile, visas have been granted to permit the former Wallis Warfield, as well as Windsor, to reënter England.

Her Long Fight Won

While neither he, who is staying at the British embassy here, nor his wife, at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, could be reached tonight, Washington friends said the British okay of their passports make it seem certain that the twice divorced Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson Windsor has won her long fight to force her acceptance by the English royal family.

And, as if to confirm the inference that the 78-year-old queen mother has relented to her first-born son, Windsor and his wife today completed plans to return to London with an entourage of 20.

The size of the entourage is regarded by both American and British friends of the couple as genuine proof that not only the dowager queen but also her son and Edward's brother, King George VI., have decided the time has come for Edward and Wallis to return.

Secretaries, Maids, Valets, Etc.

The entourage will include secretaries, valets, maids, and trusted servants and the necessary diplomatic arrangements for their return were personally attended to by Windsor himself at a long state department conference today.

That Mrs. Windsor's passport was among those for the rest of the party is in itself proof that she either has been or is about to be accepted by the royal family, protocol experts pointed out, observing that otherwise it would have been a simple matter for the British foreign office to shrug off the request for her passport as it has in times past.

She will travel on the same diplomatic passport as her royal husband, and members of the immediate party will enjoy the same privilege.

MEN WEAR PINK PANTIES TO HIDE THEIR CHAGRIN

Detroit, Mich., July 20 (AP)—While city officials vehemently denied today that Detroit men were turning sissies, local store clerks assert they are.

The officials defended their sex when told Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] had received a letter from a Detroit wholesaler stating the textile shortage had reduced men to "buying ladies' panties for their own use."

However, a department store clerk asserted she sold four pair of women's cotton "briefs" and a size 44 tearose stepin this week to women who admitted the garments were for their husbands.

Especially vehement in his denial was Councilman Henry S. Sweeney. He offered to prove to any one that his "panties aren't pink."

In another department store, a saleswoman said that "every now and then a woman insists on the plainest knitted white underpants we have, and in a size that wouldn't fit the purchaser."

A wholesaler said he had disposed of his entire supply of women's cotton "briefs" to a Saginaw, Mich., men's store.

Reporting numerous inquiries about women's "briefs," a men's store clerk said that apparently men want them but they won't go into women's departments to get them.

200 U.S. PLANES HIT SHANGHAI'S FIVE AIR FIELDS

City Docks Bombed in Second Raid

MANILA, July 21 [Saturday]—(AP)—More than 200 Far East Air Force bombers and fighters lashed airdromes and docks at Shanghai Wednesday for the second straight day, headquarters announced today. Five airdromes were bombed by Liberators, Mitchells, and Invader attack-bombers.

Fighters also struck railroad facilities and industrial targets in continuation of their day by day attacks on Kyushu.

The 7th air force heavy bombers dropped 100 pound general purpose bombs on Woosung airdrome on the banks of the Yangtze near Shanghai, causing three fires. Smoke rose 6,000 feet.

Kiangwan Field Hit

Sixty-two Mitchells bombed and strafed Tachang airdrome northwest of Shanghai and Tinghai air field, near the entrance of Hangchow bay, cratering revetments and starting fires.

Woosung was hit for the second time by another group of heavies, which then pounded Kiangwan's six runways and the hangar area. One grounded enemy plane was destroyed in this attack. Two or three more parked aircraft were smashed when 44 A-26 attack Invaders smacked Lunghwa airdrome in the old Chinese section of Shanghai.

On Kyushu the Mustangs damaged locomotives, box cars and factory areas in two industrial suburbs of Kagoshima. Both Kushikino and Miyakonojo, suburbs of Kagoshima, were bombed and strafed.

Over Formosa, a score of Liberators showered fragmentation bombs on Matsuyama air field, destroyed two grounded aircraft and damaged others. The bombers were met by heavy flak.

Fleet Blacked-Out

GUAM, July 21 [Saturday]—(AP)—While a security black-out still barred details of the American and British fleets' air-surface blows at Tokyo bay Wednesday and Thursday, navy and army headquarters today reported other widespread aerial thrusts.

The second strike by P-51 Mustang fighters in one day hit the Osaka-Nagoya industrial district Friday as 94 of the raiders from Okinawa raked boats, air fields, and aircraft factories in Okazaki, Oitsu, and Kamizaki without meeting aerial opposition. Three Mustangs were lost.

Eighty Mustangs based on Iwo Island struck earlier in the day at four industrial towns in the wake of a record pre-dawn strike by more than 600 Super Forts. Search planes of the fleet hit a medium cargo ship off eastern Honshu Friday, Adm. Nimitz announced.

Chicagoan Makes Kill

Navy search Privateers and Liberators had their best single day against Japanese shipping Wednesday, sinking 11 and damaging five small coastal cargo ships.

The second marine aircraft wing, by shooting down three enemy planes, ran its bag to 500 since it entered the Okinawa campaign April 7. Credited with one of the kills was Lt. Karl B. Witte, Chicago. Witte was credited with shooting down the 500th plane destroyed in the Ryukyus campaign by the second marine air wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. Louis E. Woods.

53 BRITISH SHIPS FIGHT IN INDIES AND IN PACIFIC

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The British information services today announced a list of 53 British and Dominion fleet units operating in Pacific and East Indies areas.

Included in the Pacific fleet are three 35,000 ton battleships, the Howe, King George V., and the Duke of York; five aircraft carriers, five cruisers, and 12 destroyers. Some are from the Australian and Canadian navies.

Estimates Yanks Lost 5,000 Tanks in Europe

LONDON, July 20 (AP)—The United States lost an estimated 5,000 tanks in the German war, said Maj. Gen. Henry B. Sayler, chief army ordnance officer in the European theater.

GOAL IS PEACE NOT CONQUEST, TRUMAN SAYS

Speaks at Raising of U.S. Flag in Berlin

BERLIN, July 20 (AP)—President Truman told the world today that the United States does not propose to trade its sacrifices in the bloodiest wars for territorial conquest or monetary gain.

Speaking only a few miles from the former kaiser's palace where he is working with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin on a formula for preserving Europe against future war, he declared:

"We are not fighting for conquest. There is not a piece of territory or one thing of a monetary nature we want out of this war."

Fighting for Mankind

The words were spoken at the historic occasion of the raising of the Stars and Stripes over the capital of Germany—"our greatest adversary." Picked infantrymen from the 2d ["Hell on Wheels"] armored division then heard this solemn warning:

"We must not forget that we are fighting for peace and for the welfare of mankind."

This was interpreted as an exposition of the American position, not only as relates to present negotiations for settlement of Europe's age-old territorial and other problems, but as new advice to the Japanese people that the war in the Pacific is not aimed at the people themselves.

"We want peace and we want to see the time come when we can do the things in peace that we have been able to do in war," the President said.

"Greatest Age" Possible

"If we can put this tremendous machine of ours which has made this victory possible to work for peace, we can look forward to the greatest age in the history of mank'nd.

"That," he concluded firmly, "is what we propose to do."

Historic Flag Raised

He had hurried to the ceremony by automobile direct from formal discussions with Churchill and Stalin.

When the President concluded, the historic flag which flew over the Capitol at Washington, D. C., the day the United States entered the war against the axis and which will be taken to Tokyo, was raised over the quarters of the American control forces occupying Berlin.

Mr. Truman reminded the troops it was being raised in the name of the people of the United States, who are "looking forward to a better world, a peaceful world, a world in which all the people will have an opportunity to enjoy the good things of life, and not just a few at the top."

Mr. Truman had hurried to the flag ceremony by automobile directly from formal discussions with Churchill and Stalin. Steady progress in the talks was indicated by word that the foreign secretaries were going into a daily huddle and forwarding their recommendations to the leaders as fast as they complete their study of the various phases of the conference.

British Foreign Secretary Eden returned to work today with Secretary of State Byrnes and Foreign Commissar Molotov, after an indisposition which prevented his attending President Truman's state dinner last night for Churchill and Stalin.

GROUP PROPOSED TO CARRY OUT BIG 3 DECISIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 20—Establishment in London of a commission of American, British, Russian, and French representatives, to interpret and put into effect decisions reached by the Big Three regarding European problems, is under consideration, diplomatic circles reported tonight.

The commission of ambassadors, similar to that created in Paris after the last war, would be administrative and executive, rather than advisory, and thus would differ from the European advisory commission whose main job was implementation of the terms of unconditional surrender for Germany and submission of them for approval to the four governments.

Once the new commission got the peace treaty operating, united nations peace organizations would take over, diplomatic observers said. In bridging the gap between drafting of plans for the final settlement of Europe and their realization, the commission, it is expected, will be called on to solve frontier problems, particularly in the Balkans and northern Italy.

Britain's Cost of Living Highest Since Oct. 1921

LONDON, July 20—The official cost of living index for Britain rose three points during June, from 104 to 107, the highest cost of living figure since October, 1921, it was announced today. A sharp increase in the price of potatoes was the main cause.

CAPITOL TO GET LIBERATION FLAG RAISED IN BERLIN

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The American flag that flew over Berlin today is destined to hang in the United States capitol dome, Maury Maverick, who owns the flag, said.

Maverick, former Texas congressman and now chairman of the smaller war plants corporation, declared the banner, which was raised in the presence of President Truman in Berlin, will be "a symbol of liberty for our friends and respect from our enemies."

Explaining his ownership of the flag, the Texan said: "When the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor, I was in a hospital with a heart attack. I called my office and told them to remind Dave Lynn [architect of the capitol] that I had reserved a place for the 'war flag' more than a year ago. I knew war was coming.

Flying December 8

"My people took the flag up to the capitol, saw it raised, and stayed there on the roof all day. It was there when we declared war on Japan December 8. It was back up there again on December 11 when we declared war on Germany and Italy.

"Then I wrote President Roosevelt that I would like to see it eventually hang in the capitol dome as a 'flag of liberation,' as a symbol of liberty for our friends and respect from our enemies. I asked him to take it on these trips he made.

"The President wrote back, 'I like your idea of the flag of liberation.' Mr. Roosevelt took it to Algiers and Casablanca, and other places. It flew over Rome. When it flies over Tokyo, that'll be wonderful."

Stored Awaiting War

Maverick did not tell how the flag was taken to Berlin, but it is understood that it was carried by President Truman in following the precedent set by Mr. Roosevelt.

Maverick first obtained the flag after it had flown over the capitol several weeks and stored it awaiting the coming of war.

CHARGE BRITISH OFFICERS BRING IN GERMAN CARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 20—British officers returning home from Germany are reported tonight to be risking heavy fines or jail sentences by smuggling expensive German automobiles into Britain. The cars are said to be given a coat of camouflage paint and an official looking number in workshops in Germany, driven to a channel port, and slipped onto a vessel headed for Britain. In the queue of vehicles being landed the cars are often missed by customs inspectors, it is said, and they then are equipped with illicit licenses for sale at exorbitant prices.

SENATORS INSIST U. S. KEEP ISLES WON IN BATTLE

Urge Truman to Ask Pacific Bases

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Senators today made it plain they hope President Truman was exempting strategic islands in the Pacific when he said in Berlin that the United States does not want "one piece of territory" out of this war.

Asserting this country is "fighting for peace and for the welfare of mankind," the President declared:

"We are not fighting for conquest. There is not one piece of territory or one thing of a monetary nature that we want out of this war. We want peace and prosperity for the world as a whole."

While legislators agreed with his main thesis, several said they hoped the renunciation of territorial gains does not carry with it loss of control of the Pacific islands taken from Japanese in bloody fighting.

Keep Bases, Byrd Demands

Sen. Byrd [D., Va.], who headed a delegation of senators who discussed the island question with American delegates at the San Francisco security conference, told a reporter:

"We must retain those island bases. We need them to keep the future peace in the Pacific."

Sen. Taft [R., O.] said he hopes all of the islands north of the equator remain in American control.

"Perhaps the President just overlooked that point in making his talk," he added.

Sen. Hatch [D., N. M.] said he is certain the President agreed with the view of the army and navy that American island bases are essential.

"I think the President was speaking of not retaining territory for selfish gain," Hatch said. "Any Pacific area we keep will be for defense purposes only and is likely to be almost entirely worthless for any other purposes."

Too Liberal: Ellender

Sen. Johnson [D., Col.] suggested that perhaps Mr. Truman was referring only to the European war.

But Sen. Ellender [D., La.] said that in any event he believed the President was being "too liberal."

"I believe that we not only ought to have the Pacific islands that we have conquered, but that we ought to have control of some of the military bases we have built in other parts of the world," he said.

Dutch Look to Big 3 for Slice of Germany

AMSTERDAM, Holland, July 20 (AP)—A sizable section of Dutch opinion favors annexing western Germany territory to compensate for war damage, and interest in the Potsdam conference here today is chiefly concerned with this possibility. J. Van Der Broek, former finance and commerce minister, has formed a working committee to propagandize this aim. The newspaper Het Parool has suggested the annexation of 3,861 square miles adjacent to the borders to help compensate for Netherlands war damage estimated at 14,750,000,000 guilders [$5,575,500,000].

Green Approves Bill for $350,000 Hospital

Springfield, Ill., July 20 [Special]—Gov. Green today signed into law a bill to spend $350,000 for a hospital unit at East Moline, for the care of mentally ill war veterans.

BERLIN CHIEFS MOVE TO CHECK BLACK MARKET

BERLIN, July 20 [Reuters]—The four allied commanders of Berlin have decided to take joint action to check black market activities, recently grown to alarming proportions.

Attention of the "kommandantur" [command post] was drawn to the problem by Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of the American zone, who urged coördinated steps to wipe out these activities.

The British, Russian, and French commanders agreed to Gen. Parks' proposal, and yesterday the provost marshals of the four allied commands met to prepare plans. The measures decided upon are reported to be already in force.

Civil Police to Act

German civil police will operate in the black market drive under direction of allied military authorities.

Altho no details of black market activities have been revealed, it was indicated that the drive will be directed equally against allied troops and German civilians who, between them, are held responsible for the illicit traffic.

There are at least half a dozen regular centers where goods of all sorts are regularly bartered for allied cigarets or rations of any kind.

The barter value of one cigaret, which had risen as high as 20 marks [$2.20 at the official rate] is reported to have fallen to 5 marks, indicating an enormous increase in the number of allied cigarets finding their way to the black market.

Leakage of Supplies

The chief concern of the allied authorities presumably is to stop wholesale leakage of allied supplies and rations, which would result in serious disruption of the German's civilian rationing schemes and price control.

Gravity of the problem is aggravated by the virtual certainty that Germany's and Berlin's supply crisis will be prolonged so that the black market is likely to outdo in scale and complexity anything that has yet been seen in liberated countries.

ROUND UP 500 IN PARIS

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, July 20—The belated drive to exterminate the French black market continued today with a roundup of more than 500 vendors of cigarets and rationed food, the arrest of 25 others, and an order to 100 more to remain at the disposal of the police.

The scene of Paris' biggest black market raid was a little street in the Belleveille working class district called the Rue Robert Houndin where curbside black markets have been operating for months.

Police Close Street

Police closed both ends of the block long street and went thru every building. A large quantity of illegal merchandise was seized, including such rarities as soap, clothes, shoes, cameras, films, pastry, gasoline, and canned goods, all obtained from United States army stocks.

UNREST SWEEPS ITALY

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, July 20—Widespread political and social unrest, and black marketing, violence and other forms of lawlessness and corruption are reported thruout Italy, according to the Italian press.

Today an allied military court sentenced one Partisan to death and two to 30 years in prison for attempted murder, pillaging, and robbery.

Communists Deny Blame

The official communist press has denied that communists are responsible for any terrorism. When a crowd broke into a prison near Venice and lynched 50 prisoners and the occurrence was ascribed to Communists, the Communist publication Unita blamed it on a Trotzkyist organization.

Italian opinion appears to blame the allies for conditions in the country today. Opinion is that Italian industrial output has been delayed by the lack of raw materials which the British and Americans have failed to supply.

Another reason given for the worsening of general conditions is that the gulf that has been created between buying power and the prices of necessities is having a heavy impact on the morale of the people.

Forest Aflame

Portland, Ore., July 20 (AP)—The ravenous Wilson river forest fire had gobbled up more than 70 square miles tonight, racing across 10,000 additional acres in the last 48 hours. Most of the gain was blamed on consolidation of widely scattered spot fires which sprang from flying embers. At least a half dozen new sections were burning beneath a thick blanket of smoke on the Salmonberry fire, north of the Wilson river blaze.

Spot fires thrown out by the two huge blazes flared up tonight in the same region near the Tillamook-Washington county line. Fire crews battled feverishly to keep them from consolidating. Meanwhile, loggers from the small lumber town of Glenwood appeared to have halted the main force of the blaze only 500 to 1,000 feet away from their homes. But a new spot fire began rolling toward both Glenwood and Cochran, towns about 50 miles northwest of here.

POTSDAM GETS PACIFIC BOUND MOSQUITO NET

BERLIN, July 20 [Reuters]—A consignment of mosquito netting arrived in Potsdam today from Marseille, France, in response to an emergency call from the Big Three conference compound.

Mosquitos, bred in countless millions in the great stretches of polluted waterways and lakes in the Berlin area, are an enormous problem all thru the city. The call went out yesterday for netting to protect the conference mess halls and the hospitals. The only netting available was found at Marseille where it was diverted from a shipment on its way to the Pacific.

Dysentery in Berlin

REVEAL MOTIVE OF BOMB PLOT AGAINST HITLER

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, July 20 (AP)—Officers of the G-2 [intelligence] division of United States forces in the European theater [U. S. F. E. T.] are convinced that one primary purpose of the July 20 bomb attempt on Adolf Hitler's life was to end the war in such a way as to leave the German general staff intact.

In their judgment the plotters, who made their bid for power just a year ago today, hoped after removing Hitler to negotiate a peace with the allies that would perpetuate the general staff, or at least leave it to prepare for the next war.

Members of G-2 who have examined hundreds of official interrogation reports have fitted together the fantastic details of one of the significant plots of history—which backfired into wholesale executions of Wehrmacht officers, altered the army's entire command, and accelerated the rush of the reich toward its final defeat.

Plans Put in Motion

Capt. Leroy Vogel, San Antonio, Tex., said, "After the disgrace of Stalingrad the general staff realized that if anything at all was to be saved for the future, Hitler would have to go, and some sort of peace would have to be negotiated while the Russians were still outside the reich's borders. So plans for his assassination were put in motion."

In Paris, Berlin, and elsewhere, key Wehrmacht commanders were to be ready to make wholesale arrests of SS garrisons once the signal of Hitler's death was flashed.

"It was a perfect plan, seemingly foolproof," said Lt. Ernest Miller of Astoria, N. Y., "It failed because of three trivial little incidents that could not be foreseen."

On the morning of July 20, Hitler arrived on schedule at his headquarters at Rastenburg, East Prussia. Photographs taken of his arrival show him surrounded by high ranking officers and shaking hands with his doctor.

They headed for the war room, where routine briefing on the military situation was to be held. But at the last moment, for some unexplained reason, the regular briefing room was abandoned for a larger one upstairs. This was the first definite break against the plotters.

A few minutes later Col. von Stauffenberg of the general staff came in. He carried a time bomb in his briefcase.

Saved by a Desk

Stauffenberg casually placed his briefcase on the floor next to the desk, spoke a few words to an acquaintance and drifted out into the hall. When briefing began a few moments later he had not returned.

One of those unforeseeable little incidents that sometimes alter history now took place. The briefing officer mentioned a place name that was unfamiliar to Hitler, and Hitler got up and walked across the room to have a closer look at the maps. This move placed a massive oak desk between Hitler and Von Stauffenberg's briefcase.

As Hitler stood squinting at the map a terrific explosion blazed thru the room, killing six officers and maiming the others. Hitler himself was thrown against the wall and partially stunned, but the lucky combination of the heavy oak desk, his curiosity about place names, and the roomier briefing room saved his life.

Four Officers Executed

Von Stauffenberg flew to Berlin. He went directly to his office, summoned his secretary and was dictating a new list of nazi officials to be shot when Himmler's SS closed in on him and told him the plot had failed.

"They took Stauffenberg to 11-13 Bendlestrasse, in the heart of Berlin, court martialed him with three other officers, and all four were sentenced to be shot," said T/3 Walter Hasenclever, Andover, Mass.

Gen. von Rundstedt, who knew of the plot but took no part in it, telephoned Von Stuelpnagel from Sedan and bluntly told him the plot had miscarried.

Gambler's Widow

Insurance policies in the amount of $15,000, war bonds valued at $225, and personal papers were found yesterday in the safe deposit box of Morris Margolis, slain liquor dealer, in the Lake Shore National bank, Michigan av. and Ohio st.

Among those present were his pretty widow, Doris, of 4300 Marine dr.; representatives of the state treasurer's office and the state's attorney general's office, and the Margolis family lawyer. The personal papers were described as valueless. The war bonds were made out to Margolis' infant son, Hal.

Margolis was found shot to death in his car in front of 1622 Ontario st. July 13. No clew to his slayers has been found. He operated in the liquor and handbook rackets, and was under federal indictment on a liquor black market charge.

LEOPOLD SOUGHT HITLER MEETING, BELGIUM IS TOLD

BRUSSELS, July 20 (AP)—Premier Van Acker told the Belgian parliament today that King Leopold III solicited an interview with Hitler at Berchtesgaden, refused to join the Belgian "Maquis," and voluntarily moved to Germany.

Van Acker made the accusations during a parliamentary debate on the royal controversy which boiled to a climax with enactment yesterday of a law virtually exiling the monarch.

Leopold "has not betrayed Belgium," Van Acker said, "but he believed in a German victory and made so many mistakes there's nothing left for him except abdication."

Sister Arranged Meeting

Van Acker asserted "the vital interests of Belgium cannot be sacrificed to one man, whoever he may be." He said 12 well known legal personalities advised Leopold against any interview with Hitler, but that Leopold had his sister, Princess Marie Jose of Piedmont, organize the meeting.

He said he possessed a copy of a memorandum prepared by persons who accompanied the king to Berchtesgaden, showing that the king not only discussed with Hitler better treatment of Belgian prisoners, and Belgian food problems, but that Leopold initiated conversations "on such political subjects as maintenance of his Saxe-Coburg dynasty, the military regime of Belgium, and German control of Belgian foreign affairs. All these things were to be put into practice after the conclusion of peace."

Van Acker, who was active in the underground during the German occupation, said he himself arranged for Leopold to join the "Maquis" as his brother, Regent Prince Charles, did. But, he continued, when he sent an emissary to the palace of Laeken where the monarch stayed, the king gave nine reasons for not following Van Acker's plan.

"U. S. Generals Brutal"

These reasons, the premier said, included: That Belgium would see bloodshed, and he did not want to be here when it occurred; that allied commanders would meddle in Belgian problems and the king couldn't stand that if he were in Belgium; that he didn't want to be in Belgium when allied forces landed on the continent, and "the king said that British and American generals were brutal and ill-mannered."

Only Catholic party speakers defended Leopold in the debate, and its leader, Carton De Wiart, successfully demanded from Van Acker all documents upon which the premier based his opening speech. Parliament adjourned the debate until Tuesday in order that party leaders might study the documents.

Van Acker said Leopold's life "has been full of tragedy."

He asserted the "king has not reacted like the whole nation in the face of the German invasion. He was convinced o. German victory and has not done all in his power to counteract the enemy's designs."

GIRL, 16, SLAYS WOOER, 15, AFTER A MELON PARTY

Stabs Him 17 Times with Commando Knife

Winona, Minn., July 20 [Special]—A 'teen aged couple's fight to the death, a bloody fray in which a bobby soxer fatally stabbed her too amorous young sweetheart with her soldier brother's army knife they shortly before had used at a water melon party, was disclosed by police today as they charged the girl with second degree murder.

Theresa Kouba, 16, composed, slack wearing brunette, told authorities she was protecting her honor when she stabbed her second cousin, Donald Cada, 15, a total of 17 times as they fought in a willow patch to which he had taken her on the handle bars of his bicycle.

Tells Attack by Stranger

The girl, one of a family of 14 children—including five brothers in military service—first told an elaborate story that she and her young companion had been attacked by a stranger as they sat together in the willows. She even reenacted at the scene the events she said had taken place.

But her addition of too many details finally tripped her. Confronted with the fact that darkness would prevent her from seeing the colors of the "stranger's" clothes which she described, she confessed she had committed the crime alone.

She disclosed that after the killing Wednesday night, she went home and casually tossed her bloody blouse and bobby socks into the family wash, cleaned off the blood that covered her right arm to the elbow, and washed and replaced her brother's commando-type knife.

Joined in Melon Party

Early Wednesday evening she and Cada, with whom she had been "going around" recently, and another young couple had participated in a watermelon party on a street corner in the thinly settled east side of town not far from the Mississippi river. The watermelon, bought at a store, was carved with the knife Theresa had brought along in its sheath. Her brother, Pvt. James Kouba, had brought it home on a furlough expected to precede his overseas assignment.

About 10 p. m., the girl said, Cada suggested that she accompany him on his bicycle and he would get and sell to her four boxes of .22 cartridges he said he had hidden down by the river. They rode a short distance, left the bicycle and walked about a block farther into the willows.

Seized Her by Arm

There Cada became amorous, Theresa said. When she resisted his attentions, she said, the boy grabbed her by the arm.

"I jerked away from him but he grabbed me again and tore my blouse," she related. "We struggled and he hit me in the mouth, breaking my partial dental plate, part of which fell to the ground.

"Then I reached for the knife, which I had in its sheath in the pocket of my slacks. I hit him with it in the chest and shoulders. He yelled and came after me. I struck him again, I don't know where. He grabbed me and we scuffled.

"I jerked my right arm free and, as he spun around, I struck him twice in the back. When he started to fall I struck him in the side near his heart."

She Rests on Grass

She said she then ran from the scene until she had to stop and "sit on the grass and rest for quite a while." Then she went home and, at the porch, talked for a few minutes with her father, John C. Kouba, 67, retired, a Spanish war veteran.

She went to her room, changed to her pajamas, then into the kitchen where she washed the blood from her arm and cleaned the knife. She cleaned her bloody shoes, then threw her red blouse and bobby socks into the laundry, and returned to the porch where she talked half an hour with her father and a girl visitor.

Yesterday morning she was in a dentist's office having her four tooth dental plate remade when Cada's body was found in the willows and police began a search for her. They had found her broken plate at the scene and had been told by her melon party companions that she was last seen with Cada.

Talks to Brother

For nearly four hours Theresa held to her story that she and Cada were attacked by a stranger. When trapped by discrepancies in her account, she asked to talk to her brother, James, and, after conversing with him 10 minutes, signed a statement admitting the killing.

Today Chief of Police A. J. Bingold signed a complaint charging her with second degree murder and County Atty. W. K. Nissen said the grand jury would be called into session to act on the case. She will be arraigned tomorrow morning before Municipal Judge E. D. Libera.

202 DODGE PLANT WORK STOPPAGES CALLED ILLEGAL

Law and Pact Kept Once, Company Says

203 The 83 employes of the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation who struck Thursday in protest against disciplinary action taken against a fellow worker accused of loafing on the job returned to their work in the assembly department yesterday after a loss of seven hours' working time per man.

The strikers, all members of local 274, United Automobile Workers [CIO], walked out because of a three day layoff given to John Krzyanowski, 5218 Honore st. The plant, one of the nation's major producers of B-29 engines, has had 203 work stoppages since the union contracts were approved in May, 1944.

In only one of the 203 work stoppages, a company spokesman said, have the unions involved followed either provisions of the Smith-Connally act or bargaining principles incorporated in the company's contract with the union.

Longest Strike in Forge Division

The single strike in which the proper procedure was followed occurred last May 28 when 600 employes of the company's forge division walked out in protest against a war labor board decision on a union demand for increased wages. The walkout followed a strike vote taken on May 5 under the auspices of the national labor relations board.

This strike, which lasted until June 11, was the longest walkout which has occurred at the Dodge plant. It was conducted by members of local 495 of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers, and Helpers [AFL].

The shortest strike on company records lasted only five minutes. On this occasion four men employed on the production line refused to work in protest over a change in foremen. On April 28, 17 Negroes employed in the aluminum foundry quit for one hour when they learned that one of their former workers had failed to pass an examination for an inspector's job.

166,291 Man Hours Lost

Man hours lost in the 203 work stoppages have totaled 166,291, company officials reported. The exact number of engines for B-29s which were not produced because of the lost time cannot be disclosed because of army restrictions.

The reasons given for the stoppages have varied from disputes over union wage demands to a quarrel over the type of coat hangers provided for the workers by the company.

On March 23 one of the assembly departments was closed because 38 employes said that a general foreman walked thru their department too often. Another time 212 electricians struck because they objected to disciplinary action against two men found sleeping on the job.

On Dec. 22, 1944, 200 employes walked out because the company took away chairs, stools, and boxes used as seats at their machines. The company said the action was taken to "improve efficiency."

HITLER WAS NOT ON U-BOAT 530, ADMIRAL SAYS

KIEL, Garmany, July 20 (AP)—Adm. Eberhard Godt, operations chief for the former German navy underseas fleet, said today the German submarine U-530, which surrendered to Argentina last week, had left "Kiel or a Norwegian port" on March 3 and that neither Adolf Hitler nor Eva Braun was aboard.

The admiral said that reports that Hitler and his mistress had been put ashore in Argentina by the U-530 were wild rumors.

"I certainly would have known if the U-530 had been ear-marked for any special mission," Godt said.

U. S. CASH ASKED FOR ROOSEVELT ESTATE UPKEEP

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 20—A congressional proposal was disclosed today which would permit members of the late President Roosevelt's family to occupy, whenever they choose, the Hyde Park, N. Y., estate which he donated to the government and to place the cost of maintaining the property on the government during their absence.

Rep. O'Toole

Introduced without publicity recently by Rep. O'Toole [D., N. Y.], chairman of the library committee, the proposed resolution would set aside a provision adopted by congress in accepting Roosevelt's donation of the estate.

This provision specifies that the United States shall not incur any expenses in connection with maintenance of the property while rights of tenancy are reserved by the widow or members of the family.

Ickes the Paymaster

O'Toole's resolution states that notwithstanding this provision, Interior Secretary Ickes is authorized to pay expenses of maintaining the Hudson river residence and adjoining property as a national historic site "during such time as he determines that there is no actual occupancy thereof by any of the life tenants."

The effect of the O'Toole resolution, if approved by congress, congressional lawyers said, would be to maintain the house and land as a sort of summer home for the Roosevelts. They could occupy the premises during the pleasant months of the year and pay expenses, including taxes, during this period of residence. The government would act as caretaker of the property, paying all expenses of maintenance, whenever they were absent.

Perpetual Guard at Grave

The O'Toole resolution would also provide a legal basis for the perpetual army guard over the President's grave which has been maintained since his burial. A $50,000 a year appropriation for this 24 hour watch and other expenses of maintaining the site will be asked of congress as soon as all members of the Roosevelt family have relinquished their rights of tenancy.

"The secretary of the interior is further authorized and directed to provide for the proper guarding at all times of the grave of Franklin D. Roosevelt," the resolution states.

The resolution, referred to O'Toole's library committee, cannot be acted upon until after the house recess ends in October.

HOUSE GROUP CLEARS CAPT. COLLINS IN ARMY REDS PROBE

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—A house military subcommittee removed today from the records of its investigation of army policies concerning Communists the name of Capt. Henry Clovis Collins, Napier Field, Ala.

Chairman Thomason [D., Tex.] said a case of mistaken identity was responsible for inclusion of the name of Capt. Collins in a list of 16 army personnel whose backgrounds were said by the committee's chief counsel, H. Ralph Burton, to "reflect communism in some form."

[At Dothan, Ala., Capt. Collins said he had never heard of the communist group with which his name was associated and said, "I think it's a case of mistaken identity."]

The names were made public by the committee Wednesday.

Burton said the committee had no evidence whatever that Capt. Collins had a questionable background. His name was confused in the testimony, Burton said, with a similar name of a man who had been a panel member of the national action conference for civil rights.

Chairman Sabath [D., Ill.] of the house rules committee later told the house Burton "should be investigated himself for his un-American activities."

Rep. Delacy [D., Wash.] said Burton in 1934 was chief counsel for Kurt Georg Wilhelm Ludecke, whom he identified as "a personal representative in this country for Adolf Hitler."

Now 44 and gray haired, Martin Durkin, spectacular bandit of 20 years ago, yesterday weeded a flower bed at Stateville prison while awaiting his release Aug 5 after serving nearly 19 years of a 35 year sentence.

Durkin was sentenced in 1926 for the murder of Edward C. Shanahan, a federal agent, in Chicago. Guards said he is now quiet and reserved in contrast to the jauntiness that marked his crime career.

Deputy United States marshals will be waiting at the prison gates to take Durkin to a federal penitentiary to serve 11 years for driving stolen automobiles across a state line in violation of the Dyer act. Durkin has a petition pending before Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe to remove the detainer for his federal imprisonment.

U. S. PROTESTING BRITISH CHARGE FOR USING SUEZ

came known today, in the disclosure of a war department directive approved by President Truman.

The goods are expected to include raw materials, transportation equipment, and industrial and agricultural machinery.

Oscar Cox, deputy administrator of the foreign economic administration, said the presence of American troops in Italy, plus Italy's recent declaration of war against Japan, were held to justify lend-lease aid.

Cox explained that the lend-lease act authorizes aid whenever America's national interest is jeopardized and that the plan is to aid Italy's internal economy as a measure in the United States defense.

CHARGES 'FRAUD' BY OPA

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Rep. Latham [R., N. Y.] accused the OPA today of failing to halt the "disgraceful" practice of permitting "desperately tight" foodstuffs to be shipped to foreign countries point free.

Recently he told the house that department stores thruout the country were accepting orders from individuals whereby food packages, containing butter, sugar, and meat, could be shipped to friends abroad.

Helping Black Market

"So far," he told the house today, "OPA has done nothing to remedy this disgraceful and unbelievable situation and, in recent months, these shipments have reached enormous proportions.

OPA's failure to "eliminate or control" the shipments, Latham said, placed it in the position of "indirectly helping to support the black market in butter, sugar, and meat."

"How can the OPA expect the American people to shun the black market when the agency, itself, encourages it by failure to act in the matter?" he asked.

Called 'Fraud on People

"I charge," he asserted, "that this is a fraud on the American people who created the OPA to prevent shortages in this country, not to encourage them."

Latham said he was hopeful that Agriculture Secretary Anderson would put an immediate stop to the practice.

OPA officials declined comment on Latham's remarks, but said an order forbidding such food shipments will be issued as soon as details can be worked out.

FRANCO CABINET SHUFFLED; NEW FOREIGN CHIEF

MADRID, Spain, July 20 (AP)—The Spanish government announced tonight the formation of a new cabinet headed by Generalissimo Franco and with Alberto Martin Artajo, Catholic lay leader, replacing Jose Felix Lequerica as minister of foreign affairs. Falange Leader Jose Luis Arrese was dropped as minister without portfolio.

Raimundo Fernandez Cuesta, former secretary general of the Falange, was named as the new minister of justice. Cuesta replaced Eduardo Aunos. Five members of the new cabinet were regarded as sympathetic to a monarchy for Spain.

Spaniards had expected a reorganization of the cabinet since the San Francisco conference statement that governments organized with axis aid would not be accepted into the united nations.

Asks Union of Republicans

MEXICO CITY, July 20 (AP)—Dr. Juan Negrin, last premier of the Spanish republic, said tonight he considered the time ripe for a union of republican factions to "restore legality" to Spain—"if possible, without violence." Negrin announced today that he had met with members of his former cabinet. Tonight he said he was president of "the government in exile." He will confer with all republican factions to determine "what steps" should be taken, he said.

RAIL POVERTY IS PLEADED IN WAGE HEARING

The Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad is a poor railroad trying to get along, its executive officer, Bernard J. Fallon, said yesterday. For that reason, he told the emergency mediation panel hearing wage demands of the road's operating employes, he believes it unwise of the unions to demand the scale paid by steam roads.

Besides the North Shore and the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin railroad, which also is involved in the wage dispute, there is only one other comparable electric interurban line in the country, Fallon said.

He explained that the Chicago, South Shore & South Bend railroad gets 45 per cent of its revenue from freight, whereas the North Shore receives only 10 per cent of its income from that source.

Stronghold Taken by Chinese Troops

CHUNGKING, China, July 20 (AP)—Chinese troops have captured Yiyang, key waterway control stronghold just south of Tung Ting lake in China's great "rice bowl," the Chinese high command announced today as Premier T. V. Soong predicted victory this year or early in 1946.

On widespread fronts, the Chinese announced the clearing of 50 miles of the South China "invasion coast," and further advances toward Kweilin, while an American bulletin hinted at a Chinese thrust at Caobang, 15 miles inside Indo-China.

The United States bulletin, without elaboration, said American fighters "in support of Chinese ground forces attacked machine gun positions at Caobang in French Indo-China, inflicting casualties." The Chinese have not mentioned any drive toward Caobang.

Yiyang, in Hunan province 55 miles northwest of Changsha, is a control point in enemy waterway communications between Changsha and Tung Ting Lake, which lies in the heart of the rice bowl.

A Chinese army spokesman said the Japanese had moved 100,000 troops out of Hunan in the last month, sending part of them to Shantung province in apparent fear of United States landings there. Shantung borders the Yellow sea opposite Korea.

PLANES ATTACK JAPS IN BORNEO; FIGHTING SLOWS

MANILA, July 21 [Saturday]—There was a lull in ground activity on Borneo, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters reported today. The Australians consolidated newly won positions in the Sambodja oil fields and sent patrols over a wide area in the Brunei Bay area. Lightnings of the 13th air force flew in support, hitting Langkon while Mitchell bombers smashed at Jesselton dispersal areas. The Mitchells scored seven hits on what were reported to be underground storage areas. More than 25 Australian Spitfires and Kittyhawks bombed and strafed Sandakan, on Borneo's northeast coast, while a pair of Liberators damaged a small freighter and river craft at the mouth of the Mahakam river.

JAPS AIR SOME DOUBLE TALK BY CAGEY ADMIRAL

San Francisco, Cal., July 20 (AP)—Radio Tokyo broadcast two versions today of an article by a retired commander in chief of the Japanese fleet. One for foreign consumption promised a sudden, decisive blow against the allies, the other, for homefront listeners, admitted American air and sea supremacy.

The admiral quoted was Sankichi Takahashi, 63 year old navy chief in 1933-'34. Tokyo said Takahashi declared the Japanese navy and air force would soon "unleash that one last blow," and hinted that "that moment is not far off."

The Japanese language portion admitted that the "cautious tactics" by the Japanese navy were dictated by allied sea and air superiority, but contained a promise that this advantage would be gradually whittled down, presumably by surface and air suicide attacks.

AMERICANS WAIT AS BRITISH GET 30,000 BATHTUBS

Spokesmen for American plumbing firms charged yesterday that action taken last April by the federal public housing authority in earmarking 30,000 American made bathtubs for lend-lease shipment to Britain has drained the domestic market of all surplus bathtub inventories.

Bathtubs in this country, they pointed out, are so scarce they require a priority issued by the federal housing administration or the war production board before an American can get one.

The plumbing industry spokesmen, who asked that their names be withheld because they said they feared possible reprisal by federal burocrats, disclosed that some 7,500 of the tubs have been shipped to England to date for installation in bomb damaged homes.

Report Threats of Seizure

Shipments, they said, have been under direction of William P. Seaver, assistant commissioner for development of FPHA in charge of that agency's foreign shelter division.

One of the plumbing industry spokesmen said Seaver has threatened several American bathtub manufacturers with Presidential seizure of their plants unless they desisted from efforts to balk the British shipments.

The manufacturers who were threatened with soldier rule of their establishments are said to have protested giving preference to the British orders which they contended would slow up delivery of 27,000 bathtubs needed for emergency homes being built in California for shipyard workers aiding America's fight on Japan.

WPB Said to Oppose FPHA

As a result of the controversy which has developed, the WPB is said to have joined with the manufacturers in an attack on FPHA to cancel some of the British quota.

The spokesmen reported, however, that Seaver continues adamant in his demand that the remaining 22,500 bathtubs in the British allotment be shipped to England before Oct. 1.

Prospective bathtub purchasers now must wait from 60 to 90 days before their orders can be filled, Chicago plumbing supply houses reported.

E. J. Kelly, Chicago FHA director, said his office early this month received instructions from WPB to discontinue issuing priorities for bathtubs sought by individual buyers. The WPB notice, Kelly said, advised that the tubs had been taken off the critical list and could be bought without a permit.

Returned to Priority List

These instructions, he disclosed, were countermanded 10 days ago by WPB, which ordered FHA to return the tubs to the critical category needing a priority. Kelly said he understood that persons attempting to purchase tubs during the 10 day interval when the WPB said they could be had without a permit were unsuccessful.

One plumbing concern representative said such persons were "simply laughed out of the stores." He described the bathtub shortage as "one of the worse jobs of burocratic bungling" this country has witnessed. "But we might as well give the tubs to England," he said. "The British have cleaned us. Now we'll let them clean themselves."

WITH THE U. S. FLEET SUBMARINES, July 20—Every place you go among submarine men you hear the same complaint: "It's not like the old days." These days you have to hunt for something to sink.

Rear Adm. James Fife, commander of 7th fleet submarines, says it's so. "The task of submarines has been rapidly drawing to a close," he says. "Jap shipping has been driven from, or under, the sea."

It was not always thus. Lt. Comdr. Nelson [Bud] Watkins spent the first Christmas of the war on the bottom of Lingayen gulf. The Japs were building a beachhead there and the submarines—the S-boats—were told the gulf held 80 transports and four destroyers. "Put when we got there it must have been the other way 'round—four transports and 80 destroyers," Watkins says.

There were so many destroyers, at least, that no S-boat got in a single shot.

A short while later an S-boat, a 20 year old tub, went hunting off Borneo. The crew saw what appeared to be two freighters and attacked. "We were talking when we should have been listening," Watkins says. The ships turned out to be decoys, fast and heavily armed against submarines. In addition, two destroyers came rushing out from ambush.

The old S-boat submerged and stayed there. It wasn't air conditioned and the men got hot. "We never will know just how hot," Watkins says, "because our thermometers went only to 150 degrees and they blew up when the temperature passed that.

"Sweat poured off the men as tho they were standing in showers. It doesn't seem possible, but when the sub came up after 26 hours we were standing inches deep in our own sweat."

Incidentally, the S-boat later returned to the United States and was air conditioned so never more would the men sweat in the tropics. Then she was sent to the Arctic.

* *

The Sturgeon, known as the Virgin, was another sub out here at the start of the war. In Makassar strait she sank her first ship. Her skipper, Capt. W. L. [Bull] Wright, Corpus Christi, Tex., sent a classic report. "The Sturgeon is no longer a virgin," he said.

At night on the surface the Sturgeon tried to pick up news broadcasts to learn what was happening. "We have the Jap ships bottled up in Makassar strait," one radio announcer triumphed. The Sturgeon was glad to hear that. At the moment she was alone in the strait with Jap ships all around. "We spent 5 per cent of the time chasing Japs and 95 per cent running," Capt. Wright recalls.

* *

Capt. Dick Hawes, who came up from the ranks to command the Pigeon, had her tied up at Cavite the day the war began. Jap bombers hit ships on both sides of her but missed the Pigeon.

The Pigeon was a sub rescue vessel and there was plenty of repair work to do. The Pigeon's men did it. "Give a bluejacket time and material and he will build you a ladder right up to the moon," Hawes says.

Whenever he found a loose gun any place he mounted it on the Pigeon, and soon the Pigeon was one of the mightiest vessels in Manila harbor. She knocked down three planes before the Japs learned to respect her.

When Manila fell, Hawes and some others were sent back to the United States for a new tender.

3 HOSPITAL AIDS HELD TO JURY IN SAILOR'S DEATH

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—A coroner's jury today ordered three attendants held for grand jury action in connection with the death of a sailor, a mental patient at the government operated St. Elizabeth's hospital here.

The sailor, Seaman 2d Class Clark J. Leeper, 22, formerly of Phoenix, Ariz., died Wednesday of a ruptured liver, Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said. Leeper's parents now live at Richmond, Cal.

It had been disclosed previously by hospital authorities than an investigation was under way to ascertain the circumstances under which Howard J. Crandall, 21, of San Diego, Cal., a discharged sailor, had died at the hospital.

Bonds Set at $1,500 Each

The three attendants held for the grand jury, with individual bonds set at $1,500, were Fred A. Brown, 40; Lloyd L. Lacey, 50, and Samuel H. Seigel, 38.

Witnesses at the hearing said Leeper had become "upset" after being denied the privilege of walking about the hospital grounds because he made a "nuisance" of himself.

Four attendants were required to place him in seclusion, James Carter, a hospital supervisor said, and furniture in Leeper's room was ordered removed, along with his clothing. The sailor subsequently was found unconscious.

Saw Pair Strike Patient

Cecil C. Morris, a hospital attendant, testified that he saw Brown and Lacey strike Leeper, and that he saw Siegel kick the seaman once in the side.

Morris testified that in his opinion the sailor was only "stubborn" and that the blows were "unprovoked."

Dr. Winfred Overholser, hospital superintendent, said he wanted a complete investigation, because "we won't tolerate mistreatment of patients."

Overholser disclosed that Crandall died about two weeks ago from peritonitis which developed from a stomach injury. He said the death was attributed to injuries received in a struggle June 30 when he escaped temporarily from the hospital grounds.

Yanks Tell of Brutality

Lincoln, Neb., July 20 (AP)—Four enlisted men, brought from far-flung army installations, appeared as witnesses today at the opening of the court martial trial of Capt. Stanley T. Jones, Utica, N. Y.

The former police and prison officer at the Lincoln army air field is being tried on charges of permitting guards to strike prisoners and failing to take disciplinary action against the guards.

Capt. Antony Parisi, Staten Island, N. Y., provost marshal at the field during the same period, will face similar charges following the completion of Jones' trial, officials said.

Pvt. Allen J. White, 1800 7th av., New York City, now stationed in Ogden, Utah, said he had been hit with a club and a pistol by a guard, who was not satisfied with the speed at which he moved.

Tech. Sgt. Edderd Smith of Weirton, W. Va., corroborated White's testimony, and Guard Pvt. Alfred L. Winkle of Ector, Tex., returned to testify from Ladd field, Alaska, said he struck White in self-defense on both occasions.

Pvt. Ellis Kraft of Cleveland, O., brought from Tampa, Fla., to appear at the trial, said he was struck in the head in the guard office when taken there for being asleep.

DOUBLE CRISIS PLAGUES JAPAN, COL. LANZA SAYS

Needs More Food, Way to Save Industry

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA

Japan since the beginning of June has been undergoing a heavy and continuous attack from American planes. Since July 10, this has been supplemented by naval attacks, mostly by American ships but with some British and Australian participation.

An extraordinarily large number of refugees is the immediate result of the practical destruction of the great cities of Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya, Kyoto and the partial destruction of Yokohama, Kobe and Hiroshima. The first four cities had a combined population of 12,500,000. Tokyo alone had 6,800,000, and a Japanese report at the beginning of July stated that only 200,000 persons were being kept in the ruins of that once great city.

Food Issue Now Serious

The loss of the great cities, burned out and with the populations displaced, would appear to be a prime cause of food crisis. In normal times Japan was not quite able to feed her people from local resources. By making some changes and by reducing the diet of the people, returned missionaries have stated Japan would be able to get by and could not be starved out. These reports related to 1944, and were correct then, but not now.

Only 15 per cent of Japan has been under cultivation. The remainder of the country is too hilly or has unsuitable soils. The small area farmed was divided into a number of isolated areas along the sea coast and in the main valleys. The food raised had to be distributed. Therein has arisen a serious difficulty.

Railroads in Japan were primarily for passenger transportation. Freight went by water. The naval and air blockade has reduced this to low limits. Roads are plentiful in Japan. They were constructed for jinrickishas drawn by men. Except for certain areas where roads have been widened, they are too narrow for trucks, of which there are few.

Fish Supplies Reduced

There has been a shortage of fish supplies. This has been caused thru the sinking of fishing vessels by America and her allies. A part of the fisheries business has been conducted inshore by small boats at night, and probably still continues. A large part was by ocean going vessels operating off shore by day, and this has about stopped.

What are the Japanese doing about it? They are attempting to raise more crops. Theoretically this is possible. A considerable area was devoted in the last 20 years to the cultivation of mulberry trees. As silk is no longer needed for export, it would be possible to chop down these trees and plant something else. A beginning in this line was made as early as 1938, apples and cherries being substituted.

Land previously considered unsuitable also is being brought under cultivation. There are rather large areas of sand and gravel. It is now stated that it has been found possible to grow potatoes on such land, and the Japanese claimed production this year was equal to 15 per cent of the rice crop, which has been deficient to about that extent. The potato crop in 1946 is to be increased to 25 per cent of the rice crop. By these and similar means Japan hopes to be able to surmount her serious food crisis.

Industries Seek Haven

Japan is planning to transfer industries to the mainland. This is an admission that previous declarations that home industries had dispersed, or had gone underground, were untrue. Just what has been done in this field is unknown.

There has been an increase of Japanese war plants on the mainland. It appears that this may have been mostly new construction. Only a part of the home plants has been moved to Asia, gone underground, or been broken up into small dispersed plants.

With the bombing and shelling campaign on, an industrial crisis has arisen on top of the food crisis. There again, the inability to move bulky materials, such as coal, coke, cement, ore, and finished products by water has accentuated the bad situation in which Japan finds herself.

All this is, of course, what the shelling and bombing were intended to accomplish—make it impossible for Japan to resist effectively.

Japan is in a situation more critical than she had ever expected to be in.

SYRIA DEMANDS ALLIED TROOPS MOVED AT ONCE

DAMASCUS, July 20 [Reuters]—Fayez El Khoury, Syria's prime minister, said today that he hoped all foreign troops whose presence was not required for the prosecution of the war against Japan would be withdrawn from the Levant at once. This, he said, would set the seal on Syrian and Lebanese independence.

Khoury, who returned a few days ago from the San Francisco conference, said:

"In common with the other united nations we are at war with Japan and we shall allow our countries to be used as lines of communication when required. But the use of our countries in that manner will not in any way constitute a threat to our independence and sovereignty."

The Inquiring Camera Girl

THE QUESTION

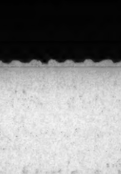
WHERE ASKED

39 S. La Salle st. Building.

THE ANSWERS

E. H. Young, passenger agent, 826 S. Wabash av.—I never saw anything like the action of a man in Minneapolis who had just come into a sizable amount of money. The first thing he thought of was that he ought to celebrate, and he did. He hired two taxicabs, put his hat in one, and sat in the other, and rode all over.



Vernon Gunn, transportation manager, Elmhurst—Back in 1929, when aviation was sprouting wings, an overheated passenger in a single engine plane was gasping for air. He asked, "How do you get fresh air in here?" The pilot answered jokingly, "Kick out a window, I guess." The passenger kicked out two windows.

Marjorie Redenbeaux, reservations, 6610 Kimbark av.—There's a sign on the street in front of the city hall in Evanston that's as big as I am, and it says "90 minute parking." Of all the crazy places to leave an automobile all afternoon, that's the worst I can think of. I did it just today and got a nice yellow ticket!

Jeanette Kammer, secretary, 430 W. Maple av., Lombard—Out in the forest preserves, my girl friends and I dared a fellow to climb to the top of a tree. The tree was about three stories high. He went as high as the branches would hold, then swung from limb to limb like Tarzan. That's dangerous.

Frank Wachdorf, cargo operations, 4434 Gilbert av., Western Springs—A man carrying a bowling ball tried to enter a night club on the 11th floor of a hotel in Louisville, Ky. When denied admittance because he wasn't properly dressed, he rolled the bowling ball down the 11 flights of stairs and thru the lobby.

Bob Ramey, director industrial relations, 1400 Lake Shore dr.—I used to have a neighbor who did everything in a hurry. On winter mornings he'd warm up his car with the garage closed. On three occasions within four months, he forgot to open the doors before backing out and knocked the doors off the hinges each time.

MAN'S SKELETON IN STEEL BOX BAFFLES POLICE

LIVERPOOL, England, July 20 (AP)—Baffled police searched tonight for new evidence to help explain the mystery of a man's skeleton found sealed in a steel cylinder in a ruins left by a bombing.

With the skeleton, fully dressed in old fashioned clothes, were two diaries dated 1884 and 1885, a postcard dated in Birmingham July 3, 1885, and a railway ticket dated June 27, 1885. Police said the remains had been at the site from 10 to 60 years.

A gold signet ring, seven keys and an undated billhead bearing the name of a former Liverpool firm also were found in the cylinder, which was 6 feet 9 inches in length and 19 inches in diameter, and sealed except for a 4 inch aperture at one end.

The discovery was made a week ago. A formal coroner's inquest was held yesterday, but was adjourned for a month to allow time for investigation and a hunt for evidence. The police said they were unable to determine who the man was, how and when he died, how his body came to be in the cylinder and how the cylinder came to be on the bombed site.

ESCAPED YANKS TELL SURRENDER OF WAKE ISLAND

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Two survivors of the heroic marine garrison on Wake Island said today the defenders surrendered to the Japanese largely to prevent further slaughter of unarmed civilians.

Seventy civilians had already been killed, along with 49 marines, when the little Pacific island was finally given up to strong enemy forces on Dec. 23, 1941, they related.

The survivors, first to tell of the last hours on Wake, were 1st Lieutenants John A. McAlister, 26, of Blue Mountain, Miss., and John F. Kinney, 30, of Colfax, Wash. They have just reached Washington after escape from a prisoner of war camp near Shanghai, China. How they managed that is a secret.

500 Jap Casualties

They told a news conference there were 435 marines on Wake at the start and that the 50th marine death came the day after surrender. Japanese casualties totaled about 500.

Lt. Kinney was credited with keeping the island's few planes in the air by a process of patching, swapping parts, stripping and rebuilding.

Kinney said he was in an improvised hospital suffering from exhaustion when the surrender order came, and a surrender flag was raised over the hospital shack. When Japanese troops arrived, he said, all personnel who were able were standing with arms raised, but the Japanese nevertheless fired into the shack, killing two and wounding one.

Stripped, Tied to Posts

All of the surrendering garrison were stripped naked and tied to posts for several hours and then kept in the open for two days. On Christmas night they were moved to barracks and given two meals a day from their own stores.

Except for about 300 civilians and a few specialist military personnel left behind as a labor battalion, and a few too ill to move, the island's garrison was put aboard the former passenger liner Nita Maru on the afternoon of Jan. 12. No one was allowed to take anything except the clothes he wore. All were locked up in holds below deck, not allowed to talk, and had to sleep on the bare deck.

Food in the prison camp consisted of small portions of rice, and occasionally some cabbage or carrots with a tiny piece of meat about every third meal.

The officers were paid $60 in central reserve bank money monthly. At the time they left, the exchange rate was 14,000 such dollars to one United States dollar. Ten Japanese cigarets, "apparently made out of seaweed," cost $40.

Jap Cruiser Sunk

When the first attack came Dec. 8, Kinney was 60 miles at sea with a four plane patrol. The garrison's eight other planes were dispersed on the ground as much as possible, but the first attack destroyed seven and badly damaged the eighth. Of the island's 44 air personnel, 20 were killed or wounded.

The first sea attack came on Dec. 11. This resulted iin the sinking of a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers and damage to another cruiser and a transport.

That was when the final dramatic message went out:

REPORT SLAYER OF MATTEOTTI SEIZED IN ITALY

MILAN, Italy, July 20 (AP)—Press dispatches said today Amerigo Dumini, Mussolini follower accused of murdering the Socialist deputy, Giacomo Matteotti in 1926, had been arrested by Italian police at Piacenza. He was reported to have been working under an assumed name as a truck driver.

A strong-arm man for Mussolini when the Fascists were gaining power in Italy, Dumini was convicted of killing Matteotti soon after the decapitated body was found. He was released by Mussolini after serving a few months in prison. In a speech before parliament, Mussolini denied Fascists were responsible for the deputy's death.

Dumini was born in St. Louis, Mo., of an Italian father and an English mother. His father returned to Italy when he was a boy and took him along.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

July 21—First Battle of Bull Run

In the early morning hours of July 21, 1861, a Union force which should have been at Sudley Springs on Bull Run to execute a flanking attack was in reality several miles away.

In the late evening hours of the same day Confederate troops were bivouacking in the vicinity of Manassas, Va., when they might have been pursuing routed federal forces along the road to Washington, D. C.

These were two of the egregious blunders which were committed by both the Union and Confederate forces at the first battle of Bull Run 84 years ago today.

Five days before, Gen. Irvin McDowell and his Union army had left the vicinity of Washington on the war's first "On to Richmond" drive. [Richmond, Va., was the newly established Confederate capital.]

McDowell advanced to Centreville. The Confederate base was at Manassas. Between the two towns ran the little stream called Bull Run, which the Confederate generals, Joseph E. Johnston and P. G. T. Beauregard, and their men had reached during McDowell's slow approach.

On the 21st one Union division was to attack the stone bridge over Bull Run on the direct road from Centreville while two others were to execute a flanking movement to the right and, after crossing Bull Run by a ford, come upon the Confederates from an unexpected direction. Curiously, McDowell had not sent his flanking column up to the ford on the previous night, but had allowed them to leave at 2:30 a. m. on the 21st. They arrived about 9:30 a. m., long after the attack on the stone bridge had begun. Worse still, they had given their position away by the dust they raised. The Confederates had had time to shift some of their troops to meet them.

Once this major stroke had failed, the battle seesawed all day. Finally, when the Union men were subjected to a bayonet attack, an assault by a fresh brigade of Johnston's army, and a thunderous pounding by artillery, large numbers of them broke and fled.

NEW SHANGRI-LA IS FLAGSHIP FOR BLOWS AT JAPAN

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal disclosed today that the carrier Shangri La was Vice Adm. McCain's flagship in his recent strikes against Japanese home islands. It was aboard the Shangri La that John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary of the navy for air, recently took his oath of office, the first such official to be sworn in at sea.

When Sullivan told of his experience at a news conference, he identified the ship "off the record." "Why shouldn't it be on the record?" Secretary Forrestal asked. A navy security officer interposed that the ship's identification had not been announced. "Well, let's announce it," Forrestal said.

The Shangri La's name was chosen as a result of the late President Roosevelt's famous remark at a news conference. Asked about the source of Gen. Doolittle's first air strike at Tokyo in April, 1942, he replied that the planes came from "Shangri-La."

LEHMAN REPLIES TO DIRKSEN ON UNRRA SUPPLIES

ATHENS, July 20 (AP)—Replying to charges by Rep. Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.], Herbert H. Lehman said today UNRRA "will always welcome a most careful study of its operations."

Dirksen has demanded a congressional investigation of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, asking, among other things: Why do UNRRA food supplies appear in the black market in Athens? Why were 200 tractors left on the dock in Greece for a long time when they were allegedly neded in the field? Why is UNRRA being investigated by British intelligence?

Lehman, director of UNRRA, said that "in the countries I have visited UNRRA is, on the whole, doing excellent work. As far as I have been able to ascertain, no substantial quantity of UNRRA goods appears in the black market. Any tractors which may have been or are on the docks in Athens are merely awaiting transshipment to the provinces. Lack of transportation is one of the greatest problems in Greece. I have no knowledge of any investigation by British intelligence."

GI SHIPMATES GIVE GEN. LEAR 'BRONX CHEER'

Boston, Mass., July 20 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Lear, who once ordered a 15 mile disciplinary march for soldiers who "yoo-hooed" at shorts clad girls, was hailed today by soldier shipmates with a lot of "yoo-hoos" and a few "boos" as he strode down a troopship gangway.

The former deputy chief of operations for the European theater arrived here aboard the transport Mariposa, which brought in 2,833 veterans, more than two-thirds of them sick or wounded.

Lear said he was "proud of the American soldiers both on and off the battlefield."

Asked about the relaxation of the fraternization order in Germany, the general said he did not learn of it until he arrived today.

"But our boys won't abuse it," he said, "because those German girls won't get to first base with our boys anyway."

PUBLIC HEARINGS ON TRAIN CRISIS TO OPEN MONDAY

Transportation Chief to Testify First

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The senate's war investigating committee decided today to hold public hearings on the transportation problem arising from the redeployment of troops.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, defense transportation director, will be the first witness at the hearings starting Monday, Chairman Mead [D., N. Y.] announced.

Uniform occupancy standards for railroad cars in organized military movements were prescribed today by the office of defense transportation.

Allow for Stretching

The order, ODT said, is designed to provide more efficient use of equipment.

Beginning immediately, sleeping cars and day coaches will be provided on this basis:

One section [upper and lower berth] for three persons in a sleeping car and two double seats or four single seats for three persons in a day coach. The empty seat will allow for stretching purposes.

151,000 Beds for Yanks

New York, July 20 (AP)—Two-thirds of the nation's sleeping cars are now available to service men taking part in the country's greatest military movement—from the European theater to their homes, or to the war against Japan.

The Pullman company said today a total of 151,000 beds, 115,000 owned by Pullman and 36,000 by the government, are accommodating military personnel, and an additional 57,000 on regularly scheduled trains are reserved for the government.

Cancel 425 Lines

The company, under last Sunday's ODT order discontinuing sleeping car service on trips less than 450 miles, transferred 895 Pullman cars to military service, making 4,260 available for troop movements. The company said this does not include 1,237 special troop sleepers, and 1,200 others on order.

Approximately 425 regular sleeping car service lines were discontinued under the order. Ninety were canceled out of Chicago alone.

44TH DIVISION ARRIVES IN N. Y. ON GIANT LINER

New York, July 20 (AP)—The giant liner Queen Elizabeth brought 14,576 soldiers of the famed 44th infantry division home today amid the roars of harbor whistles and the jubilant cheers of the men themselves.

Actress Marlene Dietrich, swinging a leg from atop the North river pier, set off a renewed burst of cheering as the packed liner docked. She described herself as "an adopted daughter" of the division's 71st infantry regiment.

Battled Across France

It was the 44th division that battled across France to the Austrian heart of Hitler's now crumpled fortress Europe. And it was the 44th that smashed across the Saar river after six futile crossing attempts.

The Frances Y. Slanger, named for the first American army nurse killed in Europe during the war, docked at Staten Island with 1,561 patients, 25 of whom were navy men. A fleet of 75 ambulances and buses took them to Halloran General hospital.

More than 7,000 members of the 2d infantry division, which Gen. Hodges cited for "holding the hot corner at the battle of the bulge," arrived on the navy transport Monticello. They are bound for the Pacific. They will go to Camp Kilmer, N. J., and then on 30 day furloughs.

31,455 Arrive Today

Other ships which arrived today were the Le Jeune, Bret Harte, Nishmaha, and the Marine Panther, whose passengers brought the day's arrivals to 31,455—the largest number of GIs to debark here in a single day. More than 34,000 troops arrived here on July 11, but many were Canadians.

Among those aboard the Queen Elizabeth was S/Sgt. George E. Franklin, 1776 E. 71st pl., Chicago, who was hailed by his comrades who said he had stopped a German panther tank attack single handed.

"I told my platoon to do their duty, and they did it," he said, adding that credit for the exploit should go to his men.

Wearing the distinguished service cross for rescuing a group of wounded soldiers under fire, Cpl. Richard F. Linn, Decatur, Ind., said: "All I did was stay with my outfit all night and help rescue the wounded." His buddies standing alsong side, however, said he broke arm and shoulder at the time.

S/Sgt. Lawrence N. Shephard of Route 1, East Lansing, Mich., won the bronze star for keeping communications open during a particularly hazardous mission. Asked to comment on the exploit, he said: "Anything you do in an infantry line is dangerous."

Col. John C. Fitzpatrick of Chicago, medical corps commander on the Slanger, said the men were in high spirits. Col. Francis H. Boose, of Janesville, Wis., troops commander of the Monticello, described the ship's crossing as one of the best he had experienced.

The transport Santa Barbara with 436 troops returning from Europe, is scheduled to arrive at Staten Island tomorrow. Among those aboard are the 96th air depot squadron and 395th signal company, troop carrier wing.

A new "Manual of Surgical Anatomy," prepared especially for the use of army and navy surgeons by the University of Illinois college of medicine, 1853 Polk st., may aid in saving the lives of many American fighting men, it was suggested yesterday by Dr. Raymond B. Allen, executive dean of the university's schools in Chicago.

The volume contains 267 detailed anatomical charts and drawings depicting many new surgical procedures developed since the last volume was published for use in World War I.

Tom S. Jones, professor of medical and dental illustration at the university, and Willard C. Shepard, another university staff member, are authors of the book, which completes a series of military surgical manuals edited by the committee on surgery of the National Research council for the assistance of military medical officers.

AT EASE, CAMP CHICAGO! YOUR STUFF IS ON WAY

French Assembly Area Anxious Over Delay

Henry Wales, Chicago Tribune correspondent, reported yesterday from Reims, France, that pictures and other mementoes of Chicago requested by Camp Chicago, 20 miles north of Reims, had not yet arrived. The camp is one of 18 redeployment centers near Reims being used to send troops home. Each is named after an American city.

Inquiry disclosed that the requested articles were sent by Mayor Kelly more than three weeks ago, and should reach Camp Chicago any day. Other Chicago material also is ready for the camp.

Drawings, Photos Sent

Wales said Col. Alvin Lutz of Hartsdale, N. Y., in charge of promotional work for the 18 camps, on June 9 wrote asking for emblems, photographs, flags, and any other suitable, decorative material that would depict the city's history.

Similar letters were sent to other cities. Materials already have been received from most, among them New York City, San Antonio, Tex., and Atlanta, Ga. Col Lutz, Wales said, was apprehensive that his request to Chicago had not been expressed clearly. It had.

On June 28, Mayor Kelly, who already had sent a letter to Camp Chicago authorities lauding their aim, dispatched scores of large and small drawings and photographs showing views of the lake front, the loop, the steel mills, parks, zoos, service men's centers, and outlying residential areas. Some were close-ups, such as of State and Madison sts. Some were aerial shots.

Tribune Asked to Assist

The mayor included pictures of sports activities and celebrities, and a drawing in color of the city seal. The lot was shipped thru army channels in Washington, D. C.

THE TRIBUNE also has started exhibits to Camp Chicago. THE TRIBUNE'S business survey department is sending 10 expanded reproductions of famous Tribune comic strips and their creators, each panel 7 feet long and 6 feet high, mounted on plyboard and light wood casings. The panels were used in the Chicago treasury center show a year ago, and then displayed in New York City where they are now awaiting shipment to France.

Army authorities in New York tentatively deferred acceptance—because they were too large for mailing. The matter was referred to army officials.

Chance for Night Clubs

All the material sought is being used for wall, window, door, and other decorative purposes. Some is to be reproduced and enlarged by soldier artists. The main idea is to give the camp a Chicago atmosphere. Wales suggested that the camp's five post exchanges "can be named after five leading night clubs [in Chicago] if they send plenty of typical photographs, including leg art."

A number of Chicago area men are at Camp Chicago, among them Maj. George Schnur, 743 Elm st., Winnetka, and Capt. Donald MacLean of River Forest.

MINERS TO GET MORE MEAT AND SUGAR IN AUGUST

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Big appetites growing out of strenuous manual labor won extra food ration points for the nation's coal and ore miners today.

Beginning the first week of August, the OPA announced, these miners everywhere in the country will be eligible for a supplementary grant of up to 50 red points a month for meats and dairy products. They also will qualify for an extra pound of sugar a month.

The program has been in effect on a test basis since July 1 for coal and ore miners in western areas.

Expansion of the plan followed work stoppages at some Illinois coal mines where union leaders said the men were protesting against insufficient points for meat. Work was resumed early this week.

Truck Looted of Meat and 50,000 Red Points

Thieves stole a truck owned by Herman Glicksman, 6757 Paxton av., at 2304 Cottage Grove av., yesterday and appropriated its load of 200 pounds of fresh and smoked meats, valued at $800, before they abandoned the vehicle at 6034 Woodlawn av. The thieves also took 50,000 red points, ration coupons good for 400 gallons of gasoline, all vehicular license plates and stamps and tools.

Bogota Senate May Pick Acting President July 27

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 20 (AP)—The senate today accepted the resignations of Vice Presidents Dario Echandia and Anibal Badel and set July 27 as the date to name one new vice president who may serve as president until a national election is held. The new vice president would succeed Alfonso Alfaro Lopez as president if the latter's resignation, announced yesterday, is accepted.

MR. PATTS TAPS HOSTESSES TO GET MORE CASH

An invitation, with a financial string attached, to renew membership in the B. B. R. Youth Movement was sent yesterday to several hundred girls who had been ousted from the organization by Billy Patts, founder and dictator of the lucrative movement.

Patts, who charges the girls for entertaining service men on Sunday afternoons, barred a group that failed to purchase tickets for a dance to be held Aug. 18. He said they were "corrupting" his organization.

His invitation to rejoin stipulated that not only was each to purchase a dance ticket for $1.20, but also to pay a "penalty" charge of an additional $1.20. Several of the ousted members said he had failed to refund any part of the $4.50 he charged them for annual membership.

THREE INJURED IN PAINT PLANT BLAST AND FIRE

Three men were injured last night, one of them seriously, in a fire and explosion in the J. W. Mortell Paint company, 550 Hobbie av., Kankakee. The fire was confined to the plant's asphalt division.

Frank May, 40, of 1345 E. River st., Kankakee, an employe, was burned seriously and Fireman Sam Mitchell, 144 N. 4th av., Kankakee, was overcome by fumes from burning chemicals. Mylo Hendrickson of Manteno, suffered minor burns.

Fire departments from Joliet, Bradley, Manteno, and Momence aided in bringing the flames under control. The damage was estimated at $25,000.

GI PLANS FIGHT TO BRING BUDDY, 10, TO AMERICA

Sgt. Edward Klonowski, 24, veteran of 10 months' European fighting, arrived in Chicago yesterday and started his own war—a legal battle to bring his 10 year old buddy he rescued from the Nazis into the United States.

Home on a 30 day furlough before going to the Pacific, Klonowski said he has not figured out how he will bring his charge, Robert Sokowski, from the hospital in England, where he is on a hunger strike, to America.

"We'll just have to do something because I'm not going to forget him," Klonowski declared.

Met in Austria

The sergeant and his Ukrainian protege met at Steinach, Austria, when the boy broke thru German lines and came into Klonowski's artillery outfit. This was approximately three weeks before V-E day. Robert had been captured in Russia and had traveled with his captors to North Africa, Italy, and Austria as the slave of a German general.

"He offered all the fellows cigarets and turned on all his personality. Before the day ended everyone in the outfit was attached to him," Klonowski said. "We bought him a complete American uniform and had it cut to size. He outsmarted all of us with a good, snappy salute."

The friendship grew when the two shared a hotel room at Oberpertuss, Austria, for seven weeks until Klonowski was ordered to leave with the 5th army. They almost became separated when a colonel ordered Robert to stay behind but other officers missed him when the outfit drew into Passu, Germany, and told Klonowski to send for him.

Stowed Away to England

Their final separation came when Klonowski was ordered to a staging area at Camp St. Louis, 100 miles from Paris. For several days the sergeant hid the boy in his tent but when final orders came he was forced to leave him behind. During the stay the two visited the American counsel in Paris and learned Robert could be sent to the United States if he stayed in residence there for five months.

"He couldn't understand that so he stowed away on a boat to England. Now he's being held there until the authorities decide what to do with him," Klonowski said.

The sergeant said his parents, who reside at 4621 Grace st., will take care of the boy when he leaves for the Pacific. Robert's parents were killed when German planes bombed their home in Kharkov.

"The kid will like us and I'm sure everbody will like him," Klonowski said. "All I have to do is to get him over here."

BRITISH MORALS ON DOWNGRADE, METHODISTS SAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 20—The Methodist church conference at Nottingham today expressed grave concern at the "rapid deterioration in Britain's moral standards." In a resolution it deplored the steady growth of drinking and gambling, and charged that "illegitimacy and the practice of contraception outside marriage give evidence of widespread irregularity in sex relations."

The church parley said juvenile delinquency reveals a grave deficiency in the quality of home life; that one conception in eight takes place outside marriage; that unchastity with the aid of artificial contraceptions is widely practiced, and that at least one marriage in 10 fails.

A speaker warned of the widespread demoralization of Britain's young girlhood, drawing a parallel with the "alarming loosening of morals in Germany between 1920 and 1926" which he said resulted directly in many of the cruelties that were perpetrated in the nazi concentration camps.

ARMY PREPARES FOR GI's VOTE IN FALL ELECTIONS

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The war department today directed army commanders at home and abroad to make certain that soldiers get an opportunity to vote in the elections next fall.

Special letters of instruction went to overseas theater commanders and to chiefs of the army ground, air, and service forces and each defense command in this country.

The army will distribute to the various commands postcard applications for ballots. These will be made available to soldiers, upon request, by company commanders. The soldiers themselves will mail the applications to election officials in their home states.

Elections scheduled next fall include those in Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Connecticut, and Massachusetts and in the city of Detroit.

DRAFTEE OF 1940 RETURNS; HUNTS A RATION BOOK

Finds Blonde Wife Is Younger, Prettier

West Palm Beach, Fla., July 20 (AP)—Harry Bell, 26, one of the first group of American draftees called to service in 1940, came home today to rejoin his wife and 3 year old son, whom he hadn't seen for 2½ years. He has been in the army four years and nine months.

Harry Bell.

Bell fought on five battle fronts—Africa, Sicily, Italy, southern France, and Austria — and saw action in three D-day invasions.

Now that he's back in civies again, ex-Sgt. Bell has two worries: getting a ration book and some summer clothes.

Trouble? He Doesn't Mind

"But that's the kind of trouble I don't mind," he grinned.

Bell got home about midnight, two weeks after he arrived back in the United States from Europe.

"I've only had a sort of correspondence course with her," he said, hugging his pretty blonde wife, whom he married after his number —158—was drawn by Secretary of War Stimson Oct. 29, 1940, to make him one of the nation's first draftees.

"Now we're going to have a real honeymoon and start all over again. Let me tell you, she's prettier and younger than ever."

Bell went thru five river crossings—at Volturno, Rapido, Moselle, Rhine, and Danube — and was wounded twice, in the arm and the leg. The sergeant had a total of 128 points to earn his discharge.

Wears Seven Battle Stars

He wears the Purple Heart, soldier's medal, bronze star, oak leaf cluster, American defense, good conduct, pre-Pearl Harbor, bronze arrowhead for participation in D-day invasion, and seven battle stars.

Bell was in Washington, D. C., buying furniture for the home he planned with his bride-to-be, Sally V. Carter, the day it was announced that his was the first draft number drawn from the fish bowl.

Instead of waiting for induction, Bell married Sally and volunteered, reporting for duty Nov. 27, 1940, at Fort George Meade, Md.

After their second honeymoon here, Bell and his wife will return to Washington where he will take over his old job with the Potomac Electric Power company. His parents live in Washington, where his father, a World war veteran, is fire marshal of the Potomac river naval command.

OPA PRICE SUITS SEEK $1,080,000 OF MATERIAL FIRMS

Two suits seeking treble damages totaling more than 1 million dollars were filed yesterday in United States District court by the office of price administration against the Consumers company, 228 N. La Salle st., and Material Service corporation, 33 N. La Salle st., charging sale of sand, gravel, and other building materials at more than ceiling prices.

Homer Clay, chief enforcement attorney for OPA, said the suits, each seeking injunctions against over ceiling prices as well as damages of at least $540,000, are "the beginning of actions against construction firms to obtain compliance with price regulations in building materials."

Clay said the two concerns are the largest of their kind in the middle west and supply much of the material used by utilities and in public works as well as large contractors.

Mercury at 90

With the temperature at 90 yesterday afternoon, perspiring Chicagoans watched the surface lines test a giant automotive snow fighter in Western av., from 107th to 111th sts. Officials of the lines explained they now use snowplows and brooms, but are considering the purchase of truck type equipment because it can be used on both street car and bus lines.

Yesterday was the first day in July on which the temperature reached 90. Normally Chicago has five July days when the mercury goes to 90 or higher. The highest mark thus far this year was 93, recorded on June 27.

Forecaster I. W. Brunk predicted partly cloudy and warm weather today with a high temperature of 90.

MAKE YOUR FUEL OIL PLEAS NOW, OPA WARNS ALL

James F. Riley, acting director of the Chicago area office of price administration, yesterday warned householders who use fuel oil for heating to file their applications immediately with their ration boards for next year's allotments. He pointed out that fuel oil demands for the Pacific war are soaring, and said, "It is important that every home storage tank be filled now to free the dealer's storage space so he can keep a supply large enough to satisfy later cold weather demands."

OPA to Release Gas Stoves from Rationing

Gas cooking and gas heating stoves will be released from rationing July 31, the war labor board said yesterday in Washington, D. C. Oil cooking, oil heating, combination oil-gas stoves and oil conversion burners will remain under rationing because of the short supply of fuel oil and kerosene, it was added.

OPA ACTS! VET CAN BEGIN SALE OF GAS MONDAY

The filling station at 3553-55 N. Clark st. which Louis G. Pike Jr., World War II. veteran, rented July 1 will be ready to do business Monday morning. Pike received his ration bank check for 3,000 gallons of gasoline from the office of price administration yesterday after a wait of nearly a month.

Pike, veteran of four and a half years' service, applied for his gasoline ration check June 26 but it was not until yesterday, when Edward C. Jordan, veterans' adviser in the Chicago area OPA office, took his case in hand, that OPA red tape was unwound sufficiently for him to go into business.

Jordan said Pike's ration bank check had been approved July 10 and mailed to him by registered mail, as are all letters containing ration currency, but that the postman returned it to the issuing center when Pike was not at his place of business to sign for the letter.

Pike has been paying $85 a month rent since July 1 but could not do business until he established a ration bank account. Yesterday Pike said it would take him until Monday morning to complete details for opening his station.

LOSER IN $15,000 BALM CASE PUTS UP BOND; FREED

Anthony Skurdialis, 45, of 4520 N. Francisco av., who Thursday was sent to the county jail for failure to pay a $15,000 alienation of affections judgment, yesterday was released by Judge Charles A. Williams in Superior court when his attorney, Herbert Metzel, posted a $1,000 appeal bond. Skurdialis' release was not opposed by Sol R. Friedman, attorney for Charles Zaremba, 50, to whom a jury awarded the $15,000 for the loss of the love of his wife, Pauline.

FREED WOMAN FAINTS

Mrs. Josephine Rossie, 34, of 5424 W. 95th st. fainted in felony court yesterday when Judge William V. Daly dismissed a burglary charge against her for lack of evidence. She had been arrested on a neighbor woman's story that she was seen coming from an apartment where burglars had taken jewelry valued at $20.

BRETTON WOODS

The senate, by a vote of 61 to 16, has approved, with a few modifications, the resolution already adopted by the house for participation in the Bretton Woods bank and fund, and the house has accepted the amendments. The American taxpayers' subscription to the new institutions will approximate 6 billion dollars and, in the view of many experts in the field of international finance, will total far more than that by the time the accounts are closed.

Sixteen members of the senate—14 Republicans and 2 Democrats—voted against the plan. The Republicans were Brooks, Bushfield, Butler, Capper, Gurney, Hart, Hawkes, Langer, Millikin, Moore, Revercombe, Robertson, Taft, and Wherry. The Democrats were O'Daniel and Wheeler. Their leader in the debate was Sen. Taft. He and his following have earned the warmest praise for their devotion to the welfare of their country—a devotion that was not weakened by the knowledge that they are going to be pilloried as narrow minded penny pinchers seeking partisan advantage at the expense of international welfare. Time will show whether these accusations are well founded. Meanwhile the 19 renegade Republicans who voted for the measure will no doubt reap whatever political rewards they were counting on.

In one sense the country can welcome the outcome. The internationalists are having their way all along the line. After lend-lease came UNRRA; after UNRRA came the approval of the Bretton Woods proposals; the acceptance of the San Francisco treaty will follow in due course. At no point have their plans been blocked. If, after all these contributions of American money, influence, and military power in the name of international welfare and the withholding of nothing, the world is not quickly restored to peace and prosperity the responsibility cannot be placed at America's door. The internationalists have been saying for a good many years that the second World war resulted from America's refusal to join the league. We shall see whether America's participation in such ventures will be worth what it will cost.

The Bretton Woods bank and fund are still to be set up and it will, therefore, be some time before they run thru their resources and come around for more. Meanwhile we can look at UNRRA. At Atlantic City 44 nations agreed to ante up in cash or in kind 1 per cent of their estimated 1943 national income. The fund so accumulated was to be used to feed the hungry victims of the war and clothe the naked. Only nine nations have actually come across and, needless to say, the American contribution of $1,350,000,000 is by long odds the largest. The other 35 nations appear altogether willing to let America carry the load. They are willing to let the American taxpayers foot the bill and, more especially, supply the goods for relief from her already restricted stocks.

We are short of fats in this country, as every housewife knows, but all the lard, all the margarine, all the soybean oil, and three-quarters of the soap which UNRRA has accumulated for distribution has been taken from our dwindling and inadequate stocks. Sen. Byrd is authority for the statement that, over and above all this, our army has disbursed close to half a billion dollars' worth of its stores for civilian relief abroad.

We could have accomplished more good with less money if the job had been handled, as it was under Mr. Hoover in the last war, by Americans who were not responsible to any international organization. As it is, the UNRRA pay rolls are padded and the organization is universally recognized to be a model of bureocratic inefficiency.

Bretton Woods may be expected to have a similar record. Any currency stabilization and economic reconstruction that result from the plans now adopted could be achieved at far less cost and at far less risk thru our own management of our own stake. That was the main point of Mr. Taft's opposition to the plan. Little heed was paid to him, tho it was universally recognized that he knew more about the subject than any one else in the senate. The friends of the measure, being unable to reply to his criticism, spoke of the glorious new day in which all nations are joining in mutual helpfulness. As in UNRRA, for instance.

SILVER FOR BRITAIN

We take little stock in the usual plaints of members of the congressional silver bloc, who for years have succeeded in keeping silver at an inflated price, but some recent remarks of Rep. Compton I. White of Idaho are of more than passing interest. He disclosed that so far our government has lend-leased 300 million ounces of silver to Britain and that it has been coined and put into circulation in various parts of the empire.

So far as we know, this is a new way of making a loan. Lend-lease was to apply to "defense articles" under the original terms of the act, and these articles were strictly defined. A lawyer might wonder how metal for coinage can be classified as a defense article, but the public at large is probably too stupefied by now to bother about it.

The original lend-lease appropriation was of 7 billion dollars. Since then expenditures under the act have passed 40 billion. Only a silver congressman would worry much about another 387 million on top of that.

VOLUNTEERS ONLY IN EUROPE

Sigrid Schultz of THE TRIBUNE, returning to her pre-war station in Berlin, found that the American soldiers in the occupying forces want either to come home or to fight the Japs.

These American veterans are perhaps more comfortably fixed than the average GI in liberated or occupied Europe. They are well housed, well fed, and have comparatively light duties. Elaborate efforts have been made to supply them with recreational facilities and with opportunities for study, if they are so inclined. Nevertheless, they have seen all they want to see of Germany. In the words of one of them, "The fellows who have not been over so long or who are so interested in Europe that they are willing to volunteer for service, should take over the occupation job."

If that is the feeling of American soldiers in Berlin, it is undoubtedly the feeling of Americans elsewhere in Germany. They went to Europe to fight and the fighting there is over. They want to finish the Pacific war or to come back home.

There is a vast difference between conscription for war and conscription to recruit the American contingent of a world police force. That is what the armies of occupation in Germany are. According to some theories, they will stay there five or 10 years, or even longer. To draft men for such duty would constitute military slavery. Any occupation forces that we leave in Europe should be composed exclusively of men who volunteer for such duty.

This question of occupation forces should be kept in mind by congress in its consideration of peace time conscription measures. It is doubtful whether Mr. Grenville Clark, who drafted the peace time conscription proposal, and his internationalist associates are as much interested in drafting American boys to prepare for the future defense of America as they are in drafting American boys to help troublemakers of Europe preserve the order that the latter are unable to preserve by themselves.

THE PARTY LINE ISN'T THE FIRING LINE

The house military affairs committee has released a list of 12 officers and three noncommissioned officers of the army who, it found, have extensive connections with the Communist party and its various transmission belts and publications. The assignments of this group, as reported by the committee, demonstrate that a majority of the comrades have been singularly successful in finding berths as far from shot and shell as any soldier can in time of war.

Mrs. Roosevelt's protege, Lt. Joseph Lash, the perennial youth leader who was commissioned by the secretary of war as a favor to the Roosevelt family after the army had turned him down, is safely ensconced in the quartermaster corps. Four of the officers are in the office of strategic services. If this organization does anything useful, which is doubtful, it is to collect secret information for the army. The Communists have their pipelines installed.

Two more of the officers are in civil affairs units, where they can give a helping hand to their Red brethren in occupied areas. Another is in the OWI, where he will find himself ideologically at home with a large proportion of the civilian employes. Another is working ravelings from the party line into a camp newspaper. The only infantryman listed has a job at headquarters. The remaining five are attached to combat organizations, but this in itself is no assurance that they may not have found themselves relatively safe assignments there.

The fellow travelers in the New Deal managed a year ago to overcome the army's justifiable prejudice against commissions for Communists. The pretense that suspected Communists were to be judged individually on the basis of their supposed loyalty to the United States was pure fakery. A Communist is loyal to only one thing, and that is his party, which is dedicated to the destruction by violence of our form of government.

The military affairs committee reported to the house only a few weeks ago on communist policy in respect to the army, demonstrating by copious quotations from official communist publications and manuals that it is the aim of the party to create dissension in the army and use it as an instrument of revolution. Some of the franker publications in the early days of the party advocated the assassination of officers and the destruction of military materials.

So long as the United States was at war with Germany and was arming Russia's forces, their loyalty to Stalin, not to the United States, prevented the Communists from following their usual tactics in our army. That period, however, has ended and the American Communists have repudiated Mr. Browder as a collaborationist and gone back to the advocacy of the class war.

The communist Daily Worker some years ago advised party members that in time of war it was their duty to the party to get into the army and navy. "What good can a militant worker do for his class locked up or shot as an objector?" it asked. A Communist in uniform can't do his party any good if shot on the field of battle either, and most of those whom the military affairs committee has rooted out are taking pains to see that that doesn't happen.

THE SLOT MACHINE DEMOCRATS

A foundry in North Chicago is busy turning out handles for slot machines. It has to fill its orders in the sequence of their priority, granted by the war production board, and the slot machine handles have been given an equal priority with sewing machine heads and a higher one than restaurant table bases and other useful articles. We have had a number of occasions in the past to refer to the corrupt political machines of the country as the slot machine Democrats. They seem to be taking care of their own. After all, if irate patrons break the handles off the one-armed bandits it's up to the burocrats of Washington to find replacements before the campaign chests begin to suffer.

WEEK-END NOTES

Postcard from Borborygmus, contrib, points out that M. P. for major poet could also stand for minor poet. He says why not use M. P. for major and m. p. for minor? So ordered. . . . Everybody's a poet now, even Silly Sally, m. p., who basks on beaches and sunny reaches. We never print her poems, but we started one of our own about her—

Consider the case of Silly Sal,
That highly air-conditioned gal.
Pinkly sun-kissed here and there—
Because of clothes she doesn't wear . . .

* * *

We did try another one—inspired by Selma Walden's complaint that her children want her to spend the rest of her life imitating the folded hands pose of Whistler's Mother—

Lo, Selma Walden, Whistler's ma—
Sic transit mundi gloria!

It was going to be a sonnet but the lines were a foot short and the Latin sounded like something we had heard before. So we quit.

* * *

We quit, too, on a single line when we wanted to pin a rose on Autolycus for his "Episode in a Doorway." His real initials are V. S., and all we got was—

V. S., that old Autolycustard—

The rhyme was to be mustard or mustered or flustered or blustered, but none of them seemed to connect.

* * *

We finished one poem. And since we consider it to be not only a work of art but also a subtle bit of strategic diplomacy, here it is in full:

Miss Donnelly, the Line's proofreader,
Is a vigilant erratum weeder.

ANNORUM ANNULI

The ross, or cortex, of a tree is rough;
For bark must meet the changing weather . . . hold
The tree inviolate, in heat or cold,
Enveloped well in firm and sturdy stuff,
That must allow the outworn bits to slough.
The inner bark, or liber, must enfold
The living bole; and, growing there must mold
Another time-ring, hardy-fibered, tough.

The year-rings each must meet the drouth or storm—
Cannot escape, for trees must suffer long.
Grim struggle must attend the growing norm.
The yearning tree and man, it seems, belong
To sun and tempest, changing height and form:
We, too, must grow our rings of pain and song.

Clara Edmunds-Hemingway

This Must Stop

Since Alexander Pope made the Line [July 12] it seems other old timers think they can get in. Marcus Aurelius, aged 1824, thru his somewhat younger secretary, Dr. Rousseau Van Voorhies of the Boswell institute, sends us a note on how to enjoy a vacation without traveling. Because that is what Dr. Collins and a great many others are trying to do this summer, we do not feel justified in withholding the tip. But from now on the Line's age limits for contributors will be from 2 to 102. Speak up, Marcus, and keep it short.

Marcus talking: Men seek retreats for themselves, houses in the country, seashores, and mountains; and thou, too, art wont to desire such things very much. But this is altogether a mark of the most common sort of men, for it is in thy power whenever thou shalt choose to retire into thyself. For nowhere, either with more quiet or more freedom from trouble, does a man retire than into his own soul, particularly when he has within him such thoughts that by looking into them he is immediately in perfect tranquility.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped enveloped is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

C. A. B. asks: "Can an officer of the air forces who is stationed in the Pacific area, or outside the United States, assign his flight pay as a voluntary allotment to his wife?"

A commissioned officer may allot his base and longevity pay, monthly subsistence allowance, foreign service pay, and any additional pay for distinguished service awards, but no amount in excess of the total thereof. Other items of pay may be allotted only in case a person is officially reported missing, missing in action, interned in a neutral country, captured, beleaguered, or besieged. Flight pay does not come within any of the above categories.

G. B. asks: "Must an officer on terminal leave pending retirement wear his uniform? When may an officer still on active duty not wear his uniform?"

Wearing of the army uniform during terminal leave is optional with the officer. Officers engaged in games and sports may wear the appropriate clothing for the game or sport and may be out of uniform when at home if not more than two guests are present.

Mrs. E. C. writes: "My husband has been in the army for more than a year and has been stationed in the United States all the time. Will he now have to go to the Pacific area?"

The war department has ordered that all qualified male officers and enlisted men serving in the United States and who have not served at least six months overseas be assigned to foreign duty by next May 1.

WHEN TONSIL REMOVAL IS INDICATED

THE tonsils are located on the sides of the throat near the base of the tongue. Along with the adenoids and lingual tissue, they constitute a chain of glandular material surrounding the pharynx. Their chief duty is to prevent the spread of microbes from the nose and mouth to more vital areas.

Unfortunately, once this function has been performed, and the acute attack of tonsillitis has subsided, the organs may still harbor the germs and the body finds it difficult to eradicate them. In such a situation, the tonsils are a hindrance rather than a help. By re-infecting the throat, recurring colds keep the victim below par most of the time.

In the presence of inflammation, swelling and pain are exhibited. The amount of discomfort and the height of fever depend, to a certain extent, upon the causative organism. The most common culprits are the staphylococcus and the streptococcus altho, now and then, the diphtheria bacillus and the variety that causes trench mouth are found. Sometimes an abscess forms. In other instances, the siege is so severe that a portion of the tonsil is destroyed, resulting in a motheaten appearance.

When chronic infection exists, the condition may have a far reaching influence on the system. Many cases of rheumatic fever are preceded by tonsillitis. Fatigue and failure to gain weight are not infrequent. Arthritis, neuritis, or bursitis may follow; trouble with the gall bladder, the prostate, and the kidneys have even been blamed on this abnormality.

It must be understood, however, that these disorders are not necessarily due to bad tonsils. The wise physician will promise little when suggesting removal as a possible focus of infection. He may even say, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating" for only if symptoms disappear after tonsillectomy can he decide definitely that these structures were at fault.

In the past, summer was always selected as the best period for the operation with children, as schools were closed and colds at a minimum. More recently, many articles have appeared in the medical literature, suggesting that there is a relationship between poliomyelitis and this surgical procedure. During the months of August and September and, to a lesser degree, July and October, the throat may harbor the polio virus. The open wound which is left, after removal of the glands, gives these germs an entryway.

Sabin conducted some experiments with 20 monkeys. He placed the offending organisms over a raw tonsil surface and 16 of the animals developed polio. He then injected the same material beneath the skin in 12 other monkeys but none fell victim.

Howard, after studying thousands of patients, came to the conclusion that only one in 2,000 stood a chance of encountering the malady during nonepidemic years. Other reports have not been so favorable, the figures running as high as one case in 44. The consensus is that when polio is on the loose, the tonsils should not be removed.

SWEATING PATE

C. S. writes: What causes excessive perspiration on a bald person's head?

REPLY

We perspire when warm, after exertion, or in the presence of emotional disturbances. Baldness has nothing to do with it except that the pavement looks wetter than the grass after a rainfall.

ARTHRITIS IN THE CHANGE

Mrs. N. writes: Why do so many women in the change of life have arthritis?

REPLY

This malady is common during this period but is not always due to the change. Unfortunately, many disorders which occur in women between the ages of 40 and 50 are erroneously blamed on the menopause.

THYMUS

Mrs. S. S. writes: 1. Can a thymus gland condition in a 2 month old infant be seen thru a fluoroscope? 2. If so, are X-ray treatments advised?

REPLY

Yes to both questions.

LIVER AILMENT

E. S. writes: Will you please tell me what acute infectious hepatitis is?

REPLY

Inflammation of the liver, associated with jaundice.

The Sexes

If it were not for the fear of getting Corinne's mother or father by mistake, this romantic busybody here certainly would call Nevada 8647 some time after 5 p. m. and have a heart-to-heart chat with Corinne about the troubles she has been having with Jerry. What happened in the first place? And what is going to happen now? Have they gotten together and is everything love and roses? If not, they must be stark mad, for never since Uncle Bim Gump was courting the Widow Zander has the rocky course of true love been followed with more breathless interest, and good wishes, than the trials of poor Corinne and Jerry.

The whole thing started Monday, as far as the public is concerned, when the following advertisment appeared in the Personal column of this newspaper:

CORINNE—Please call me at home. You know the number. Don't care what you have said or done. I love you. JERRY

This seemed a trifle more unorthodox a classified ad than the ones absolving some one from complicity in some one else's debts, but hardly more so than the one appearing the same day that began: "MYTHICAL?" and went on to say, "If not, please mail copy. Will cherish—always." It probably would have been forgotten at once had Jerry's ad not appeared again the next day, he [canny lad] having decided to declare his love on the three day bargain rate. It was buried in the usual clutter of debt renunciations and an open letter to Warren from his parents telling him to be a good boy and come home to have his X-ray taken. Then, suddenly, O, bliss! beneath it appeared:

GERRY—Call me. You know the number. You were wrong, things happened, hard to say. I love you. CORINNE

Corinne doesn't seem to have known Jerry well enough to spell his name correctly, but he obviously didn't know her at all if he thought she was going to break down and call him. [A lady, Jerry, lets the man call first, even if there is a war on and love at stake.]

The reading public thought its vicarious participation in this romance would end there. Either Jerry would call Corinne or v. v. But the public had forgotten that Jerry's bargain rate had one more day to run and that Corinne also was on the three day plan, and none too bright of her, we must say, because Jerry was sure to read her reply the first time; an advertiser always looks to see if the ad he paid for ended up in print. On Wednesday both pleas appeared again. Then, beneath them, was a new one:

CORINNE—I don't know your phone No. Yes, I was wrong; whatever happened I'm with you. Please call me. JERRY

That was showing her. Jerry could be as stubborn as she. Possibly he was annoyed at being called Gerry.

That day, Wednesday, was one of the longest days in the memory of the reading public. The hours until Thursday's paper was on the streets stretched taut and unbearable. Would Corinne give in?

On Thursday Jerry had nothing at all to say in print, but Corinne had two messages, her original one, and, immediately below it:

GERRY—Nevada 8647, between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.; will explain. CORINNE

It was here that the public intervened with:

DEAR Corinne and Jerry—Please get together. You are breaking our hearts. A READER

Our private guess is that the twain never met for the simple reason that the torn readers telephoned Nevada 8647 so eagerly that whenever Jerry tried to call, the line was busy.

By the way, on the same day that Corinne came thru with her telephone number, the reply came to Mythical. Very sad, too:

THANK you, dear. Not mythical, comprehend. M.

That's the trouble with being a member of the reading public. You're always on the outside of something interesting.

Overheard

The 5th army soldier and his girl were talking about her older sister, whom he apparently knew. Vital tidbits:

He: "How come she isn't married?"

She: "Why, she's only 24."

He: "I know. . . . How come she isn't married?"

THE INFANTRY ON POINTS

OKINAWA, July 11—We just read an article in the May 11 TRIBUNE about the opinion of the men on the discharge point system. A few of us in the infantry, who fought thru the Okinawa campaign, would like to add our opinions.

1. Twelve points for a child is too much, when it is classed with five points for a campaign.
2. There should be a difference in points between the men up front doing the fighting and the men in the rear supporting us with supplies, etc.
3. Points should be based on length of campaign. Some campaigns take over 70 days and some under 30 days.
4. There should be a difference in points between the men making the landing on D-day and the men coming in a month or two later.
5. We understand that men over 30 years of age are not being drafted for overseas any more, but we still have men over 30 fighting in the front lines with us.

Please note that in all five points, the infantry, which is the men that are doing the actual fighting, is getting the least consideration.

We know that nothing can be done about it, but we are still voicing our opinions.

THE PURPOSE OF GODLESSNESS

Chicago, July 10—While insisting that the teaching of religion for one short period a week to those who ask for it be prohibited in our public schools, the comparative few who oppose this teaching demand the right to openly teach anti-religion and anti-God in our tax supported schools of higher education.

Before Hitler, Mussolini, and Stalin could shackle and lead their people, they found it necessary to first destroy or neutralize the effect of religious training among the youth of their countries. In this country, the outstanding exponents of communism are violently opposed to religion and seem determined to make this a godless country; like Hitler and the rest, they believe this to be the first requisite for the successful planting of their foreign ideologies. HENRY WILSON

THE WAR MAKING PARTY

Chicago, July 17—If the American voter honestly wants to keep our country out of war, why monkey with the new league of nations? They didn't stop Ethiopia and Italy, Japan and China, or Germany and Poland, did they? Have we the slightest reason to think the new league will be even as effective as the old? The way to keep us out of war is to stop voting the Democratic ticket. That party got us into the Mexican war, the Civil war, and the first World war, as well as the second one, and all of them could have been easily avoided, had the right men been in charge. If you do not want war, do not vote Democratic. H. C. PATTON

INTERNED IN AMERICA

Reedsburg, Wis., July 11—I have just read "One of Many's" letter in the column concerning releases denied soldiers on grounds that they are "essential." It is true many boys are pushed from camp to camp because no one seems to know what to do with them. One I know has been back over a year and has over the required number of points for release, but now he is pushed back to a rookie camp with beginners, learning how to march and make his bed. He's shoveled snow, swept, cleaned out washrooms, and done all kinds of dirty work. Thousands of boys should be out, but instead the government is using all the money we taxpayers must pay to keep them in. A READER

LANDSCAPING WITH GARBAGE CANS

Chicago, July 11—I am a property owner living on the northwest side, where practically every home owner has provided rather expensive concrete garbage and ash containers for alley collections. I am sure the majority, like myself, would resent having garbage cans in front of their homes. The beauty of most front yards on the northwest side is what makes it "the northwest side." Why should we now buy garbage cans to enhance our landscaping?

Apparently City Commissioner Johnson and his committee have little knowledge of children at play. What a sweet little headache we property owners will have each morning looking for our containers and covers, and then gathering garbage. If we chain these cans and some one parks his car in front of them, who will answer for the sins of the cursing collector?

You cannot fool the rats. They will learn to eat out on the front lawn as quickly as they did on the back porch or in the alley. However, the grass may tickle their feet and discourage them, and ultimately they will all starve to death. FRANCIS J. TOMBLIN

VANDALS

Chicago, June 27—People who insist there is no juvenile delinquency had better move over to our neighborhood for a while—they might say that children nowadays are positively demented. Bent on a rampage of destruction, they smash everything breakable and pay no attention to reprimands by the neighbors. Neither do they fear the police. Yesterday some kids broke in thru our basement window, and with great inconvenience raided my fruit closet and stole several dozen jars of home canning. Later I found several of the jars strewn in the alley. Boys can be seen on the streets after midnight, filthy dirty, proving that they are surely not up to any good. Why are the police so lenient, that these urchins are not run in? MRS. J. O.

LEASE RENEWAL

Chicago, July 19—I have a lease on a house which expires July 31. The property was owned in joint tenancy by a husband and wife. The husband, who issued the lease, died a few months ago and since that time rent has been paid to and accepted by the wife. If she accepts the rent on Aug. 1 and does not ask for possession of the house, (1) will the lease be renewed automatically for another year? 2. If she should sell the house, how much notice am I entitled to receive? C. O.

1. Yes. 2. The new purchaser could not put you out until the end of the renewal term. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

Reveal Alice Warner's Troth to Ensign William McLennan

BY JUDITH CASS

AT A SMALL luncheon party yesterday in the Indian Hill club Mrs. Polk Warner of Winnetka announced the engagement of her daughter, Alice Polk, to Ensign William L. McLennan of the naval reserve, son of Mrs. Donald R. McLennan and the late Mr. McLennan of Lake Forest. Ensign McLennan is expected at home from the Pacific area later this summer.

Pretty Miss Warner's closest friends were present to hear the romantic news. The bride-to-be attended the North Shore Country Day school and New Trier High school and spent one year at Vassar. She was introduced to society at Christmas time in 1943. Recently she completed a course at the Winnetka Business school and now is pursuing a career in the Technological institute of Northwestern university. In addition to her job, Miss Warner finds time to serve on the board of directors of the Service club and to do volunteer work as a provisional member of the Chicago Junior league. She is a granddaughter of Col. and Mrs. Harry Herndon Polk of Des Moines, Ia.

Ensign McLennan attended the Hotchkiss school and was graduated from Yale university in 1944. He went overseas last summer and has been serving on a PT boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Pelfer Ralph Mork of Winnetka announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Helen, to Lt. David Monfort Carroll of the naval air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Carroll of Poland, O. Miss Mork, who is serving as a Gray Lady at Wesley Memorial hospital, attended Rosemont college and Northwestern university. Lt. Carroll, a graduate of Dartmouth college, recently returned after serving for two years in the Pacific as pilot of a B-24 and has received the air medal. He is stationed in Bedford, Mass. Miss Mork has a brother also in the navy, Lt. [j. g.] Ralph G. Mork, who is doing research work in Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Lindheimer announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Marian, to Lt. [j. g.] Perry Steiner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Steiner of Nashville, Tenn.

On the Calendar

Mr. and Mrs. Ivo Meucci will entertain at luncheon in the Saddle and Cycle club tomorrow for Massimo Freccia, 39 year old Italian-born conductor of the New Orleans symphony, who is to be guest conductor with the Chicago Symphony orchestra next week in Ravinia Park. Mr. Meucci and Mr. Freccia have been friends since their days in the music conservatory in Florence, Italy. Among those invited to tomorrow's luncheon are Mrs. Robert Adams Carr, who met the conductor in Italy.

Alfred Wallenstein will conduct tonight's and tomorrow afternoon's concerts in Ravinia Park. Among those entertaining at dinner before tonight's program are Mr. and Mrs. Jack V. Spachner of Highland Park.

There will be dinner with entertainment tonight in the Saddle and Cycle, and tomorrow at 3 p. m. tennis enthusiasts will gather for another in a series of round robin tennis tournaments. Missing from the courts will be Lt. Dan Freed of the naval reserve, who has been one of the top players at the club while stationed in Chicago. He will depart today for the west coast and new orders. Round robin tournaments also are a regular Sunday afternoon event at the Knollwood club.

The downtown harbor of the Chicago Yacht club will be crowded with spectators at noon today when the annual Chicago-Mackinac Island race gets under way. The yachtsmen expect a gala time at the end of the race, for the wives and friends of many of them will be at the island to welcome the crews.

The North Shore Service league of the Chicago Maternity center will hold its annual summer party in the Evanston home of Mr. and Mrs. Parke Burrows at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Members, their husbands, and guests have been invited. Mrs. William M. Fine Jr. is chairman of the event.

Here and There

Ensign and Mrs. John A. McGuire [Carlotta Lagorio] became the parents of a son, Michael, their third child, Thursday in Henrotin hospital. Ensign McGuire is stationed in Trinidad with the naval reserve, so he will not meet his new son for some time. However, the baby's uncle, Lt. Frank A. Lagorio Jr., is expected soon on leave from the South Pacific, where he has been stationed for almost two years with the army medical corps.

When Lt. Joseph Sample leaves Lake Forest tomorrow after a visit with his parents, the John Glen Samples, he will go to Washington, D. C., to pick up new orders from the office of strategic services which probably will take him overseas. His wife will accompany him to Washington and will return to the north shore when he reports to his new post.

At noon tomorrow friends of Miss Meridith Leverone and a group of midshipmen from the naval reserve training school at Northwestern university will gather at the home of her parents, the Nathaniel Leverones, in Lake Forest for "brunch." The young group will go to the Knollwood club in the afternoon for swimming and tennis.

Since only a few friends of the former Gladys Therese Gilliatte and Roy Guilfoyle could be present when they were married two months ago in Missouri, Mr. Guilfoyle and his bride have invited 500 friends to cocktails from 5 to 8 p. m. today in the Ambassador East hotel. The former Miss Gilliatte, daughter of Mrs. William Henry Gilliatte of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mr. Guilfoyle were married May 28 in the Presbyterian church in Kansas City, Mo. Since their return from a 10 day wedding trip, they have been at home in the Edgewater Beach apartments. Before her marriage the bride lived in Lake Shore dr.

Poets Club Meeting

The Poets Club of Chicago will meet for a picnic supper tomorrow evening in the vicinity of the band shell in Grant park and remain for the concert.

Ol' Bad Bogey Comes Out 2d Best in Movie

"CONFLICT"

By Mae Tinée

He's been getting away with a lot in the movies, pushing women around and making them love it, outwitting authorities and making them take it, but in "Conflict" he comes out second best. He doesn't even get to kiss the gal, and how the law finally outsmarts him is something to see.

It's a mystery, so it wouldn't do to tell much of the plot, but when I saw the film all the spectators immediately caught what was indicated as a slip of the tongue, but there's still plenty to guess about. In fact, there are some little items I'm still guessing about.

Dr. Hamilton [Sydney Greenstreet] is a fat and jolly psychiatrist and host to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mason [Bogart and Rose Hobart] on the occasion of their fifth wedding anniversary and, incidentally, the day on which their smouldering bickering flares into an open and heated quarrel. [The cause of the trouble is an in-law, but in this case it's love, not hate.]

Dr. Hamilton holds forth on the cancerous effects of evil thoughts, Mrs. Mason does a lovey-dovey wife act for the occasion, and the in-law, Alexis Smith, talks about love. After an accident, Mason carefully plots the perfect crime. Shamming an inability to walk, he arranges to meet his wife unexpectedly in a dark and most awkward spot. Wifey is missing after that episode, and Mr. Bogart does a nice bit as an outraged citizen who wants justice and expert police work in return for his tax money. [He gets it, all right!]

"Conflict" is not the best vehicle for the star, altho it is a change. Sydney Greenstreet does his usual good work, and Miss Hobart is quite convincing as a jealous and possessive wife, but Alexis Smith's work left me absolutely cold.

The story has several unusual twists to it, but on the whole, it's only fair-to-middling.

A Dull Movie Dish

"TEN CENTS A DANCE"

As you might gather from the title, she's the queen of the taxi dancers in a jernt run by a character known as Breezy. A soldier becomes enamored of her, but just to make things complicated he has a rich buddy who doesn't like to spend his own money, leading the lady to pick the wrong boy to work on. She's a dood girl, of course—she just wants to get some one with some dough into a little crap game with Breezy for a noble cause. Said cause is another dancer who needs the services of a brain specialist [so does the author of this plot] which will cost 500 smackers. A prize fight, love, and repeated misunderstandings are also thrown in to help wear you down.

Thru the Looking Glass

One of our readers who dyed her hair a few months ago has decided she's had enough of the burden of keeping it dyed. She wants to know how quickly she can remove the last of it and shorten the period of transition to normalcy.

We're sorry to say there isn't a great deal she can do, except to give her scalp and hair exceptional care—and many, many shampoos.

Massaging the scalp helps; this should be done morning and night. Use warm oil, say every third night, and allow it to remain on until morning. Then shampoo, using plenty of warm water and plenty of elbow grease, plus a small brush.

When the hair is soaked with oil it helps a bit if you apply the shampoo directly to the oiled hair without wetting it first. Use just a little—this is used on the old theory that grease cuts grease—and as soon as the hair seems soaped a bit rinse immediately and often. Then proceed with the usual shampoo.

If you possibly can manage, brush the hair dry or dry it by hand. Two or three shampoos a week are not too many when you're trying to remove a coating of dye—and they won't be too hard on the hair if you use a bland shampoo and plenty of oil before the scrubbing.

This is about all you can do to hasten the process of letting the hair go back to its natural color. There's bound to be a difficult period when the dye is wearing off, especially if the hair was light or white and the dye deep tinted. Wear scarves and hats that conceal the streaks.

Mostly, however, you must depend on shampoos and scalp treatments that will help stimulate the hair growth.

Youthful Creations in New York Dress Institute's Fashion Preview

Youthful new costumes in Claire McCardell's collection of originals, displayed in New York Dress institute's current showings and sketched by Margot, Tribune fashion artist, in New York with Rea Seeger to give readers a preview of fall and winter fashions.

1. Lounging outfit, with sleeved blouse of black jersey as contrast for kelly green slacks, ideal for decorative lounging or boning for exams in chilly dormitories. The new flap pockets make the waistline seem inches smaller.

2. Sleek classroom dress of steel gray wool made with the new rounded shoulders that extend well down over into wide loose sleeves. The neckline and rounded outline are defined with rows of stitching in contrasting colored thread.

3. One of the swank new dress-suit ensembles of Claire McCardell's fall collection. The snug and brief jacket is of vivid scarlet wool fastened with gold metal buttons. It tops a beige two piece dress of slim skirt and short sleeved shirt.

4. All black date dress of thin wool jersey. The puffed band in front accentuates the deep square cut neckline of the fitted bodice and the short straight sleeves. The skirt is gathered to a narrow band belt.

5. Brand new shorts with a new name—ballet dancer shorts. They reach well below the knees and are loose and straight in cut. The long sleeves of the jersey blouse are worn pushed half way up the arms. The jaunty wesket is of multi-striped wool with a yellow background.

Models illustrated will be available in Chicago shops and stores after the official fall openings.

Fall Fashions by M'Cardell Crisp as Ever

BY REA SEEGER

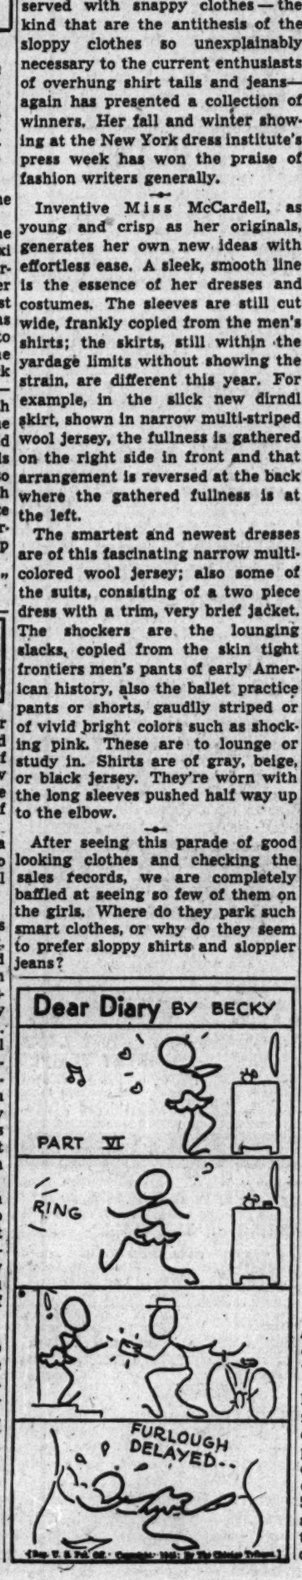
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

New York, July 20—Claire McCardell, still believing youth can be served with snappy clothes—the kind that are the antithesis of the sloppy clothes so unexplainably necessary to the current enthusiasts of overhung shirt tails and jeans—again has presented a collection of winners. Her fall and winter showing at the New York dress institute's press week has won the praise of fashion writers generally.

Inventive Miss McCardell, as young and crisp as her originals, generates her own new ideas with effortless ease. A sleek, smooth line is the essence of her dresses and costumes. The sleeves are still cut wide, frankly copied from the men's shirts; the skirts, still within the yardage limits without showing the strain, are different this year. For example, in the slick new dirndl skirt, shown in narrow multi-striped wool jersey, the fullness is gathered on the right side in front and that arrangement is reversed at the back where the gathered fullness is at the left.

The smartest and newest dresses are of this fascinating narrow multi-colored wool jersey; also some of the suits, consisting of a two piece dress with a trim, very brief jacket. The shockers are the lounging slacks, copied from the skin tight frontiers men's pants of early American history, also the ballet practice pants or shorts, gaudily striped or of vivid bright colors such as shocking pink. These are to lounge or study in. Shirts are of gray, beige, or black jersey. They're worn with the long sleeves pushed half way up to the elbow.

After seeing this parade of good looking clothes and checking the sales records, we are completely baffled at seeing so few of them on the girls. Where do they park such smart clothes, or why do they seem to prefer sloppy shirts and sloppier jeans?



Newly Organized Officers' Club to Open Next Week

Planned especially for the young second lieutenant and ensign who has been honorably discharged is a new officers' club to be opened next Saturday morning at 130 N. Wells st. The organization, called the Armed Forces Officers' club, will be open to officers in uniform as well as to those of this war who have been discharged and those of World War I.

With membership dues at $1 a month, the club will offer entertainment and recreation in attractive surroundings to officers and their wives. The cost of food and liquid refreshments will be kept at a minimum, as the club is organized not-for-profit. The club will be staffed by volunteers, who will work two hours as waitresses or in the office, and then serve as hostesses.

The clubrooms, now being decorated and furnished, will be ready for a press preview Thursday afternoon, and for a party Friday night for the 357 donors whose funds made the club possible. Adm. John Downes serves as president of the club, with Gen. Manus McCloskey as vice president, Capt. Abner J. Stilwell, treasurer; Col. Edward Wentworth, secretary, and Adm. Henry G. Taylor, chairman of the executive board. Comdr. P. G. Pettersen is chairman of the house committee; Mrs. Walter B. Wolf heads the woman's board, and Mrs. Georgia Hunt is chairman of activities.

Beginning in September, Mrs. Louis Eckstein has arranged for a series of Sunday afternoon musicals to be followed by tea-dancing. There will be two big dances weekly, and dancing nightly in the bar.

Bridge, chess, and dancing lessons will be available, and there will be a small library, of which Nordica Fennaman of the Chicago Library staff will serve as librarian.

Service Centers' June Report Shows GI Joe Has Healthy Appetite

That GI Joe and his sister in the service have healthy appetites is a generality for which statistically minded staff members at the Chicago service men centers can provide accurate measure. A compilation of facts and figures for June from the three city centers and the summer club in Lincoln park show that 273,168 pieces of cake were served, that the "hot dogs" consumed numbered 211,908, and that the young guests tucked away 328,080 sandwiches.

The centers served 119,010 dishes of ice cream, 51,600 glasses of milk, 88,960 cups of coffee, 62,100 bottles of fruit aid, and 16,080 cokes. Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews in uniform have a sweet tooth; they ate 6,033 bars and 6,349 pounds of candy. Miscellaneous items dispensed were 542 pounds of pretzels, 650 pounds of popcorn, 174 pounds of potato chips, and 282,200 cigarets.

3 Million Art Forgery Case Stirs Holland

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, July 20 (AP)—The authenticity of several paintings introduced to the public as newly discovered works of Jan Vermeer [Jan van der Meer], 17th century Dutch master, is in question and the case has caused a sensation in Holland.

Originally many of these paintings were introduced to the public by Hans Van Meegeren, modern Dutch painter. Soon after the liberation of the Netherlands Van Meegeren was arrested on a charge of having collaborated with the Germans and is in prison awaiting trial.

The press agency Anepaneta, which operates as a government mouthpiece, said a few days ago that Van Meegeren had made a statement that he had painted the supposed Vermeers.

Anepaneta quoted Van Meegeren as saying he made about $3,024,000 forging the pictures and bamboozling the art experts.

Art experts said they were not convinced that the statements attributed to Van Meegeren are true. Netherlands newspapers today demanded an investigation.

The Amsterdamsch Dagblad said its editors had facts in detail concerning the case that it would print as soon as a release was authorized by military intelligence.

De Volkskrant reproduced two paintings side by side under the caption, "Painted by the same brush." One was the head of "Mother" by Van Meegeren. The other was the head of Christ in "Pilgrims to Emmaus."

A painting restorer said that if "Pilgrims to Emmaus," one of the disputed works, which he transferred recently to new canvas, was indeed a forgery, then the painter must be considered a genius in that line.

"Pilgrims to Emmaus" has been returned to the Boysmans museum in Rotterdam with masterpieces from war time storage in tunnels at Maastricht.

"If the rumors prove to be true," said the newspaper Het Parool, "then the best experts and completely reputable persons have been the dupes of a deception which was fashioned with unparalleled skill and in which, besides the forger himself, many middlemen must have taken part."

The director of the Rotterdam museum said Van Meegeren was a fantasist who had a grudge against museums and similar institutions.

The Catholic newspaper De Volkskrant said that there were suspected Vermeers in Germany, England, and the United States.

Vermeer [1632-'75] rarely dated his pictures. Lemon yellow and blue mark his works. His works in public and private collections were listed at 37 in 1939.

Music Note

For the first time since it bought the Metropolitan Opera house in 1940, the Metropolitan Opera Association of New York has ended its season with a profit, according to the annual statement just released. The 1944-'45 profit of $5,872 was explained by the management as due to a drop in real estate taxes and to ticket sales increase "beyond the most optimistic forecasts." Total receipts for the season amounted to $2,263,680, while performers were paid $1,555,122. The Chicago Opera company also reported a profit for the five week season of 1944, but no figures were disclosed.

Singer Dickson Scores Success at Grant Park

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

One of the principal reasons for the improvement of Grant park's musical program this summer has been the canny selection of soloists, most of them young and able, yet not fledglings, and not yet so familiar that the discovery of their talents still comes with the pleasant impact of surprise. For this happy state of affairs the park's conscientious manager of concerts, Mr. Walter L. Larsen, may take a bow.

Last night's soloist with Nicolai Malko and his Grant Park Symphony orchestra was Donald Dickson, a baritone who according to the records has sung here before and is no stranger to the radio public, yet whose abilities were fairly unfamiliar to the majority of the large audience which at once took the likeable young singer to its collective heart.

Not many baritones go wrong with what the program described as the recitativ and area [sic] from Verdi's "A Masked Ball"—in other words, "Eri tu"—but on the other hand not many in this day of dubious vocalization can bring to the piece Mr. Dickson's combination of solid, vibrant tone and forthright dramatic projection. And to prove that this was no accident, he straightaway came back in response to the determined applause and sang the prolog to "Pagliacci" with a vigor and opulence that may justly be characterized as stirring. It all left one wondering a bit about the frayed voices the public still pays good money to hear season in and season out with the so-called major opera companies on the theory that there are no younger artists capable of supplanting them.

Among the Grant park records when this season ends will be any number for the slowest known performance of standard orchestral works. Beethoven's Seventh symphony went right to the top of that list last night. It was more a clinical classroom demonstration than a performance. When you have said that the orchestra played it cleanly and with such remarkable control that it rarely ever leaped ahead of Mr. Malko's restraining beat, you have about dispensed all the possible bouquets. The trio of the scherzo lumbered with the elegiac tread of the Volga Boatmen's song, and when at that very moment a fog horn out in the lake set up its mournful call it did seem high time to clear the atmosphere.

You might have called this symphony the Russian occupation of Beethoven, but you could never apply Wagner's corny phrase, "The apotheosis of the dance." Preceding this there had been an equally curious interpretation of the overture to Weber's "Oberon," in which we counted five distinct tempi in the allegro, where two usually adequately suffice.

The bright spot of the orchestral program came after intermission, tho bright is scarcely the adjective to apply to Felix Borowski's somber tone poem, "Ecce Homo." Yet even against the pastel coloring of the bandshell and in the open acreage of the park its dark mood of reverence and grief registered effectively, aided to a great extent by the mournfully beautiful song of Margaret Cree Evans' cello.

When One Word Will Do

All of us could heed with profit one last caution of the social security board in instructing correspondents against the use of superfluous words when one or two words express the thought adequately.

Avoid phrases such as:

"Despite the fact." [Why not use the single word "tho"?]

"Make inquiry regarding." [What's wrong with "inquire"?]

"Have need for." [Why substitute the longer phrase for the word "need"?]

"Meets with approval." [Isn't this a roundabout way of saying "approve"?]

"In view of the fact." [Doesn't "since" or "because" accomplish the same purpose?]

"Use all the words you need to carry your message clearly and correctly, but use no more," the social security board advises. Business letters are cluttered, contracts canceled, tempers lost—even jobs are lost—all because it's so hard to come to the point.

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

By Roy Vickers

(Copyright: 1945: By Roy Vickers)

INSTALMENT XXX.

SIGNED AWAY

When Gillian had read the statement her first thought was for Ruth. "I am not greatly surprised," she said. "But why did this have to be signed? Now that Mrs. Steel is dead, need it ever be mentioned?"

"That rests with you, Miss Beynon." As she looked at him in bewilderment, he explained:

"Mrs. Steel was suffering from homicidal mania, in a dormant form. On the evidence of that document, a judge might decide that she was insane."

"I often thought there might be something wrong with her mind," admitted Gillian. "What will happen, Mr. Sendleman, if the judge says she was insane?"

"I am afraid the will in your favor will be declared null and void. In that event, the township of Tenstable would inherit the money. As mayor, I feel it my duty to fight the case."

To the mayor's astonishment, Gillian burst into laughter.

"Then I don't have to be a local empress, after all!"

"Just a minute, Miss Beynon. I feel bound to tell you that the judge might decide in your favor. What I want to know is whether you would rather fight or come to terms?"

Gillian was puzzled.

"I'm very stupid at this kind of thing," she confessed. "How do we come to terms?"

"It's very simple. If we fight the case it will cost both sides a very great deal of money and will take a very long time. Let us off the fight, and we will pay you, say, fifty thousand pounds."

Gillian shook her head.

"I want you to let me speak very freely, Miss Beynon," pressed the mayor. "You are not used to a very great deal of money and its responsibilities. Now, with such a sum as fifty thousand, snugly invested . . ."

"Please!" Gillian interrupted. "I didn't mean that. I mean that if Mrs. Steel was insane, as I think she may well have been, I am not really entitled to the money. I should be stealing it from Tenstable if I were to accept anything."

The mayor was astounded.

"I am afraid you must talk it over with your lawyers," he said miserably.

"I'd much rather settle it now, please," pleaded Gillian. "I suppose the relatives ought to have something because they were led to expect it. But Mr. Hanshaw and I definitely said we did not wish to be in the running."

"Hanshaw is a very able man, both as engineer and as financier. What do you thing we ought to do for the relatives?"

"O, I don't know, Mr. Sendleman. I can't decide people's future for them."

The girl was positively refusing to bargain with him.

"Then will you leave it all in my hands, Miss Beynon?" he asked nervously.

"Yes, please. Do I have to sign something?"

"You—you certainly do have to sign something. Can you come to the mayor's parlor tomorrow at . . ."

"No—tonight, please. I feel in my bones it's one of those cases where second thoughts are bound to be worse."

He took her down to his car, himself talking excitedly about the future of the town.

He kept her waiting an hour in the parlor, then presented her with a document. She took up a pen.

"Wait. Don't you want to see what provision I've made for the—er—relatives?"

"No, thanks—I'd rather not know," said Gillian, and promptly signed.

The second thoughts she had feared assailed her as she was getting into bed. Too late, she realized she had treated Ralph unfairly by not consulting him.

At times she remembered the heady eloquence of the mayor, and persuaded herself that she had done a noble deed. The next minute she would be facing the fact that she had thrown away a fortune with a stroke of the pen.

Shortly after dawn, she got up and wrote to Ralph, telling him what she had done. It seemed sensible and fair when she came to write it down, and her confidence returned.

"By the time you get this I shall be at Wren Cottage, Little Henelon, Dorset, to spend a couple of days with my old school teacher. It's too troublesome a journey for you to come and see me. [She hoped he would prove this untrue by coming]. Send a wire where to meet you in London next week, and which day. Send it as soon as you can so that I can make my arrangements fit in. Unless, of course, you don't want to marry me after what I've done.

The last was a little joke, to show she was in good spirits. She would post it on the way to the station.

"It's not good-by," Ruth," she explained. "We're being married in London next week by special license and are coming back to Tenstable in a fortnight. But I must have a few days' rest, and I'm going on the workman's train."

"Then you'll have to be quick over your breakfast, Miss. I'll tell Carter. Do him good to get up early for once."

She would have missed the train if the stationmaster had not contrived to keep it waiting for her.

Her old teacher was delighted that her standing invitation had at last been accepted. Gillian spent a restful day and went to bed early.

The next morning she was depressed when there came no telegram from Ralph.

The second day was similiarly blank. Then came the week-end.

His face was unsmiling and his voice held deep resentment as he said:

"You have not treated me fairly, Gillian. Why didn't you tell me your plans?"

"I'm sorry you think that, Ralph," she answered humbly. "But I felt I had to decide at once, while the mayor was there."

"Mayor!" he echoed angrily. "What the dickens has the mayor to do with it?"

"Will you kindly leave out all talk about the arrangements you made with the mayor. They were excellent arrangements. To me, they were unnecessarily generous but for the moment I am not concerned with them. I . . ."

"Then will you kindly tell me what you are bullying me about?"

"I deny that I am bullying you. I am simply asking why, after promising to marry me this very week, you disappeared without trace?"

"I didn't. I sent you my address and asked you to wire me here."

Pick Out Few New Friends, Girl Advised

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Often it happens that when a fellow is the third party in a boy-girls' friendship, he comes between the two girls when one or the other begins to get interested in him as special date material. But when one girl comes between two other girls with the same kind of jealousy, that's a different story and a foolish one. Here's a tale of woe from a girl caught in just that predicament and her letter gives out this way:

"I used to go around with three other girls from our neighborhood but recently one of them moved away and left just the three of us in our crowd. Before, when there were four of us, we could always pair off when we went out together but now one of the remaining girls has the absurd idea that threes won't work out, saying that some one is bound to get hurt or left out. We've tried to get along but it just doesn't work. I've gone with one of the girls most of my life, and now she tells me that I should give up my other friend. I really don't know what to do because I like them both but they aren't even speaking to each other any more. I'm just caught in the middle. . . ."

When a group of gals begins arguing among themselves, it is almost a sure sign that they are bored with each other. The argument is just one way to break up the monotony of spending too much time together. You and your friends have been looking at the same faces, talking about the same things, and going to the same places for so long that you're just tired of the old routine. Don't choose between your two friends—just try to find yourself a few new ones. Or you might find an interesting boy or two with whom to split your evenings and to take your minds off yourselves. The world is so full of a number of things—and you'll have twice as much fun when you begin to realize that half of them are boys.

"How much wood would a woodchuck chuck, if a woodchuck could chuck wood?"

That's about all I knew about woodchucks, I'm afraid, until last week when I cooked one. It was a young animal and came from THE TRIBUNE'S experimental farm. Was it good? The brave souls who dared to sit down with us to a woodchuck dinner said so. In fact, what they said was: "We'll come up for a woodchuck dinner any time." And there was nothing left but bones when the meal was over.

If I had to skin and clean my own woodchuck I don't think I'd have much appetite for it, but this animal came to me beautifully ready for cooking and looked so attractive I decided at once it would make good eating. I cut it into pieces, simmered the pieces in stock prepared previously from beef neck bones for about 45 minutes, then removed the meat from the kettle, dried it, rolled it in flour seasoned with salt, pepper, and sage, and browned it in a little hot fat. Then I added a cup of the cooking broth and covered the skillet. As the broth cooked down I added about ½ cup of red wine, and let the meat simmer for half an hour altogether. An older animal would have required longer cooking. Most recipes which I've been able to uncover call for a pre-cooking of an hour, and braising of an hour longer. Sometimes the meat is pre-cooked, then simply fried.

So any family who wants to stretch its skimpy meat rations with woodchuck, has my consent and approval!

Peelings and cores of apples used for pies or for canning make a breakfast juice as well as apple pectin, a reader writes. She reports that she always cooks apple peelings and cores with water to cover, strains the juice twice, and then sweetens it slightly. Chilled, this makes a good drink, and an economical one.

Another reader writes, "Why bother peeling peaches for canning? The peeling imparts delicious flavor and rosy color to the canning sirup. Skins may be removed when the peaches are served and they leave smooth surfaces like you find in the commercially canned peaches."

A third contributor says she never peels peaches for jams, and thinks that the skins improve the flavor and increase the yield of jam.

I am always glad to get suggestions of this kind, and to pass them on to other readers. Ideas of this nature do not qualify for our recipe contest, however. It takes an actual recipe for something good to eat to inspire the contest editors to get out their testing equipment. But there's a $5 prize every day of the week for some homemaker who has a good ration-wise recipe to share.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 20—When I went to Universal for news, I had no idea they'd give me such a hot reception. I ran into a blaze that burned down a lot of history out there—old stage coaches, wagons, even a royal barouche, brought over from Austria when Eric von Stroheim was the big breeze there, burned to a crisp. That old coach was worth its weight in gold. It was redecorated and rented to other companies, and more Hollywood queens sat in it than kings and queens in the old country. . . . You've heard stories about lack of coöperation between studios. You can discount them. Universal didn't know its studio was on fire until Warners called up and told 'em. Then one of the press boys quipped, "I'll bet they started it—probably needed some new fire shots." . . . I went to take a look at "Shady Lady," whose star is Ginny Simms! Robert Paige asked her how she felt. She said, "fine today." Then added, "Some people think I'm a hypochondriac." Bob replied, "Well, at least you're not a kleptomaniac—tho you do have taking ways." . . . I hope it's true that Joe Frisco will do a scene in "Shady Lady." His sidekick, Billy Green from Charley Foy's, was there singing one of his ditties, but his main job was teaching Charles Coburn how to cheat at cards.

Merlie-Perlie Escaped

I reached the Merle Oberon set, "As It Was Before," and she'd already finished for the day, but her husband, Lucien Ballard, had his camera trained on Charles Korvin, who has the kind of mug the gals will go for. They tell me he can't miss. Merle, Claude Rains, Jess Barker, and others act their heads off around him, while he just looks intense. . . . Martha O'Driscoll is delighted that she's slivered down to size 10. She commented on what I wrote about some U. S. O. shows. Said that in one troupe she was with, the comic kept grousing that he was losing money [he was getting $300 a week], and in the South Pacific he complained to a commanding officer that the GI band played the wrong entrance music for him. After a look at him, they played "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down."

Winding Up a Picture

On another stage I watched the last shot of "Uncle Harry." Talked with Director Robert Siodmak, who really has a full schedule. Monday he reports at R. K. O. to direct Ethel Barrymore in "Some Must Watch." Tuesday he and his wife move into the Boris Karloff house which they bought even tho they heard it's haunted. Geraldine Fitzgerald and Katharine Hepburn both said it was. They told about a mirror flying off the wall and over their heads. Finally it crashed. That ended that. Then came weird noises. Said he, "They might have come from the life sized statue of Boris I found in the attic." Another souvenir he left behind was a steel corset. There were other items which I shan't mention. Siodmak showed me an impressive looking telescope George Sanders built and sold to the studio. I learned why George sold it. It didn't turn out 100 per cent—but was good enough for the studio. . . . Ella Raines was on the set wearing a black fur cossack hat. She was entertaining her navy cousin who had a chest full of overseas ribbons.

She's Retired to a Ranch

Remember Baby Sandy? She had two prolific years as a picture star. During that time her parents bought her an annuity and had enough money left to purchase a ranch in Oregon. The family now lives on it. Baby Sandy's father was a milkman. . . . Judy Canova's next for Columbia will be "Hay Foot, Straw Foot." She'll blend some of her hillbilly tunes with a medley of operatic arias from "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," "Barber of Seville," and "Pagliacci." . . . That 100 carat star sapphire Director Johnny Farrow sported the other day isn't for his beautiful wife. It was rented for a few closeups in his picture. Paramount pays $300 a week for its use. . . . Jack Carson wrote me from the South Pacific that he'd run into a GI who used to work with him at Warners, and while discussing a successful producer the GI remarked, "Sure, I knew him in the days when he didn't have enough soap to make an opera."

Sh-h-h Men at Work

D. W. Griffith was thrown off the "Duel in the Sun" set. Them's fightin' words! Here's the story. He went to visit Lillian Gish, Lionel Barrymore, and Walter Huston. It was D. W. who started them all in pictures. They got so enthusiastic reminiscing about old times that King Vidor couldn't get them to concentrate on the scene. Finally King whispered to Lillian, "Do you suppose you could take him next door while we get this scene?" . . . Metro's big shots should have heard Lionel Barrymore talk about their studio. He says he'd rather swing on the Metro gate than be inside any other studio. But he's having fun on "Duel." "They pamper me," says he "and I love it." . . . Remember Lassie, who earned a wad of dough for Metro? He's now being offered for personal appearances at $12,000 per week. . . . Brian Donlevy's been drafted—as mayor of Malibu. . . . Hollywood's trying to sign up Count Basie's songbird, Lynne Sherman, who records with him. They think she's a colored girl—but she's not.

Bright Child Is Often Spoiled by Attentions

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The danger signal we hung out recently about children becoming too aware of their smartness and charms is waved in this brief letter:

"My lovely, sunny, good-natured 2½ year old daughter is turning into just a plain spoiled brat. I have noticed the change since she started talking so plainly. She speaks well for her age, and every one repeats or laughs at everything she says. We've tried so hard not to spoil her but I really think she's getting too much attention. I am upset by the change in Susan. Any suggestions?"

Wise the mother who stops, looks, and listens, and then tries to call a halt when her little girl is headed as this one is.

Two and a half is certainly the delectable age. It is the age at which more small girls are spoiled than at any other. Little boys can, I think, be equally enchanting in their ways and looks, but they are more apt to be spared the spoiling process.

Little girls, especially those who are bright and say "such old-fashioned things," usually come in for an adoration and an audience which aren't good for them. Attention gets centered on the child and she becomes self-conscious; very often behavior troubles start.

It's a temptation for a mother to encourage a small daughter to say and do the amusing little things she has learned for friends and relatives. But parents should watch out for this.

Still more, tho, should they prevent the family and friends from doing it, and then applauding or laughing at the result. After all, a child isn't a mechanical doll to be played with. Interest in what a little child does is wholesome; undue interest in what the child herself is, is not. The subject of what constitutes wholesome neglect in unspoiling a child will be taken up soon.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

Several weeks ago a reader afflicted with arthritis asked about a recipe for no-kneading rolls. Another reader with the same difficulty writes her solution as follows:

"Instead of kneading it, place dough on floured towel, roll together, and pound with a rolling pin."

A second reader thinks her recipe for yeast bread or rolls will help those with arthritis. She suggests:

"Melt ⅓ cup shortening in ⅓ cup hot water. Add ⅓ cup cold water. Dissolve 1 yeast cake in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Beat 2 eggs until light and fluffy; add to shortening. Add 3 tablespoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, and the dissolved yeast. Add 3½ to 4 cups sifted flour to mixture. Work until smooth. For light rolls, store in refrigerator overnight. Let rise 2 to 2½ hours before baking."

"Can dextrose be used instead of sugar in canning fruits?"

Canning authorities advise against it.

"What's a good test for the ripeness of cantaloupe?"

Smell the stem end for the fragrant aroma of ripe melon. A smooth scar at the stem end indicates the melon was mature at picking time and therefore should be ripe. If "netting" on melon is thick and stands out like a cord, and if cantaloupe is a golden yellow color beneath netting, the fruit should be ripe.

"Is there some secret for softening white sugar hardened beyond the point of measuring?"

Set it in a covered pan in warm [about 250 degrees] oven with the door open, to dry out, then crush with a rolling pin. Since sugar easily absorbs moisture and hardens, prevent this happening by storing in a dry place.

WLB OVERRIDES LAW OF FLORIDA IN UNION ISSUE

Declares Itself Superior to State Constitution

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—The war labor board today held that the law under which it operates is superior to an amendment to the Florida constitution providing that no person may be compelled to join a union before he can work.

Rejecting a petition by the attorney general of Florida, the board upheld a maintenance of union membership order from the regional WLB in Atlanta, Ga., in a case involving three AFL unions at the port St. Joe, Fla., Paper Mill. Industry members dissented.

J. Tom Watson, Florida attorney general, asked the national board to intervene because of a state constitutional amendment adopted last November declaring the right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged because of membership or lack of membership in a union. A federal District court recently held the amendment valid.

Meaning Is Doubted

In Tallahassee today, Atty. Gen. Watson said he did not believe the war labor board had held the war labor disputes act superior to Florida's anti-closed shop amendment.

"No question of such superiority was submitted to it in the case referred to," he said, "and I conclude that it could not have gone beyond the issues presented in any holding or order which it might have made.

"In upholding a maintenance of union membership directive, it does not necessarily override the right-to-work constitutional provision."

The national board in its decision today held that the war labor disputes act is supreme when in conflict with state law or state constitution.

In reaching its decision the board said it was guided by article 6, section 2, of the United States constitution, which states:

"This constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof . . . or which shall be made under the authority of the United States shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding."

Loss of Jobs Provided

Under the standard maintenance of membership clause workers are allowed 15 days to decide whether to withdraw from a union. Those remaining members must maintain their union dues for the duration of the contract or lose their jobs.

The first agreement between the Florida company and the unions in 1939 contained a union security clause. The concern makes sulphate kraft linerboard, corrugated board, and kraft pulp.

ENGINEERS SEE GOVERNOR SIGN LICENSING BILL

Springfield, Ill., July 20 — Engineers watched Gov. Green sign into law today a bill for a stringent licensing system for most kinds of engineers. Included under the new law are civil, sanitary, mining, electrical, and chemical engineers. Among those excluded are maintenance, marine, portable, and locomotive engineers.

All engineers now practicing could get licenses within one year merely by submitting evidence of their "good moral character and temperate habits."

Thereafter, engineers requiring licenses would have to show they had at least eight years' experience plus knowledge equivalent to that gained thru graduation, from an engineering college, or at least four years' experience plus a diploma from an engineering college.

Practice without a license will be punishable by up to $500 fine and three months in jail.

POWER TO SEIZE VACANT BRITISH HOUSES WIDENED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 20—The vigilante organizations which has installed service men's families in empty houses in London and Brighton without the owners' permission wrung a major concession from the government tonight, when it was announced that local authorities will be given wider powers to requisition and repair properties without waiting for the ministry of health's approval.

Since 1943 local authorities have been empowered to requisition unoccupied houses for families needing them, but this required permission of the senior regional office of the ministry of health, and procedure was slow.

Local authorities are now authorized to requisition empty houses simply by giving the owner or agent 14 days' notice. If the owner intends to occupy the house himself a requisition order will not be issued.

July 20, 1945

ERADICATION of troublesome weeds in fields, fencerows, and roadside areas will be simplified by more general use of chemical sprays containing 2-4D. This is evident from recent test sprays applied on the Wheaton farm to bindweed, poison ivy, Canada thistle, ragweed, and bittersweet nightshade.

All these growths were sprayed the first week of this month and the killing effects now are evident. The hormone chemical 2-4D [sold under the trade name of Weedone] was used in all tests. The effect of the spray on poison ivy was most striking.

Poison to Poison Ivy

A large ivy was found growing on an oak tree in a heavy woodlot at the south end of the farm. The plant clung to the tree bark to a height of at least 40 feet and was green and lush. A pressure sprayer was used, with six ounces of chemical in four gallons of water. Enough pressure was generated to cover all the ivy leaves on the lower 15 feet of the plant.

All the leaves touched by the milky chemical have turned yellow and appear to be dying. The unsprayed leaves in the upper 25 feet of the plant remain green, but the entire plant probably will die because the chemical will destroy the roots.

Ragweed Effect Told

The same yellowing of leaves has taken place in bindweed sprayed with 2-4D. A heavy colony was growing over a wire fence along Maramy road at the east edge of the farm. Half was sprayed and it is evident that these plants are dying. The second half of the colony, unsprayed, is lush.

About 80 square feet of ground in a south pasture, with a heavy concentration of lesser ragweed, was sprayed with 2-4D. The smaller ragweed plants have been killed. The larger specimens remain partly green but are drooping near the crowns and probably will die.

The 2-4D also was sprayed on a bittersweet nightshade. The plant has not been killed but is showing considerable discoloration and probably will die. Against Canada thistle, Weedone does not seem as effective as Sinox and Dow G-506. One application of the other two chemicals killed this weed. Weedone has curtailed growth but the sprayed plants remain green.

★ The GARDEN ★

A COMMON July and August gardening error is sprinkling only the surface of parched gardens. The heavy spring rains gave northern Illinois plots an excellent supply of subsurface moisture, but the ground is dry now in most areas.

Gardeners who stand with a hose and moisten only the top inch or half inch of soil are making a mistake, because such watering seems only to bring vegetable roots up near the soil line, where they are subject to damage from the sun.

Rotary sprinkling for at least two hours in one area is the recommended method of watering. The water must penetrate at least 3 inches into the ground to benefit the plants. After a long period of watering, the gardener should use a hand trowel for probing the soil to determine how deep the water has penetrated.

DISCHARGED WAC PICKS SAME JOB SHE HAD IN ARMY

She'll Be Hello Girl—After Vacation

June F. Connolly, 537 S. Cornell av., Villa Park, an ex-corporal in the women's army corps, settled down to the life of a civilian yesterday, certain it would be "out of this world."

One of the first WACs from the Chicago area discharged under the army point system, Miss Connolly is a veteran of two years in the European theater. She participated in six major campaigns. She holds battle ribbons for the air offensive over Europe, and the Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes, Rhineland, and Central Europe campaigns.

"It was an education," she said. "But how I like this taking it easy."

Aided in Battle of Bulge

As a telephone operator in the 9th bombardment division of the 9th air force, the Illinois WAC participated in the reinforcement of the division during the Battle of the Bulge last December.

"We were about 50 miles from the nearest German push," she said. "I stayed at my job night and day, including Christmas and New Year, to clear calls to headquarters of the fighter command and the 9th air force. It was a bad time for everyone."

At Reims the ex-WAC corporal experienced her first strafing when a German light bomber flew low over the city, aiming at private dwellings.

"We went to our shelter and kept working," she said. "It's always better to do something to keep your mind off everything else."

On V-E day, Miss Connolly was at Namur, Belgium, where she worked in her headquarters until 6 p. m.

Vacation—Then Old Job

"We didn't do much celebrating—the Belgians took care of that," she said. "The war wasn't finished as far as we were concerned."

Her outfit left Paris by plane July 15, landing in Wilmington, Del., the following day, exactly two years from the time she had landed in the Firth of Clyde, Scotland, en route to war. She was discharged Thursday at Fort Sheridan.

"I'm glad I did it," she said. "I saw a lot of territory and learned to work in a large group. But I wouldn't volunteer again—just give me my old job back in about a month or so."

ARGENTINE EXILES UNITE IN PLEA TO END FARRELL REGIME

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 20 (AP)—A committee of Argentine exiles, including members of all former Argentine political parties, today urged their countrymen to oppose the government of Gen. Edelmiro Farrell so as to insure, they said, the country "her freedom, soverignty, and international decorum."

A document signed by former Deputies Jose Aguirre Camara, Conservative; Julio A. Noble, Progressive Democrat; Nicolas Repetto, Socialist; Agustin Rodriguez Araya, Radical, and Communist Leader Rodolfo Ghioldi said "a union of Argentines should free the country from fascistic humiliation." It added that exiles should urge the people of all political parties "to unite in a single movement to precipitate the downfall of the present regime."

For the first time since its inception last month the committee went all out for a union of all parties and shelving of all political differences until the present regime is unseated.

DILLINGER PAL SEEKS RELEASE FROM PRISON

Walter Detrich, former member of the Dillinger gang, and James Clark, bank robber, were two of 13 convicts in the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, who yesterday sought habeas corpus writs from Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert in Hammond, Ind. Both Detrich and Clark were members of the gang of 10 desperate criminals that broke out of the penitentiary in 1933 where they were serving 20 year sentences for bank robbery. Their petitions, which allege their penalties were not lawfully fixed by the jury, were taken under advisement by Judge Swygert.

NEGRO FESTIVAL SWEET, JOYFUL AND PLENTY HOT

BY GLADYS PRIDDY

Music—deep, warm, and smooth—rose again in glorious cadences last night at the 6th annual American Negro Music festival in Comiskey park, 35th st. and Shields av.

It was everything. It was intense reverence in the Negro spirituals. It was highbrow and classic. It was boogie woogie and plenty hot. But, hallelujah, it was all sweet and joyful to one little chap in a blue suit. He was no one else but Arthur W. Sewell, festival angel, who cocked a weather eye at the clearing and deepening blue sky and a business eye on the incoming crowds and crowed that it looked like the venture would get out of the red this year.

Navy and Militia Open Show

The show opened in dignity and patriotism as the Great Lakes navy band and the 8th infantry Illinois reserve militia marched onto the field. The next burst of applause came for Lionel Hampton and his incredibly wide shouldered orchestra. Hampton, who directs all over from chattering teeth to teetering toes, included his pianist, Milton Buckner, 5 feet 3 inches and 210 pounds, in a spell of jivin', truckin', and peckin' that was exhausting just to watch.

Classic solos came from the winners of the festival talent contest—Miss Sara Osborne, Louisville, Ky., first; Miss Gilda Burns, 4751 St. Lawrence av., second, and Willoughby Jones, baritone, third.

1,000 Voices Blend

J. Wesley Jones and associate directors brought about the blending of 1,000 voices in massed choirs, and the University of Chicago choir, directed by Dr. Gerhart Schroth, appeared in special selections.

The Deep River Boys, quartet; Ann Brown, lyric soprano; the navy octet, and Paul Muni, actor, all gave their talents to the colorful evening. The giant spotlights were turned out for the tribute to President Roosevelt in which Chief Petty Officer Graham Jackson, accordionist, who was to have played for the 24th time at the President's request the day Mr. Roosevelt died, participated.

Approximately 25,000 made their way to the ball park and there were more outside.

TELLS DANCER'S PLANE PRIORITY FOR HAWAII TRIP

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—An attorney for Carmen Beach, former rhumba dancer accused of operating a disorderly house, told reporters today she used a fictitious name in obtaining an airplane priority for a trip to Hawaii.

Altho she has said she went only as far as California, the lawyer, M. Edward Buckley Jr., insisted she spent three months in Hawaii visiting her sailor husband, returning to Washington on July 8. She was arrested with four other women in a vice squad raid five days later.

Neither Buckley nor his client would say who authorized the priority. The lawyer also declined to say what name she had used, asserting "it might get some one in a jam in the state department."

AGREE TO TRUCE IN KANSAS CITY MILK STRIKE

Kansas City, Kas., July 20 (AP)—Contending parties agreed tonight to a truce in the milk dispute which had virtually halted milk deliveries in Kansas City since last Wednesday.

The truce permits immediate resumption of normal milk supplies to the war swollen city after two days in which the majority of producers had declined to send their milk to processing plants because of a union demand that dairies not handle any milk delivered by non-union drivers.

Representatives of the Milk Producers association, the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes union [AFL] and of the various dairies agreed to the truce at a meeting called by City Manager L. P. Cookingham.

Under the agreement producers will resume deliveries with the same drivers they used in the past but union drivers are to meet the non-union trucks at the city limits and accompany them to the dairies.

PATRICE MUNSEL, NELSON EDDY 1ST IN SINGER POLL

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Patrice Munsel, young Metropolitan Opera soprano, was named the favorite feminine radio singer of the year in a poll of readers taken by Musical America, the periodical. Gladys Swarthout was second and Licia Albanese third.

Nelson Eddy was first among men, Richard Crooks second, and Jan Peerce third. All are heard regularly. Among women singers heard occasionally, Rise Stevens was first [Since the poll was taken she has come on the air regularly.], Bidu Sayao second, and Marian Anderson third. Among men featured occasionally Ezio Pinza was first, Lauritz Melchior second, and Igor Gorin third.

Templeton 1st Instrumentalist

Favorite instrumentalist regularly heard was Alec Templeton; then came the First Piano quartet and E. Powers Biggs. Soloists with orchestras: Jascha Heifetz, Robert Casedesus, and Fritz Kreisler.

Symphony orchestra conductors, in order: Arturo Toscanini, Serge Koussevitzky, Artur Rodzinski. However, the NBC orchestra, which Toscanini conducts, was rated third with the New York Philharmonic Symphony and Boston Symphony ahead of it.

The Metropolitan Opera's broadcast of "Die Meistersinger" was acclaimed its best, with "Tristan and Isolde," "Mignon,' and "Pelleas and Melisande" following. Opera conductors, in order, were: Bruno Walter, George Szell, Erich Leinsdorf.

Telephone Hour Leads

Other classifications and ratings: Orchestra with featured soloists: The Telephone hour's Great Artists series, Family hour, the concert hour with Howard Barlow's orchestra. Musical varieties: Star Theater with James Melton, the Nelson Eddy show, the Contented hour with Josephine Antoine. Studio orchestra conductors: Donald Voorhees, Frank Black, Howard Barlow.

The magazine's readers upset the judgment of critics and editors in several instances. The critics, for instance, preferred the Boston Symphony to the Philharmonic and Miss Swarthout to Miss Munsel.

Bruce Foote, baritone, and Ruth Slater, contralto, will be the soloists. Robert Quick, concert master, will interpret Tschaikowsky's "Melodie" on the violin, accompanied by the orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber.

Other numbers: "The Pilgrims' Chorus" from "Tannhauser," by the chorus; "Air de Lia" from "L'Enfant Prodigue," by Miss Slater; "Just A Wearyin' for You," chorus; "Bacchanale" from "Samson and Delilah," orchestra; "Open Thy Heart," Miss Slater and chorus; "My Sword and I" from "The Three Musketeers," by Foote and chorus; "Mourning Journal's Waltz," by the orchestra, and "Siboney," by entire ensemble.

TRUMAN 'GLAD' NILES TO REMAIN AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—David K. Niles, the last of President Roosevelt's original "anonymous assistants" still in office, will remain under President Truman.

The White House released today a letter sent by the President to Niles last Tuesday welcoming his continued service on the White House staff.

The original group of six assistants became known as men with a "passion for anonymity" because Mr. Roosevelt so described them once in telling about the kind of person best qualified for the work.

Larry's Master at Spoiling Plays

BY E. L. (CURLY) LAMBEAU

Green Bay, Wis., July 20 [Special]—No one has ever accused George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, of making an understatement. Yet I will take an oath that once he was guilty of being too conservative. The focal fellow in the incident is Larry Craig, Packer half back, some times called Don Hutson's muscle. It is Craig who takes Don's place at left end when the other team has the ball. Larry has beautiful, strong muscles and he can stand the wear and tear of opposing players with less strain than Don.

Larry Craig

When he learned that the Packers had obtained Craig, Owner Marshall tapped me on the shoulder and exclaimed: "Curly, I've been watching that lad. You'll have a great player in a couple of years."

Larry Proves He's Ready

Well, it took us about 2 minutes of Larry's first Packer game to convince us that the kid was ready for big league football. This was in 1939. We kicked off to the other club, I don't remember which one it was. Down the field 10 yards ahead of all the other Packers streaked Craig. Inside the 20 yard line he brought down the kick-off receiver. That was a good sign. But soon there was more evidence.

On the first play the other fellows tried Larry's end. He threw the runner for a loss. They came right back with another one at him. When Larry again smeared the runner, I knew he was ready and that Mr. Marshall, for once, had played his words too close to his vest.

Watch Him Block!

Ever since then he's been taking bumps for Hutson, who would, I fear, long have been gone from pro football had he been subjected to the punishment a defensive left end must take. Don always is solicitous of Larry's well being. "Don't get hurt, boy," he tells Larry. "Stay in shape. I need you!"

I have a tip for the fans who will watch the Packers play the College All-Stars in Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 30. It's this: watch Craig's blocking form! He is tops of any player I've seen in throwing blocks.

It was Craig who bowled over the Bears' George Wilson at Green Bay last September to make a clear touchdown path for Lou Brock. At the time the score was 28 to 28. We won the game on Brock's touchdown run, thanks to Larry's skill in blocking one of the league's greatest ends.

He Likes to Back Up Line

Larry is always asking to be allowed to back up the line because of the opportunity of body contact this would afford. In 1942 we were playing Pittsburgh in Milwaukee. The Steelers had a great running team, headed by Bill Dudley, and we put in a 6-3-2 defense. I put Larry in the middle of the three man alignment and you never saw a happier, or more bruised young man. This was his happiest day. Larry has written asking me to put in the 6-3-2 against the All-Stars. If I do, he'll be the middle man—and what a man!

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

THERE was a story behind the story of John L. Keeshin's recent signing of two marine lieutenants for his Chicago All-America conference football team. . . . When Lt. Claude Pieculewicz, formerly of Fordham, and Lt. Walter Williams of Boston university arrived in the early morning hours Keeshin met them at the station. . . . Then began a day the two men, just home from combat in the Pacific, long will remember. . . . First, they breakfasted at the Blackstone. . . . Then Keeshin took them to the barber shop for the works. . . . Next was a session at Charley Posti's health factory. . . . And at 3 p. m. they sat down to the best meal they had enjoyed in many a day. . . . An hour before train time Keeshin produced handsome compacts for their wives and billfolds for themselves. . . . Next came the clincher. . . . "You boys may have a hard time getting anything to eat on the train," Keeshin said. . . . A few minutes later an employe brought in a big sack bulging with sandwiches, fresh fruit, and cookies. . . . This is an example of employer-employe relations in athletics which may mark the beginning of a new era. . . . Peanuts Lowrey, smallest man on the Cubs, uses a bat designed especially for the largest man on the team, Paul Derringer. . . . There are those who say golf was mentioned in the Bible, citing the following from Proverbs, chapter 18, verse 6: "A fool's lips enter into contention and his mouth calleth for strokes." . . . Many Southeastern conference football teams are planning to make their game trips in automobiles this fall, due to the shortage of train space. . . . Lt. Charlie Du Four, U. S. N. R., All-Southeastern conference tackle at Tulane in 1940, now at Georgia Pre-Flight, is one of the few in service who participated in the invasions of North Africa, Normandy, Italy, southern France, and Okinawa. . . . He has been in destroyer duty for three years.

Rick Ferrell, Washington catcher, says the best throwing arm in the American league is owned by Detroit's Paul Richards. . . . Navy, which admittedly was much stronger in the line than in the back field last football season, will find conditions reversed this year. . . . The majority of graduation losses were in the line and the good plebe replacements, including Bob Kelly from Notre Dame and Bob Hoernschemeyer from Indiana, are backs rather than linemen. . . . Lt. Bill Osmanski and Lt. Jim Logan, who first met as teammates with the Chicago Bears, were stationed at Great Lakes together and have become still better acquainted on Okinawa. . . . A couple of years ago when the Cubs went to Chanute field to play an exhibition Lou Novikoff refused to wash his platter after eating in the mess-hall. . . . To the embarrassment of all Cubs in earshot Lou said, "I came here to play baseball, not to wash dishes." . . . On July 16, 1945, Lou was inducted and he may get a chance to get caught up in his dishwashing.

Friends

How true is the maxim which firmly has stood
Thru years of both plenty and drouth:
"An ill wind it is that blows nobody good
Before it has blown itself out."

The good that it blows may take time to appear
But show up it will, you can bet,
And the one who receives it will be of good cheer
And have little cause for regret.

To best illustrate; Take a man who is ill
Can that sort of wind blow for him?"

My answer shall be in the words of a man
Who waits while his shattered health mends:
"My illness has shown me as nothing else can

To the Rescue

A scooter lay upon its back
And hovering quite near,
A lad with troubled eyes looked up
"Say, man, will you fix this for me,"
I thought, "What will he do,
This demigod of that small boy
Who feels so very blue?"
The man was occupied, no doubt,
With worries of his own;
But, to my great relief, he stopped—
Seemed, somehow, to have known
How very real a child's woes are;
They chatted like two men—
He left a smile on that child's face
When he passed on again!

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs, for the first time, yesterday ran afoul of the National league's quaint "suspended game" scheme—and that wasn't all. In eight innings of the unfinished game the league leaders took a severe pummeling, 10 to 4, but the defeat, if it turns out to be such, will not become official until the ninth inning, or more, is played on Sept. 15, two weeks before the end of the 1945 season. Until that time the game will be ignored in the league standings. This morning, for instance, the Cubs can look at the league standings and make off like they are three and one-half games ahead of the Cardinals and four and one-half games ahead of the Dodgers. If the ninth had been finished yesterday before the Dodgers had to run for a train, and Brooklyn had remained ahead, the Cubs still would have been three games ahead of the Cardinals and three and one-half ahead of the Dodgers.

In any event, the next business in Wrigley field involves four games with the tail-end Phillies, beginning with a single game this afternoon.

It's Something New for Cubs

The "suspended game" scheme was introduced because of the number of games curtailed by Sunday curfews in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Boston. Yesterday the game was called at 3:50 o'clock by agreement reached before the game. Stangely enough, the Cubs never had been involved in the effects of the scheme in their sabbath visits to Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

The delay, perhaps, will prove of little comfort to Claude Passeau, tho he won't be charged yet with what would have been his fourth defeat in his third try for his 11th victory. Claude rarely has suffered from wildness but he was wild yesterday and left the game in the fifth inning with none out and the bases loaded after he had walked Augie Galan to force home the run that gave the Dodgers a 2 to 1 lead. Paul Erickson sought to relieve Claude but pitched a single to Dixie Walker and a triple to Stan Bordagaray, to round out a six run inning for the Dodgers.

Walker Crashes Homer

The Dodgers added three runs in the eighth off Ray Starr, same accruing on Walker's homer with Eddie Stanky and Goody Rosen on base.

The Dodgers made 13 hits, the Cubs only five. Two of Chicago's runs were scored when Tom Seats walked Bill Nicholson and Phil Cavarretta with the bases loaded in the fifth. In the eighth, Andy Pafko reached second on Bordagaray's error, went to third on an infield out and scored on Cy Buker's wild pitch.

Altho the event, quite properly, passed without observance, yesterday was the seventh anniversary of Charley Grimm's ouster from the managership in 1938.

WHITE SOX BEAT BOSTON, 6-3, FOR SECOND IN ROW

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Boston, Mass., July 20—The unfathomable White Sox not only returned to within calling distance of the first division this afternoon, but put together a winning streak of two games. This was done quite simply, but effectively, by a five run third inning against the local Sox, who, despite their ability to keep Ed Lopat, the lefty, in trouble, eventually succumbed by 6 to 3 in the final of the series before a paying crowd of 4,284 and a large number of women guests.

The starter against Lopat was Clem Hausmann but, in view of what transpired in the decisive third, it is hardly necessary to mention that his appearance was limited. Actually he went away with the bases filled in the third, and two Chicagoans already home, the inning ending only after additional difficulties had been encountered by Reliefer Francis Barrett. Thereafter James Dykes' boys attacked gently, but at least maintained an airtight defense toward the finish when Lopat was pounded at an alarming rate.

Ed Helps Own Cause

Lopat's bat usually is a handy utensil, so he didn't occasion any surprise with the single with which he touched off the five run pleasant-

Women's Golf Title Is Won by Mrs. Mayer

Mrs. Frank Maver of Lake Shore won the 14th annual Chicago women's district golf championship yesterday by defeating Virginia Nilles of Rolling Green, 8 and 6, in a loosely played 36 hole final match at the Northmoor Country club.

Mrs. Frank Mayer

Yesterday's triumph climaxed a week of surprising accomplishments on the part of the Lake Shore veteran whose best previous showing in the tournament was to reach the semi-finals in 1938. On Wednesday Mrs. Mayer eliminated Mrs. Lawrence Helz, the defending champion, and on Thursday she ousted Rena Nelson, the qualifying medalist, and a former champion.

Scoring Is High

Neither player produced the brand of golf yesterday that they displayed in earlier rounds. Mrs. Mayer, who pulled into a 5 up lead at 18 holes, posted a card of 42—45—87, 11 over par, while her opponent soared to 43—48—91.

They fared but little better in the afternoon, Mrs. Mayer going out in 46 to widen her lead to 6 up at the 27 hole mark. Miss Nilles needed 47 strokes on the front nine of the afternoon round where her putter failed her completely except at the 27th. There she knocked in a 30 foot putt for a birdie 4.

Mrs. Mayer Wins 4 Holes in Row

Mrs. Mayer moved in front early in the match. After losing the first hole to Miss Nilles' par 4, she proceeded to win the next four holes with two birdies, a par, and a bogey to go 3 up at the 5th. They halved the next hole in 5s, one over par, and Mrs. Mayer widened her lead to 4 up by winning the 175 yard 7th with a par 3 as Virginia missed the green with her drive.

Miss Nilles rallied to win the next two holes with par golf as Mrs. Mayer drove into the bushes at the 8th and was trapped at the 9th. Mrs. Mayer had a medal of 42 for the first nine against her opponent's 43.

Both players ran into difficulty on the back nine. They halved the 10th in 5s, one over par, and Mrs. Mayer went 3 up at the 11th with a 5 against Miss Nilles' 6. Virginia sank a long putt to win the 12th with a birdie 4 but Mrs. Mayer came right back to win the next three holes to go 5 up at the 15th. She held this lead as the last three holes of the round were halved.

Match Ends on 30th Green

They halved the first four holes of the afternoon round in four over par figures. In this stretch Miss Nilles had two three putt greens. Mrs. Mayer won the 23d to go 6 up and increased her lead to 7 up at the short 26th, where Miss Nilles again three putted.

Virginia won her first hole of the afternoon round by sinking a 30 foot putt at the 27th for a birdie four. Mrs. Mayer shot par golf to win two out of the first three holes on the back nine to end the match on the 30th, 8 and 6.

CHAMPIONSHIP CONSOLATION

FIRST FLIGHT

SECOND FLIGHT
Mrs. Roy Schumacher, Lincolnshire, beat Mrs. Paul Daube, Northmoor, 4 and 3.

THIRD FLIGHT
Mrs. C. B. Potter, Medinah, beat Helen Klein, Idlewild, 4 and 3.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Louis B. Mayer's Thumbs Up, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap three weeks ago and still at the top of his comeback form, will go postward today and odds-on favorite to win the Stars and Stripes handicap at Washington Park.

George [The Iceman] Woolf, winner of many of the nation's richest racing prizes, will be aboard the 6 year old son of the imported Blenheim II. in quest of $40,500, the winner's share of the $58,600 purse in the event all of the 11 overnight entries start.

Already Has Won $239,290

A victory for the California film magnate's colorbearer will place him 13th the list of the world's leading money winning horses. To date Thumbs Up has accumulated $239,290 in four years of running, and the Stars and Stripes could run that up to $279,790. That would place him ahead of Top Flight, War Admiral, Blue Larkspur, Twenty Grand, Man o' War, and a host of other great purse winners.

Thumbs Up also is entered in the Arlington Park and Washington Park Handicaps with a good chance of increasing his earnings another $100,000. This would bring him close to the third ranking Sun Beau, which won $376,744, exceeded only by Whirlaway's $561,161 and Seabiscuit's $437,730.

Has Speed and Tenacity

That's quite a formidable program, however, much tougher than the job Thumbs Up will have today in the mile and an eighth Stars and Stripes. His chief contention figures to come from the Walmac and David Straus' entry of Old Kentuck and Daily Trouble, Howard Wells' finely conditioned handicap stars.

Both have plenty of speed and stamina as have D. Sidell's St. Jock, Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Sirde, and Mrs. Clyde Troutt's Take Wing. That will be all right with the Mayer racer, for he has shown in the course of a comeback after 18 months of inaction that he has speed for the sprinters and tenacity for the stayers.

Thumbs Up will carry top weight of 130 pounds, the same he carried in the Santa Anita Handicap for a mile and a quarter and tied Seabiscuit's track record of 2:01 2-5.

$104.60 Daily Double

Yesterday's card, headed by the $5,000 Mate handicap which drew a field of five older horses, attracted 15,000 spectators, who wagered $1,070,834.

Leon Tikulsk.'s Bolus, light weighted at 104 with Tony Skoronski in the saddle, whipped the favored Three Dots by a neck in the Mate. The winner negotiated the six furlongs in 1:10 4-5 and returned 16.40, $4, and $2.40 across the board. Three Dots, owned by J. H. Rouse and piloted by Billy Nichols, paid $2.60 and $2.20. Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Ariel Lad was third and returned $2.60.

The daily double, won by Valnor and Bad Cold, returned $104.60. Doug Dobson rode Valnor [$9.20] and C. L. Martin piloted Bad Cold [$15.80].

John Marsch's Mighty Story, however, provided the day's high light with a record breaking performance of :58 3-5 for the five furlong fourth race. The 2 year old gray colt, a son of Mahmoud-Little Lie, lowered the mark of :58 4-5 set Thursday by the Brolite farm's With Pleasure.

Mighty Story was ridden by Billy Thompson and it was his third victory in three starts.

ness in the third. He galloped to third on Wally Moses' single and went home on Leroy Schalk's fly to Bob Johnson. Hausmann promptly lost his bearings. He walked Kerby Farrell, John Dickshot, and Tony Cuccinello in succession, the gifts forcing in Moses and leaving the bases filled for Rescuer Barrett. Oris Hockett smacked the latter for a single, Farrell and Dickshot counting and Cuccinello taking third. Tony scored the fifth run when Dolph Camilli threw wild after Hockett had been trapped off base.

When Bob Garbark singled in the home fifth for the third Boston hit, he was the first to puncture Lopat's defense since the first inning. The fourth blow off the dapper southpaw came quickly. Jim Wilson batted for Barrett and banged a two bagger against the left field wall, Garbark scoring. The sixth inning also produced two hits as well as the locals' second run. Camilli doubled to left, a strange spot for him, and counted on a single by Pete Fox.

Hubbard Gets Assist

Umpire Cal Hubbard who was working at third base inadvertently assisted Lopat in the eighth but Mr. Dykes, the umpire baiter, didn't protest such help. Eddie Lake opened the inning with a drive down the left field goal line and, after the ball had passed Cuccinello, it collided with one of Hubbard's shins. It cut to a single what was a sure fire double, leaving Lake in a position to be included a moment later in a double play grounder hit to Farrell by Camilli.

The ninth was so rocky for Lopat that there was unusual activity in the visiting bullpen. Bob Johnson led off with a single, his first hit, and after Fox had flied out, Skeeter Newsome lined a double into left, Johnson stopping at third. Then Garbark smacked a fly to left and, by backing up against the scoreboard, leaping and reaching, Dickshot managed to get hold of the ball, Johnson scoring after the catch. Leon Culberson batted for Jack Tobin and lofted to Moses, but the latter had to tear in at express speed to make the concluding out.

BRATTON WHIPS MELVIN JOHNSON AT WHITE CITY

Dan Robinson stopped Bill Jordan [6].

Forced to Open Vault, then Tied Up

Robert Rumbold, 73 year old watchman, told in court yesterday his experience with six robbers who took 2 million dollars in currency, securities, and jewelry from the safety vault operated by his brother at the E. H. Rumbold Real Estate company, 634 W. 119th st. He was the principal witness at the opening of the trial of three men charged with the looting before Judge Frank M. Padden in Criminal court. The robbery was committed Jan. 19.

Rumbold had dinner with his sister that evening and was walking back to the office when he was accosted by a man who asked him, "Got a match, partner?" Before Rumbold could answer, another man grabbed him from behind.

Cap Pulled Over Eyes

"Take it easy and you won't get hurt," said one of his captors. He yanked Rumbold's cap over his eyes. "You know what this is?" the man asked. "I suppose it's a holdup," Rumbold replied.

Rumbold said the two men walked him thru "a couple of alleys" until they came to an automobile with a driver. He was ordered to get in the rear and keep his head down. A man sitting beside him poked him in the side with an automatic pistol. "You just go along and we'll guarantee you won't get hurt," the man said.

Two other men were picked up by the automobile. Rumbold was forced to hand over his keys. Presently they reached the vault building and Rumbold, with a guard, was sent to his living quarters on the second floor.

Vault Baffles Robbers

Ten minutes later he was ordered down to the vaults. The robbers had been unable to open the lock. There were then several present, Rumbold testified. All stood facing the wall, with their arms concealing their faces.

"Don't get excited," one robber said. "Take off your coat and open up just as if everything was all right."

After he was marched upstairs again, Rumbold said, the robbers had trouble with the inner doors and he was summoned to open them. Then he spent the time with his guard, "talking about ordinary things," until one of the men below shouted, "It's all over, come on."

Friendly Bandit Gives Blanket

All but his personal guard urged tying him up, and that was done after an argument in which he pleaded for the robbers to keep their word not to harm him. As the band was leaving, he said, the friendly one returned and covered him with a blanket. His bonds were so loose that he was able to work himself free in a short time and call this brother and police.

Assistant State's Atty. Blair Varnes asked Rumbold if he recognized any of the defendants, Willie Niemoth, Patrick Flaherty, and Llewellyn Morgan. He pointed to Morgan, but wasn't sure of the others.

Thomas Leahy and Michael Kozar have admitted their parts in the robbery. Wencel Urban, also indicted, was lated killed on a gangland ride.

The Christian Century, commenting editorially, says "The proportion is very high. No wonder more than a tenth of the army chaplains have been decorated!"

A JUDGE SEEKS TO UNITE COUPLE FOR LAST MILES

Two persons who have lived together for 46 years should tread the last few miles of life's path hand in hand, Judge John M. Tuohy said yesterday in Superior court. He addressed William Klensch, 80, of 3555 N. Marshfield av., a retired electrical engineer, charged by his wife, Bertha, 78, with deserting her.

Mrs. Klensch was not in court. Her attorneys, Joseph H. and Norman Becker, told Judge Tuohy that she is an invalid, and is nearly blind. She is confined to her home at 3058 N. Greenview av., they said.

The attorneys' words had a moving effect upon the woman's husband.

"I hardly know what to say," he told the court haltingly. "I know my wife is a helpless invalid, and that her sight is almost gone. But judge, you don't know what I've had to go thru the last 46 years. We've parted five times and have always gone back together again. I only wish you would let me tell you the whole story."

Judge Tuohy said he would be glad to listen to the elderly man's story. He set July 30, a day he ordinarily would not be in court, to hear it.

"You can be assured I'll do everything I can to bring them back together," the court said.

LANDLORD KILLS HIMSELF AFTER SHOOTING FOUR

Theodore W. Thompson, 48, ran amok in his apartment building at 4139 Calumet av. yesterday, shot four tenants, and then killed himself. All five are Negroes. Thompson first fired at Mrs. Mary Geary, 33, wounding her three times, and then at her sister, Mrs. Jennie Foster, 30, hitting her in the side. He aimed at Thomas Wilson, 39, and pulled the trigger twice, but the pistol was empty.

When Wilson locked himself in a bathroom, Thompson reloaded the pistol and fired twice thru the door, both shots striking Wilson. The landlord next ran to a front porch and shot Mrs. Mary Potts, 34, in the side before he killed himself. All except Mrs. Potts were hospitalized.

SPRAINED ANKLE TRAPS GIRL AND 3 IN HOLDUP WAVE

A sprained ankle suffered by Miss Vera Benak, 19, of 3630 Pittsburgh av., at a radio factory picnic near Des Plaines last Sunday, and reported to police of the suburb led yesterday to her arrest and the roundup of three young men accused of commiting eight holdups in the last two weeks.

A girl with a bandaged ankle accompanied two young men who robbed a tavern at Touhy av. and Tolcott rd., near Des Plaines, after the picnic. Des Plaines police linked the two reports and notified Chicago police.

While Miss Benak was being questioned Thursday the same two men, Raymond Goralski, 17, of 3935 N. Nordica av., and John Crosoli, 20, 2420 N. Harding av., joined by John Groat, 19, of 3503 N. Medill av., were robbing a tavern at 917 Montrose av. They were seized as a result of her information. INDIANA URGES LAWS FORCING CARE OF GRAVES

Harvey J. Post, retired Hammond business man and former member of the Indiana state senate, said yesterday that he would urge the Indiana assembly to enact laws requiring Indiana cemeteries to take better care of graves.

He recently charged that officials of the Oak Hill cemetery in Hammond had been neglectful. He wrote to Atty. Gen. James Emmert asking if any state laws covering cemetery care could be applied.

Emmert replied that none existed. Harvey said he would campaign for such statutes. A law requiring cemetery associations to make financial accountings might do, he said.

BRITISH SHIFT IN GOVERNMENT HELD INDIA HOPE

Drastic change in England's home government will brighten the chances of a new constitution for India, said Tayab Shaik of Bombay, vice president of the Dockyards Labor union of India, when he visited at the University of Chicago yesterday.

Tayab Shaik

Shaik, a member of the Radical Democratic party of India, said his party is urging formation of a provisional government in India to be succeeded by a post-war constitutional democratic regime.

India has been "handcuffed" to Great Britain in the same way England bound the 13 American colonies before the American Revolution, Sunder Joshi, University of Chicago lecturer, declared yesterday in the first of a series of public lectures on India.

"The spirit of 18th century imperial mercantilism shown toward the 13 colonies is not basically different from the economic treatment of India today," Joshi asserted.

SENATE VOTES BILLIONS MORE TO GO ABROAD

Hikes Export Bank Loan Authority

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 20—The senate voted today to increase American global lending by another 2 billion 800 million dollars, thereby providing some more lend-lease under another name.

By a voice vote it approved a bill already passed by the house, raising the lending authority of the Export-Import bank from 700 million dollars to 3½ billions.

The house approved minor senate amendments to a measure providing for American participation in the Bretton Woods monetary agreements and sent the bill to the White House.

Today's vote on the two measures cleared the way for action of congress on the San Francisco charter which will come up in the senate Monday for a week of debate.

Meets Little Opposition

Upping the lending limit of the bank, an American institution for making loans to foreign countries in an effort to expand American foreign trade, was virtually unopposed.

But Sen. Taft [R., O.] told the senate yesterday that the new authorization for the export-import bank would raise American taxpayers' burden of post-war international assistance to 22 billion dollars—and wreck this country.

Taft led an unsuccessful Republican fight yesterday to defer senate approval of the 9 billion 100 million dollar world bank and 8 billion 800 million dollar international monetary fund which constitute the Bretton Woods plan.

Taft and his Republican followers insisted the Export-Import bank system could do the same work as the Bretton Woods plan—at billions less cost to American taxpayers.

Bank Under U. S. Control

And, the Bretton Woods foes argued, the Export-Import bank is under American management, whereas the Bretton Woods monetary fund will be administered by a board of 11 foreigners and one American.

Taft charged today the Export-Import bank's new lending funds will actually be used to supplement lend-lease, altho he said the way is clear for the bank to serve American foreign trade. Recalling testimony by Leo Crowley, chairman of the bank and foreign economic administrator, Taft told the senate:

"Mr. Crowley's testimony made it clear that when we got thru passing this bill we would be providing foreign countries for rehabilitation purposes, and possibly some relief, about 7 billion dollars during the next 12 months.

"Four billion 400 million dollars is to go abroad under lend-lease. Of this 4 billion 400 million, Mr. Crowley testified that 1 billion 700 million would be food from the United States, altho we are necessarily short of food.

Supplements Lend-Lease

"Now we add to the 4 billion 400 million this 2 billion 800 million which is to last for only 12 months. In effect, what this is for is to supplement lend-lease, altho lend-lease is being used for reconstruction purposes against the intent of the lend-lease act."

The Export-Import bank, about which some senators confessed puzzlement, is an 11 year old institution. The United States has been using it to finance American exporters and foreign governments, principally in South America, in foreign trade operations. For example, if a foreign purchaser temporarily lacked funds to buy American goods, and private banks would not make loans, American taxpayers' money was risked.

The bank's character was reorganized today, however, in the bill which raised its lending power. Henceforth, Taft said, emphasis will be on loans to foreign governments for post-war reconstruction rather than foreign trade. Russia is to get a billion dollars of the $2,800,000,000 just authorized.

American Car Earnings Rise in Fiscal Year

American Car and Foundry company net earnings in the fiscal year ended April 30 rose to $6,335,141, or $7.18 a share, from $5,591,832, or $5.95 a share, in the preceding fiscal year, Charles J. Hardy, chairman, reported yesterday. Orders on the railroad car builder's books April 30 exceeded 208 million dollars, of which 160 million represented "war work."

Hardy said contracts were in the making for many thousands of freight cars to be purchased by the government for use in Europe, and that the company expected to get its full share of this business.

Domestic Needs Pressing

Productive capacity of the equipment making industry of the United States "will be heavily taxed in meeting requirements" of the government's foreign program, he said, even tho domestic railroad needs for equipment remained "pressing and to a great extent unrelieved."

The company management, however, "is keenly alive to the needs of our own roads," said Hardy, "and is in excellent condition to respond quickly and effectively to whatever demand may be made on it to supply such needs."

The American Car reconversion problem was described as less serious than for many organizations whose activities in the last few years have been entirely in war work.

STOCK MARKET CLOSES UNEVEN IN LIGHT TRADE

EXCHANGES CLOSE
Stock exchanges will be closed today and every Saturday thru Sept. 1.

Dealings were among the slowest of the year. Many customers left yesterday for a long week-end and buying and selling timidity were pronounced. The ticker tape loafed after the opening and transfers of 650,000 shares, compared with 780,000 yesterday, were the smallest for a five hour trade since April 9.

CHICAGO LIST MIXED

Prices were irregular in small turnover of 23,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. More actively traded issues included Woodall Industries, up 1⅛; Swift & Co. and Chicago corporation common, each up ¼; Wisconsin Bankshares, down ¼, and Utah Radio, down ⅝.

BOND MARKET DULL

New York, July 20 (AP)—The bond market was irregular today in the smallest dealings in three years. Volume was $3,290,000, compared with $5,010,000 yesterday.

Spiegel Buys Arizona Home Furnishings Firm

M. J. Spiegel Jr., president and general manager of Spiegel, Inc., yesterday announced the company's purchase of Dorris-Heyman company, home furnishing store with outlets in Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz. The purchase brings to eight the total of retail home furnishings stores owned by Spiegel.

GRAINS HIGHER AS RYE SHORTS SEEK TO COVER

Grain futures prices rose yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, led by July rye as shorts sought to cover their contracts before the close of trading in the option. They advanced the price 4⅝ cents to $1.55⅛ a bushel, up 11⅛ cents from the low of last week. The deferred deliveries of rye gained 2⅝ to 2¾ cents.

Reports that the government was bidding for hard winter wheat in Kansas City and that feeders of wheat would be granted a subsidy similar to the mills' stimulated the buying of futures and the close was ⅞ to 1⅝ higher. Corn finished unchanged to ⅝ higher, oats gained ¼ to ⅝, and barley ½ to 1¼.

RAIL OFFICIALS ARE CLEARED IN SECURITIES SUIT

Philadelphia, Pa., July 20 (AP)—Fifteen officers and directors of the Pennsylvania railroad and its subsidiary, the Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Detroit railroad, were absolved today of charges of negligence, lack of good faith, and failure to do their duty to stockholders in making a private sale of $28,483,000 of P. O. & D. bonds to Kuhn, Loeb, & Co., New York bankers, in June, 1943. Federal District Judge Harry E. Kalodner entered judgment for the directors in a suit filed by Otis & Co., Cleveland, O., investment house, a stockholder, seeking a million dollars damages allegedly lost thru the sale.

INCREASE IN SMALL BUSINESS IS SHOWN BY EDISON RECORDS

The number of small business establishments in Chicago increased 649 in the first half of 1945, records of Commonwealth Edison company showed yesterday.

The increase represents approximately 0.7 per cent of the total number of customers in this classification and compares with a net loss of 1,555 a year earlier.

Taverns led the list with an increase of 134. Electric appliance stores and small commercial warehouses were second with 100 each. Liquor stores increased 59, novelty and gift shops 58, grocery stores 31, lingerie shops 28, beauty shops 23, and automobile accessory stores and service stations each 20.

Highest on the list of establishments that went out of business were combined grocery and meat markets with a net loss of 40.

House Sends Big Tax Relief Bill to Truman

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—A 5 billion 700 million dollar program of tax relief for business won swift house approval today and was sent to President Truman's desk.

It took the house, all set for an 11 weeks' adjournment after tomorrow, about a minute to concur in a senate amendment to the legislation designed to help business thru the transition from war to peace.

Drop Railroad Clause

The senate amendment struck from the bill a house provision that would have allowed reorganized railroads to get tax credits for losses suffered by predecessor corporations. Sen. La Follette [Prog., Wis.] objected this would grant an undeserved windfall to a small group of railroads.

The legislation generally increases, effective with the 1946 tax year, the specific exemption on excess profits taxes from $10,000 to $25,000.

Affects 12,000 Firms

Congressional leaders said the increase will help small business accumulate a cash reserve for post-war use. Backers said it would affect an estimated 12,000 small corporations and reduce their total tax liabilities by 160 million dollars.

Other provisions are intended to place tax refunds and credits in the hands of corporations ahead of the schedule provided in the original tax law. The legislation does not affect individual taxes or refunds.

CURB NEWSPRINT IMPORTS FROM NORTH EUROPE

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—No standard newsprint will be imported from northern European countries, the WPB announced today. This policy will carry out recommendations of the combined raw materials board and the newspaper industry advisory committee that newsprint requirements of liberated Europe be supplied by north European rather than American mills.

The newspaper committee said ship space would be saved by eliminating two way traffic of newsprint across the Atlantic, liberated areas could obtain newsprint quickly, and delivery schedules from North American mills would be stabilized.

To carry out the policy, WPB will take control of imports of standard newsprint paper, effective Aug. 3.

Douglas Plans Job Referrals to Aid Others

A plan for assisting plants requiring highly trained aircraft industry personnel who no longer are needed by Douglas Aircraft company was disclosed yesterday by Donald W. Douglas, president.

Donald W. Douglas

"The ultimate contraction of all war time activities attendant to war production will make it necessary, during this period of reconversion to commercial activities, to release some of these highly trained employes, thus making it possible for this company to assist other organizations as they resume and expand commercial operations," Douglas said in a letter to other companies.

Establishes Referral Plan

"Knowing that other companies are interested in securing for employment qualified persons with business and industrial experience, and in the interest of an orderly conversion to post-war economy, this company has established an 'intercompany employe referral plan' by which it proposes to make available, when staff reductions are appropriate and necessary, some of those persons whose services it utilized during the period of expansion."

With the letter Douglas sent a form for the company needing trained employes to fill out, indicating qualifications required to fill the job, the nature of work available, salary, date required, what travel expense, if any, will be paid, and other pertinent information.

On determining that an employe may be qualified to fill the assignment and is interested, he will be requested to fill out an application form of the company seeking the employe, which Douglas will send back to the other company with a summary of the applicant's service record with Douglas and the date he can be released.

Up to Employe, Company

Thereafter Douglas steps out unless the other company wishes more information, and further relations are between the employe and the other company.

War man power commission officials in Santa Monica, Cal., where the main Douglas plant is situated, have reviewed the plan and promised coöperation, Douglas said. All other Douglas plants will be advised of intercompany employe requisitions received by the employe referral office at the Santa Monica plant.

REPUBLIC STEEL STRIKERS VOTE RETURN TO WORK

Cleveland, O., July 20 (AP)—Striking pit furnace men at the Cleveland plant of Republic Steel corporation voted unanimously tonight to end immediately a one day stoppage which forced idleness on 1,500 CIO United Steel Workers, said W. F. Donovan, district union director.

A dispute over the number of workers required to man the open hearth furnace pits "will be settled by peaceful procedures," Donovan asserted.

Joseph H. Slater, acting district manager of Republic, said the company's 14 open hearth furnaces closed today and two blast furnaces, a blooming and billet mill were shut down because of the shortage of material. He asserted about 4,500 tons of military steel were lost thru the stoppage.

ILLINOIS CATTLE MEN ASK FIXED SUBSIDY POLICY

Carrollton, Ill., July 20 (AP)—Rep. Simpson [R., Ill.] today wired Secretary of Agriculture Anderson the suggestion of 18 corn belt beef cattle raisers that the government establish a fixed subsidy policy so that "the country will get beef."

The 18 raisers from the district met with Simpson and drafted the message, which said they are feeding 92 per cent fewer cattle than a year ago.

Simpson said the raisers believed that if enough differential is made between grades of cattle and other suggestions worked out, the corn belt farmers will renew activities and the country will get beef.

Donald Nelson Sells Home in Glencoe for $75,000

Donald M. Nelson, former WPB chairman, yesterday sold his nine room colonial residence at 595 Longwood dr., Glencoe, to William T. Young, president of the Bell & Zoller Coal and Mining company, Chicago, for $75,000. The home is on a lot 132 by 600 feet, and includes riparian rights on Lake Michigan. Fred M. Clark of Baird & Warner was the only broker.

Radio Equipment Tests Planned by Illinois Central

The Illinois Central railroad yesterday said it planned to run tests in September between Freeport, Ill., and Waterloo, Ia., of radio equipment for use on trains and between trains and wayside stations. The 162 mile run was chosen for its variety of operating conditions.

CANCELS MOST OF EXPANSION IN TRUCK TIRES

WPB Cuts Program to 22 Million

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Twelve projects for expanding production of large truck tires, authorized only last December and January, have been canceled because of reduced requirements, the war production board announced today.

These cancellations, together with those of other projects authorized at the same time, wiped out all except 22 million of the original 110 million dollar program.

W. James Sears, deputy director of the rubber office, however, said it was impossible at present to determine the net saving to the government because termination negotiations were not completed.

Drop to 20 Million a Year

When the expansion program was authorized, Sears said, indicated requirements for truck tires were 24 million a year. This figure subsequently was increased to 28 million, but needs now are placed at 20 million a year.

New building projects canceled outright were Lee Rubber and Tire corporation, Kansas City, Kas.; Inland Rubber corporation, Ottawa, Ill.; Kelly-Springfield Tire company, Houston, Tex.; Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Nashville, Tenn.; B. F. Goodrich company, Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Firestone Tire and Rubber company, Pottstown, Pa.

Some of Cancellations

Projects involving additional buildings and equipment canceled were Firestone, Los Angeles, Cal.; United States Rubber company, Detroit, Mich.; United States Rubber, Eau Claire, Wis.; Mansfield Tire and Rubber company [second project], Mansfield, O.; Goodyear Tire, Gadsden, Ala., and General Tire and Rubber company, Waco, Tex.

Sears also announced the cancellation of five expansion projects for "bogie" tires for tanks and half-tracks and many cutbacks on smaller truck tires.

Ask Rescinding of Rate Hike; U.S. Blamed for Lack of Cars

Midwest Plea to ICC

The Chicago Association of Commerce and chambers of commerce and shippers of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission yesterday asking it to rescind its order increasing class freight rates 10 per cent in the area north of the Ohio river and east of the Mississippi river.

The petitioning group said present rates were fair and legal, and that no change had been asked by the railroads in the territory affected. They also said the new rate would be discriminatory.

Decreased in Other Areas

The increase was part of an ICC order growing out of a general investigation of railroad class freight rates. Another part of the order stipulated a decrease of 10 per cent in these rates in and between southern, southwestern, and western territories east of the Rocky mountains.

1. There is nothing in the record of the general class rate investigation that supports the finding that rates within the territory are unreasonably low or that the costs of transporting carload traffic are larger than the revenues derived from present rates.

Method Termed Lawful

2. No showing has been made that there is anything unlawful in the method of distributing the traffic burden among various classes of goods. [Class rates affected by the order apply largely to manufactured goods as distinguished from coal, grain, lumber, etc., which take commodity rates.]

3. Neither the railroads nor the shippers requested any change in the rates which were prescribed by the ICC as reasonable maxima 12 years ago and which only last fall the commission refused to increase.

4. The increase would result in undue preference. Under the proposed increases, rates from border cities to interior points in official [northeast] territory would be higher than rates from points outside the territory.

Bungling Is Charged

Bungling by "top management in government" is responsible for the present railroad travel crisis and is driving the railroads' steady customers to the air lines, the magazine Railway Age asserted editorially today.

The magazine, sometimes regarded as an unofficial spokesman for the railroads, charged the "planners of national socialism," provoked by the favorable public opinion the roads had won during the war, seized upon the passenger facility shortage created by the return of troops from Europe as "the long awaited opportunity" to smear the railroads.

"Burocracy is forcing the railroads to withdraw Pullman services at the very time when the air lines are being awarded additional planes, enabling them to expand their commercial traffic," said Railway Age.

"Odor of Machiavellianism"

"The government, that is to say, is driving the railroads' steady customers to the air lines.

"There is more than a faint odor of Machiavellianism in the recent extensive press agenting of hardships alleged to have been inflicted by railroads on returning troops.

"The return of troops from Europe is an event that the army has had more than three years to prepare for, and the government has had control of the man power and the materials necessary for such preparation.

"If the means are not at hand to provide the kind of accommodations for returning troop movements that Mr. Patterson [undersecretary of war] 'insists upon,' then the responsibility rests squarely upon top management in government and not upon the railroads, the office of defense transportation, or the army's transportation corps."

War Department Not Alert

The magazine quoted Patterson as stating that on June 26 the war department foresaw the possibility of railroad car congestion, and commented that the department lagged years behind others in anticipating such a condition.

Congestion of rail facilities was certain long ago, the magazine asserted, because of the decrease in passenger car equipment during the depression and government refusal to permit additional equipment during war time.

CRITICAL LACK OF MEN SLOWS SHIP REPAIRING

Pacific Coast Yards Need 6,000 Quickly

San Francisco, Cal., July 20 [Special]—The shortage of ship repair workers on the west coast has become so acute the big Mare Island navy yard in San Francisco bay announced tonight it would operate on a seven day work week beginning Monday.

There are so many damaged ships to be repaired and so few skilled workmen to do the job that many fighting craft have to be turned out of the yards without all the repairs completed.

In every affected quarter — the navy, war man power commission, and shipyard management—earnest appeals were made for more skilled repairmen to meet the "No. 1 emergency of the Pacific war" and the greatest repair job in the fleet's history.

6,000 Needed Quickly

Today's estimates showed that some 6,000 men are needed immediately and future demands will require at least 15,000 more. The navy emphasized that as the navy operates closer to the Japanese homeland the damage to ships will increase and the need for repairmen will grow more acute.

Among the workers needed at once are 1,582 machinists, 1,717 electricians, and more than 500 sheet metal workers. Recruitment of skilled men in those classifications was made the first job of all United States employment offices in the country in June. The program helped, but not enough.

A striking illustration of the gravity of the labor shortage was the necessity of sending the aircraft carrier Franklin, limping home from the Pacific fighting, about 7,000 additional miles from the west coast, thru the Panama canal and up to the Brooklyn navy yard to reach a

War Veterans and Cleaning Plants

[This is the 13th article in a series outlining opportunities for returning war veterans.]

BY ANTHONY WIRRY

Technical knowledge, location, and capital are the most important factors to be considered by the veteran who contemplates operating a dry cleaning plant, experienced members of the industry said yesterday.

"The boss in a small cleaning plant usually learns he must handle not only the problems of advertising and promotion, but also the intricacies of spotting and cleaning," cautioned Julius Daniel, president of the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners' association.

"The new synthetic fabrics now coming on the market, which will reach flood-tide after the war, require entirely different cleaning techniques than formerly.

Training With Others Advised

"To learn these techniques by experience gained in his own plant would be a costly experiment for the average veteran. For this reason it would be advisable for him to spend three to five years in an established plant to learn the business, and perhaps supplement this with a complete course at the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners' institute at Silver Springs, Md."

Daniel said a good "spotter," for example, needed a working knowledge of textile chemistry because he would be working with more than 200 different chemicals and compounds and must learn to use them safely and efficiently on a wide variety of fabrics and fabric combinations.

Emphasizing that mastery of mechanical techniques was not enough, Daniel urged especial care in selection of a business site. The best location is a thickly populated or apartment house district, he said. The establishment should be opened during a busy cleaning season, preferably spring or fall.

Needs $10,000 Capital

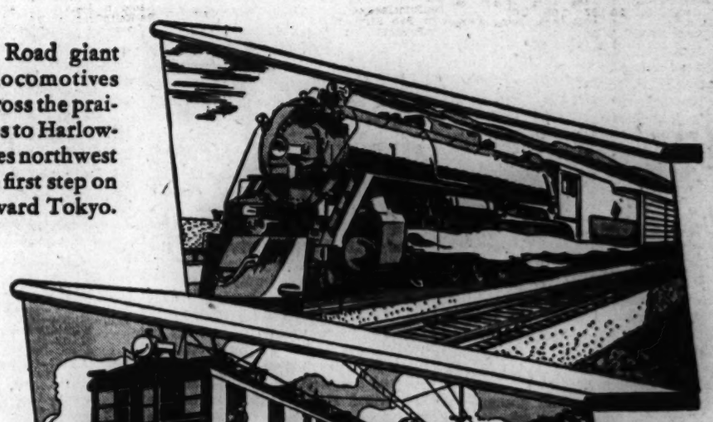
About $10,000 is needed to start a small but reasonably well-equipped dry cleaning plant. This should cover cleaning, pressing and spotting machinery, several small hand irons, racks, cases, fixtures and miscellaneous equipment. It will not include a delivery truck.

With such a plant a veteran should do an annual business of $20,000 a year, netting for himself $4,000 to $5,000, including salary. This requires an average weekly business volume of about $400, or 200 to 250 sales a week.

4 Steps toward TOKYO

1

Over The Milwaukee Road giant 4-8-4 coal-burning locomotives speed military traffic across the prairie and great plains states to Harlowton, Montana—1,335 miles northwest of Chicago. This is the first step on the long, hard road toward Tokyo.

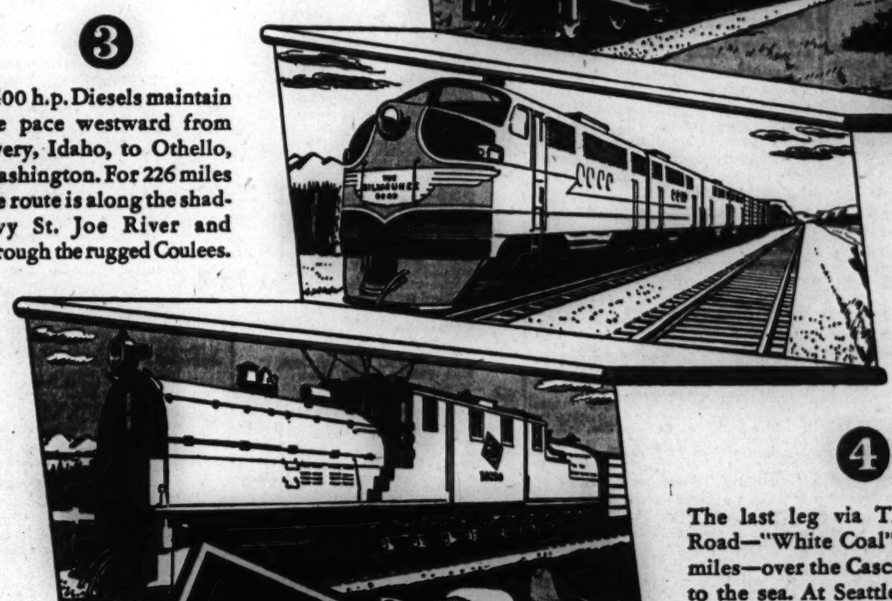


2

Mighty electric locomotives, powered by electricity from mountain streams, haul heavily-loaded, 100-car freight trains swiftly over the Belt, the Rocky and the Bitter Root Mountains. This electrified zone extends for 440 mountain miles.

3

5400 h.p. Diesels maintain the pace westward from Avery, Idaho, to Othello, Washington. For 226 miles the route is along the shadowy St. Joe River and through the rugged Coulees.



4

The last leg via The Milwaukee Road—"White Coal" again for 216 miles—over the Cascades and down to the sea. At Seattle-Tacoma, and other Pacific Ocean ports, rails end and the Navy and Merchant Marine take over the transportation job.

THE MILWAUKEE ROAD

To get his fighting men to their homes and then on their way to Tokyo, Uncle Sam is depending on his Railroads. They must not and will not flag nor fail in carrying out this tremendous responsibility.

place where men were available to do the work, navy yard sources said.

Will Continue Thru Emergency

In announcing Mare Island's increased work week, Rear Adm. Mahon J. Tisdale, yard commandant, said the order affects all workers and departments concerned with ship repair work and will continue until present emergencies are met.

Altho the navy said Hunters Point, second big navy repair base here, will remain for the present on a six day work week with two nine hour shifts daily, many employes there are voluntarily working a seventh day on an overtime basis.

Navy and WMC officials said the need for skilled workers is still so critical, despite some improvement in the last 60 days, that it can have a serious bearing on the prosecution of the Pacific war.

Order New Recruitments

Sam Kagel, WMC area director, said regional directors of the agency from all parts of the country had visited Hunters Point last week and were so impressed with the damaged ships they immediately telegraphed to their officers new orders for recruitments.

"Some workers have come here from as far away as New York and Boston, but a lot more are needed," Kagel said. "Chicago, a No. 1 critical area itself, has been very tight."

To encourage skilled workmen to come here, the navy is prepared to pay transportation and subsistence from the place of recruitment to the place of employment if the employe remains for six months. Workmen who come by automobile will be reimbursed for their traveling expenses.

HOLDS SURPLUS DISPOSAL IS NOT ARMY FUNCTION

Sale of surplus property is not the function of the army and properly should be handled by disposal agencies, Lt. Col. R. T. Gheen, director of the salvage and redistribution division of the 6th service command, said yesterday at a war department property disposal conference at the Palmer House.

"I believe that some service command salvage officers were not of this opinion six or nine months ago," he said. "In some cases we might have sold nominal quantities of surplus to better advantage than a disposal agency.

"But now that larger quantities are coming into the market I am not so sure that we would be so proud of our sales ability. This is a stupendous task, and to do this job well will require the use of the best executive and merchandising brains in America. And after it is well done there will still be many kicks and headaches."

United Air Lines to Buy 30 More 2 Engined Planes

United Air Lines plans to purchase at least 30 more twin engined planes to supplement its present fleet, the company said yesterday. Fifty-seven of this type are in service and nine in the process of conversion from military use. Some of the new twin engined planes will be Douglas DC-3s, but others may be of a new type not yet on the market, United said.

LOOSE-WILES BISCUIT

Please tell me what has been the price range of Loose-Wiles Biscuit company stock during the war, and the earnings and dividend record. —P. R.

The stock sold as low as 13½ in 1940 and has since followed an irregularly upward trend. The 1945 peak above 50 was the highest since 1931.

The advance accompanied an increase in sales from $41,446,000 in 1940 to $84,363,000 in 1944, a new record. Altho federal and state income taxes took $8,667,147 last year in contrast with only $422,526 in 1940, earnings on the 510,600 shares increased to $5.79 a share from $1.93 four years earlier. In intervening years the share profits were: 1943, $4.33; 1942, $3.98; 1941, $1.98. In the first quarter of 1945 the net income rose to $1.12 a share from 96 cents a year earlier.

Because last year's sales were more than double those of the immediate pre-war years, it is open to question whether the gain can be fully maintained under peace time conditions. The net excess profits tax alone totaled $7,965,000 in 1944, however, and a reduction in that levy would provide some offset to a decrease in pre-tax earnings.

The indicated dividend rate at present is $2 a share a year, including extras. Payments in 1944 totaled $1.75, and from 1941 thru 1943 were $1.25 yearly. Dividends have been paid each year since 1927. Net working capital as of last Dec. 31 was $11,047,000. Funded debt consisted of $1,500,000 3 per cent serial notes.

OFFICIALS' LINK WITH FIRMS IN REICH ASSAILED

Washington, D. C., July 20 (AP)—Many key American officials of the allied control commission in Germany are officers of companies previously affiliated with German industries, Rep. Voorhis [D., Cal.] said today.

This policy "is a mistake which may have the most serious consequences for the future peace of the world by allowing the German war machine to be rebuilt," he told the house.

Voorhis said he did not "impute unpatriotic motives" to those he criticized, but believed "the only type of individual given any position of authority in Germany should be those absolutely clean from past German affiliations."

SUPPLY OF HOGS SCANT; CATTLE MARKET WEAK

Only 7,500 hogs arrived at the Chicago stock yards yesterday. This scant supply cleared quickly at ceiling prices with large buying orders left unfilled.

Cattle prices remained weak, 25 to 35 cents below midweek and in some instances 50 cents below the high of Wednesday. The $17.40 per 100 pound steers that brought the top were comparable to the $17.75 cattle sold Wednesday.

The small supply of sheep and lambs sold mostly steady. Best new crop native lambs brought up to the $16.40 top. Best old ewes went at $8.35.

Pullman-Standard Ships 10,000 Pairs of C-47 Wings

The aircraft division of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company has shipped 10,000 pairs of wings for the large C-47 troop and cargo planes. More than 1 million sheets of specially prepared aluminum were used. The first pair was shipped Nov. 11, 1941.
